Allies Discuss Sending Force To Help Finns

Britons Protesting Against Scanty Aid Given Thus Far

DEMAND ACTION

Move Would Help Cut Soviet Economic Assistance to Nazis

London —(AP)— An expeditionary force supported by men-of-war and planes and designed to strike at Soviet Russian forces in Finland has been the subject of serious discussion in military and naval circles for the last month, it was learned authoritatively today.

Talk of such an expedition has been inspired by protests against half-measures of aid for Finland expressed by such divergent personalities as former War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha and Commander Oliver Locker-Lampson, member of parliament.

As envisaged, the expedition would:

1. Give the Finns relief in the form of trained manpower—lots of it.

2. Strike at Russia, which now is classed with Germany in most British public speeches as "an enemy nation"—this respite the fact the Soviet Union and Great Britain technically are still at peace with each other.

Bar Aid to Nazis

Actually the only formal declarations of war thus far in Europe have been the British and French declarations against Germany.

3. Stall Russian economic assistance to blockaded Germany. The reasoning here is that Russia would have few supplies to spare once she were matched against a well-armed and numerically strong foe.

With the western front still static, the allies are said to be turning to a broader concept of strategy. Finland and the middle east are looked upon by the highest military and naval authorities as potential fields for flanking attacks on Russia and Germany.

It is noteworthy that despite recent Finnish reverses circles close to the British foreign office believe the war in Finland will be of "considerable duration."

British Want Action

Quarters which say an expeditionary force is under consideration add that the temper of the British people calls for measures more drastic than the collection of funds for food, clothing and medical supplies and approval of British enlistments for the defense of Finland.

British government spokesmen have said "real aid" is being sent to Finland, including planes, but the actual extent of such assistance has been shrouded as a military secret.

The neutrality of Scandinavian nations would appear to bar immediate action along expeditionary lines, but one naval man speaks of the "necessity of anticipating enemy movements."

The Finnish Petsamo region looms large on British admiralty maps. Experts see it not only as a gateway for Arctic invasion of Finland—its present use—but as a Russian route to Sweden and a potential base for a coastal advance on Norway.

Paris—(AP)—Premier Daladier today told the chamber of deputies foreign affairs committee that material aid by the allies to Finland "will continue."

A communique issued after the meeting said the premier, in a detailed review of French diplomacy, discussed the information tour of European capitals by Sumner Welles, United States undersecretary of state. The communique failed, however, to give the premier's comments thereon.

Report Rumania Given Offer of Nazi Guarantee

Germany Would Safeguard Borders in Return For More Supplies

Bucharest — (AP) — Authoritative quarters said today Germany had offered to guarantee Rumania's borders in return for huge increases in oil, wheat and other raw material shipments to the reich.

These sources said the plan was submitted while the Rumanian cabinet considered issuing a royal decree for virtual civil mobilization to accompany military mobilization already undertaken in part.

Acceptance of the German plan, it was said, would oblige Rumania to abandon her plan for civil mobilization and send at least 1,000,000 of her 1,400,000 men under arms back to their jobs in fields and factories.

The German plan also was said to include a promise to prevail upon Hungary, Bulgaria and Soviet Russia to abandon their territorial claims on Rumania and sign non-aggression pacts with her.

Germany was reported ready to sponsor a new railway agreement

Russians Claim Additional Gains

Advance Farther Into Far North: Finns Dig in On Isthmus

Helsinki—(AP)—Red army troops were reported smashing southward deeper into Finland in the far north today while on the Karelian isthmus war-weary Finns dug in for a dogged stand before the shattered city of Viipuri.

Observers along the Norwegian border in the North sea a new Soviet army offensive had reached Nautsi, some 75 miles south of the Arctic coast, after driving the Finns back eight miles.

Every building in Nautsi was ablaze at the end of a day's vicious fighting both in the air and on the ground.

The Russians were reported trying to envelop Viipuri, a battered hulk of a city which once housed 74,000 persons, by attacking across the ice of Viipuri bay.

The attacks were based on the captured fortress of Koivisto, reports indicated, but Finnish sources said any over-ice maneuver could only result in heavy red losses as the Finns still retain big guns on the jagged west coast which can sweep the bay.

Viipuri has been the object of the Russian invasion since the first days of the war and has been subject to almost continual bombing and shelling for three months.

Finnish forces have dug in around the city, determined to make its capture as costly as possible.

Intense aerial warfare was reported by both sides.

(The Russian communique said six Finnish planes were shot down.)

Three Robbers Take $7 And Porter's Lunch

Chicago—(AP)—Three holdup men took $7 from Benjamin Phillips of Elgin, a porter a the Sherman hotel for 25 years, while he was walking to work from his suburban train late last night and then they added the unkindest cut of all. They took his lunch pail, too.

The Realm Of Forgetfulness

Walter Winchell once said: "If we could only sleep as soundly at night as we do when it's time to get up." And isn't it the truth? Sometimes we waste hours counting illusive sleep, focus our eyes on some bright object, do under-the-cover calisthenics, repose on pine scented pillows—and still can't get chummy with Morpheus. But just let the inevitable alarm ring out the sad tidings that it's time to get up, and sleep envelopes us like a shroud. It's just one of the ironies of life!

G.O.P. Wins 2 Congress Seats At Ohio Polls

Leaders Call Result Blow To Roosevelt Chances For Third Term

NEW DEAL DEFEAT

Democratic Chairman Says November 'Will Tell Different Story'

Columbus, Ohio —(AP)— Jubilant Republicans toay cheered decisive victories in two Ohio congressional elections as portending a New Deal rout in November contests and as a crushing blow to any third-term aspirations of President Roosevelt.

Republicans selected Contractor-Politician J. Harry McGregor in a district represented for the last nine years by a Democrat; they named wealthy Frances Payne Bolton Ohio's first congresswoman to succeed her late husband from a traditionally Republican area. The terms are 10 months.

Tuesday's results, said Governor John W. Bricker, show that politically-strategic Ohio "is firmly entrenched in the Republican column." November's results "will tell a different story," replied Arthur L. Limbach, state Democratic chairman.

McGregor's election will "stimulate" party morale and be "a severe blow to New Dealers and the third-term ambitions of the president," Ed D. Schorr, Republican chairman predicted.

"Trend From New Deal"

"The result emphatically showed a trend away from the New Deal," asserted 43-year-old McGregor of West LaFayette, elected in the Seventeenth district, which is predominantly rural with a sprinkling of medium-sized industrial cities.

He defeated, 27,437 to 22,895, Byron B. Ashbrook, Johnstown banker and nephew of the late Representative William A. Ashbrook, who represented the District 23 of the last 33 years. The New Deal was a clear-cut issue in their campaign.

In the Twenty-second, embracing part of Cleveland, socially-prominent Mrs. Bolton, mother of three grown sons, polled 40,682 votes to 24,348 for Anthony A. Fleger, Parma attorney.

Fleger, riding the Roosevelt landslide of 1936, was the only Democrat ever to represent the district since it was formed in 1914. He lost his seat in 1938 to Chester C. Bolton, who died Oct. 29, two months before Representative Ashbrook.

Mrs. Bolton will be the seventh woman member of congress. The election of her and McGregor gave Ohio 16 house Republicans and 6 Democrats and increased to 168 total Republican representation in the 435-member house. There are seven vacancies.

Nieces Try to Break Will of Millionaire

Darlington, Wis.—(AP)—Two nieces of Wesley Wiley have brought suit in county court to break the will of the 81-year-old Shullsberg eccentric who left the bulk of his million dollar fortune to a second cousin.

Wiley, who died Jan 26, made a few specific bequests and directed that the residue go to Emma Houghton of Amboy, Ill. Heirs of his brother, the late Benjamin Wiley, were cut off with $1.

The suit was brought by Margaret Wiley Albrecht of Wauwatosa and Ann Wiley Travis of Lake Geneva, daughters of Benjamin Wiley. They allege that Wiley was not of sound mind when he made the will and that he was under undue influence.

Saves U. S. $10,000

Cleveland—(AP)—The election of Mrs. Frances P. Bolton as Ohio's first congresswoman saved the United States treasury $10,000. Congress, according to custom, had voted her that amount as the widow of a member.

"To accept this under the circumstances would be excessive," she wrote the treasury in returning the check.

Welles Applauded In Switzerland on His Way to Berlin

Zurich, Switzerland —(AP)— More than 1,000 Swiss turned out tonight to applaud Sumner Welles, President Roosevelt's special investigator, when he arrived at Zurich from Rome on his way to Berlin.

The American undersecretary of state, smiling, passed through ranks of red-jacketed, gold-braided cantonal police in full-dress uniform to an automobile which took him to a lakeside hotel, where he will remain until he takes a train tomorrow for Berlin.

On his arrival, at 6:54 p. m. (11:54 a. m., C. S. T.), Welles was greeted at the station by United States Consul General Arthur Frost and authorities of Zurich canton (province).

Zurich newspapers announced the time of his coming and the platform was crowded with curious Swiss.

Leland Harrison, United States minister to Switzerland, will leave Berne early tomorrow for a talk with Welles here before the latter's departure.

Welles is expected Friday in Berlin.

Michigan Farmer Arrested After Killing Two Men

Wounds Third Man Critically Before Surrendering to Police

Iron River, Mich. — (AP)— Running amuck with a 22 caliber revolver, a 45-year-old farmer killed two neighbors and critically wounded a third man before surrendering to police who trapped him after a gun battle in Bates township, near here, late yesterday.

The man, identified by Sheriff Emory King as Marion Marsch, was held in the Crystal Falls jail today. F. Lloyd Symmonds, Iron county prosecutor, said Marsch would be charged with murder.

The slain men were Peter Baker, 63, and Hans Matson, 63, who lived near Marsch's small farm.

Fires at Truck

Sheriff King said Marsch also wounded Anton Kunchynski 45 who was working in a nearby WPA tool shed, and then fired several shots into an approaching WPA truck while a score of terrified project workers fled into a woods. One bullet passed through the sleeve of Clarence Gustafson, the truck driver. He was cut by flying glass.

Marsch, gun in hand, was walking down the roadway when Police Chief John Rombouts of Iron River, Undersheriff Norman MacCormuck and two deputies arrived on the scene. The officers took cover in a roadside thicket and exchanged shots with Marsch, who fled.

The officers, accompanied by Sheriff King, surrounded Marsch's home. When they approached the door with drawn weapons, Marsch surrendered.

Officers said Marsch, a war veteran, complained that people had been talking about him and that he had been afraid. He lived by himself. The slain men were farmers and also lived alone.

Slayer of Infant Son Confesses Guilt: Must Die in Electric Chair

Philadelphia—(AP)—Mrs. Tillie Irelan, 35, who pleaded guilty to smothering her 20-months-old son and dismembering his body, was found guilty of murder in the first degree today and sentenced to die in the electric chair.

The former domestic, who predicted earlier she would "beat the rap" paled as Judge Harry S. McDevitt pronounced sentence. That was her only sign of emotion.

Mrs. Irelan, haughty and defiant when first arrested, changed her plea three weeks ago and admitted she killed her son and cut up his body with a hacksaw Dec 15. The torso was found in a gutter near Temple university.

During testimony to fix the degree of guilt, she maintained she smothered her child because he was "not normal." Previously detectives quoted her as saying she wanted to get rid of the boy because he interfered with her freedom.

Her counsel announced he would appeal. The child's father was cleared of any connection with the death.

American Diplomats Trying To Check Growth of Autarchy After War Ends, Hull Says

Washington —(AP)— Secretary Hull said today that conversations were under way between American diplomats and foreign governments all over the world in the interest of preventing the forces of autarchy, regimentation and economic totalitarianism from gaining control after the end of the war.

Hull revealed that copies of his recent statements concerning contacts made with neutrals with a view to establishing a better world order after peace had been sent to all American representatives abroad, so that these diplomats could call them to the attention of the governments to which they are accredited.

Asked at his press conference whether this referred solely to capitals of neutral nations, Hull said it meant all capitals.

The action was taken, he said, with a view to making preparations for post-war adjustments, economic and military. He emphasized that the conversations had nothing to do with conditions during the war.

In the forces of peace and stability—especially economic forces—Hull said, are not organized preparatory to the transition and reconstruction period after the war, the forces of autarchy and regimentation and economic totalitarianism probably would have the same tendency they had after the World war.

This tendency, he said, was to spread their practices on an ever-narrowing and more disastrous basis, through increasing areas of the world, with much worse destructive effects than followed a similar policy after 10 years of the post-war period.

The secretary of state refused to go at this time into the nature of the reaction from governments contacted already, except to say his preliminary impression was that it was favorable.

Try to Force Showdown on Loan Measure

BALLOT DUE TODAY

BULLETIN

Washington—(AP)—The house passed today a bill to give the Export-Import bank another $100,000,000 loan to Finland. The measure passed the house 168 to 51. As finally approved it was a revised version of the bill passed recently by the senate.

Washington —(AP)— The house tentatively agreed today to prohibit future loans by the Export-Import bank to any country in default on its war debts to the United States.

There wasn't a ripple of opposition to the proposal and there was no record vote. Before acting on it, however, the house bickered for more than an hour on proposals to extend the prohibition to agencies of defaulting foreign government as well as the governments themselves and to countries in default on their obligations to private citizens of the United States.

An amendment by Representative Keefe (R-Wis) to the "Finnish loan bill," to forbid Export-Import loans to agencies of defaulting governments was rejected by a teller vote of 128 to 95.

Washington—(AP)—A coalition of Democrats and Republicans attempted today to force a house showdown on the issue of granting Finland a direct loan of $20,000,000 or more to buy arms.

Members of the bi-partisan group were seeking to eliminate the prohibition against arms purchases from the senate-approved bill authorizing a $100,000,000 increase in the Export-Import bank's capital.

Administration leaders expressed confidence, however, that all amendments would be beaten and

'Iron Lung Boy' Is Taken to Chicago

No Hitch in Removing Infantile Paralysis Victim From Milwaukee

Milwaukee — (AP) — Without any hitches, and following a well-planned schedule, Jerome Safur, 17, Milwaukee's "iron lung boy," was placed on a train today and carried to Chicago where he is to receive continued treatment for infantile paralysis which crippled him last September.

The transfer began at the Milwaukee hospital where Jerome has been a patient. He was placed in a portable respirator brought here from Chicago, and operated by electricity or with a hand pump.

When he was accustomed to the hand pump, Jerome and the lung were placed in the hospital elevator and then moved into the van. The van took him to the Milwaukee road depot, where a special car was waiting. Then, before the train pulled out, the van was routed to Chicago where it was to meet Jerome and take him to the Chicago hospital.

Jerome was brave but a bit cautious. He advised Dr. A. I. Doktorsky of Chicago, who was manning the hand pump, to speed it up a bit. The doctor advised him not to worry and asked him, "who's running this, anyway?"

"Who's the star of the show?" Jerome grinned back. His mother, Mrs. Sarah Safur, cried as she watched the transfer.

Murders Suspected After Portions of 3 Skeletons are Found

Richwood, W. Va. — (AP) — State Trooper W. L. Pence reported today that parts of three human skeletons had been found in a cardboard box on a mountain road 35 miles north of this central West Virginia lumber town.

"The bones were chopped and broken apart at the joints and very roughly handled," Pence said, adding:

"There is a possibility that they came from a medical college or a doctor's office but the manner in which they were treated leads to the opinion that the persons were murdered."

He said a physician had identified the bones as those of a child, an "older person" whose age was not specified, and of an adult about 5 feet, 10 inches tall.

The box, found by a WPA worker, apparently had been hurled from an automobile, the trooper said. Its condition indicated, Pence added, that it had lain along the highway about a month.

Although there were more than 30 bones in the box none of the arm bones, ribs or skulls of the skeletons were found. A posse was formed to search along the road to determine if any bones had been thrown out at other points.

30 Persons Forced to Flee Burning Building

Milwaukee —(AP)— Thirty persons, including 19 children, were driven from a three-story frame rooming house at 1910-12 W. Wells street by fire early today.

Youth Wounded as Police Bullets End Race in Stolen Car

CAPTURED IN STOLEN CAR

Gaylord DeRyke, 18, left, and Harold Haney, 20, both of Kalamazoo, Mich., narrowly escaped a date with death last night when they attempted to escape capture near Appleton in a stolen car. Jack Frenzl, county traffic policemen, fired upon the car when they failed to stop, one bullet grazing Haney's jaw and the other piercing the hat worn by his companion. DeRyke has his fingers poked through the bullet holes in his hat. The youths confessed stealing the car at Kalamazoo to "look for work." Two girls riding with the pair were unhurt. Kalamazoo authorities and the Federal Bureau of Investigation have been notified by Sheriff John Lappen who is holding the two youths at the county jail. (Post-Crescent Photo)

4 SHOTS FIRED

Gaylord DeRyke, 18, and 2 Girl Companions Unhurt

A 2-day flight in a stolen automobile ended for two Kalamazoo, Mich, youths last night when police bullets creased the driver's jaw and whistled through his companion's hat.

The two youths, captured on Highway 41 near Appleton by Jack Frenzl, county traffic policeman, are Harold Haney, 20, who was wounded, and Gaylord DeRyke, 18. They had two girl companions, both residents of the town of Grand Chute, with them in the car but neither of the girls was hurt.

The capture, culminating a 10 hour search in Outagamie, Waupaca and Winnebago counties, was made on Highway 41 west of Appleton near the Spencer road.

The youths confessed stealing the car at Kalamazoo Monday, according to Sheriff John Lappen who has notified Kalamazoo authorities and the Federal Bureau of Investigation because the car had been taken across the state line.

Frenzl spotted the car on Highway 10 just west of Appleton and he turned and gave chase when he saw it answered the description of the stolen machine. When the youths saw him they sped west and then turned south on Highway 41.

Turned on Siren

The patrolman reported he made the turn onto Highway 41 at about 70 miles at hour. He turned on his siren and his red light, but the youths failed to heed it, he said. The attendant of a service station, where they had obtained gas earlier in the evening, had reported that he had seen a gun in the car, according to Frenzl, and when they peered through the rear window, he said he thought they might be preparing to shoot.

Frenzl said he then shot at the tires of the car. Two of the bullets pierced the machine, one striking the driver and the other piercing the hat worn by DeRyke who was in the back seat. Haney stopped the car and Frenzl ordered them to remain in the machine. A passing trucker was told to get help. Frenzl found a loaded revolver in the ditch.

Search for the car was started shortly after noon yesterday when Harry DeBruin, who operates a service station at Leppla's corners, reported an abandoned car. Later it was learned that the car had been out of gas and the youths had it pushed to the station where they secured three gallons in exchange for an overcoat. The youths said they would redeem the coat the following day, police were told.

Gets Ride With Pair

Checking on the car, the sheriff department learned that it had been stolen. A short time later Milton Archiquette, about 27, an Oneida Indian, reported at the sheriff's office that he had been picked up by two youths near Sun Prairie where he was hitch-hiking. They drove him to Appleton, he said, after stopping at a station and getting gas in exchange for some clothing.

A police broadcast was sent out and authorities of Winnebago and Waupaca counties warned to be on the lookout for the car. Appleton police found that the young men had secured gas at a service station on W. Wisconsin avenue in exchange for a suitcase of clothing. About 9 o'clock last night the car stopped for 15 gallons of gas at the Triangle Service station on Highway 10 west of Appleton and the youths drove off without paying after sending the attendant for candy bars. The attendant said he noticed a gun in the car.

Barricades were set up at Dale and Hortonville and all county traffic patrolmen and sheriff's officers were patrolling the highways in search of the pair. Frenzl was driving toward Appleton when he noticed the westbound car, a 1940 Oldsmobile with white-walled tires.

Cloudburst Causes Heavy Damage in California Area; 3,000 Homeless in State

San Francisco—(AP)—A cloudburst sent three raging streams down on Berkeley, Calif., and caused damage estimated at $100,000 within 10 minutes today.

Harry Goodrich, city engineer of Berkeley, who estimated the damage, said the most severely struck sections "look like they had been hit by an earthquake."

Already, through many parts of northern California, floods had forced some 3,000 persons from their homes and caused property and crop damage of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

At Berkeley, Strawberry creek, which runs through the University of California campus, swept into the business section. It tore stocks from shelves, overturned show cases.

The flash flood burst through the floors of four business buildings at Euclid and Hearst avenues, near the north gate of the campus. It raised havoc with everything within four feet of the floor. The flood swept down Hearst avenue to Berkeley's main business district, leaving a foot of mud in its wake.

Carries Auto Away

It turned down University avenue on to Shattuck where it picked up and carried an automobile for half a block.

Another stream raced down Euclid avenue, tearing away a block of hillside, piling dirt over yards and against houses. A four-car garage was torn down. The slide crash-

Seaway Opponents Ask Further Study

Albany, N. Y. —(AP)— Opponents of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway treaty with Canada unanimously urged today speedy approval by the legislature of proposals for a committee study to determine whether the waterway is "justified."

A resolution adopted at a mass meeting asserted the project "threatens the economic security of labor, transportation and industry in both the United States and Canada" and added:

"Any alliance with Canada, a belligerent country, in this period of the war would not be in accordance with the spirit of neutrality which the United States must maintain."

Foreign Planes Over Holland Face Gunfire

Amsterdam —(AP)— Foreign planes flying high over the Netherlands, on the direct air route between Germany and Britain, drew heavy anti-aircraft gunfire early today without apparent results.

The chief of the Amsterdam air defense district, Lieutenant General Van Ermel Scherer, said 10 planes were fired on, but were so high that the possibility of hits was small.

Almost daily affairs since war started, aerial violations of Netherlands neutrality have resulted in at least 11 protests in Berlin and four in London.

Germans assert that the Netherlands is a regular gateway for British planes reaching Germany.

Patrolman Nabs 2 After Struggle

Third Man Escaped During Fight in Which Three Shots Were Fired

Plymouth, Wis. —(AP)— Patrolman Norman Bouchette captured two men in a hand-to-hand fight early today after the pair and a third man who escaped drove into a filling station to buy gasoline for a stolen car. Three shots were fired by Bouchette in the scuffle.

Chief of Police Glen Zimmerman said that one man, identified as Allen Klink, 24, Eau Claire, a former inmate of the state reformatory, would be charged with possession of burglary tools.

In the car were found 14 sticks of dynamite, burglary and safe cracking tools, and $185 in nickels, dimes and quarters, Zimmerman reported.

Charges of larceny of an automobile at Superior have been filed against Klink, and Wisconsin Rapids police also have four counts of larceny against him, Zimmerman said. He asserted that the identity of the third man who escaped was known.

The second man in custody, Zimmerman said, apparently had met the other two in a tavern near Fond du Lac. No decision was made as to a charge against him.

Patrolman Bouchette accosted the trio when he noticed that the car carried licenseplates stolen from another car here Saturday.

Zimmerman said Klink was sentenced to two years for car theft, escaped, stole another car and was sentenced to four additional years, having been released last June.

Pardons Denied to 7 Waukesha County Men

Madison—(AP)—Governor Heil denied pardons today to seven men convicted in Waukesha county in June, 1938, on charges of conspiring to violate the state gambling laws through formation of a slot machine syndicate.

The men, sentenced to serve six months each in the Milwaukee House of Correction, had received several stays of execution during trial of other cases arising out of a grand jury investigation.

They are Hubert Voss, Sullivan, Edward Woodruff and Joseph Jacquest, Pewaukee; A. Joseph Martin, Delafield; Clarence Seider, Okauchee; Paul Nowatske, Mukwonago and Otto Schroeder.

Injuries in Collision Are Fatal to Farmer

Green Bay—(AP)—Michael Lepak, 42-year-old Pulaski farmer whose skull was fractured in a headon automobile collision Friday, died of his injuries in a hospital here last night. His brother, Frank, 48, and Leon Leonhard, 34, both of Pulaski, also were injured in the accident.

Accused of Taking $50 Under False Pretenses

Theresa, Wis.—(AP)—Elmer P. Zimdars, Milwaukee, was arrested here today on a charge of obtaining $50 from Edwin Hartman as a down payment for a job he is alleged to have promised to get Hartman as an inspector in the state beverage tax division.

Justice of the Peace Elmer Genzmer of Marshfield issued a warrant for Zimdars on Hartman's complaint. The warrant specifically charged obtaining money under false pretenses.

Zimdars, disbarred Milwaukee attorney, recently was a witness in a Milwaukee John Doe inquiry into reports that "job racket" was being conducted there.

Genzmer notified John Roach, director of the beverage division at Madison. The latter denied that any jobs in his department had been "for sale."

Dewey, Vandenberg Test of Strength Is Certain in Nebraska

Lincoln, Neb.—(AP)— A test of strength between Republican presidential candidates Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan was assured today in Nebraska.

Lee Rankin, Lincoln attorney, filed petitions yesterday putting Dewey's name on the April 9 primary presidential preference ballot. He said he acted on instructions from Dewey headquarters.

Vandenberg supporters retaliated by filing petitions immediately for their candidate

The action wrecked Nebraska G. O. P. leaders' avowed plans for an uninstructed delegation to the national convention.

Active campaigns by both candidates were foreseen. Dewey will speak here March 6 at a Republican founders' day meeting and negotiations are under way to obtain Vandenberg as a speaker at the state party convention in May.

President Roosevelt's name appeared likely to be the only entry on the Democratic preference ballot. It was filed by Democratic National Committeeman James C. Quigley several days ago

Capitalism Is Victim of Misuse, U. W. Alumni Told

Democratic State Doesn't Always Offer Best Surroundings

Milwaukee —(AP)— America's economic troubles should be blamed on misuse of the capitalistic system rather than on the capitalistic system itself, Philip D. Reed, board chairman of the General Electric company, declared here last night.

Reed, a University of Wisconsin graduate, addressed 1,000 persons at the "On Wisconsin" dinner of the University of Wisconsin Alumni club of Milwaukee.

He asserted that capitalism, or free enterprise, functions best under a democracy but that the democratic state did not always offer "natural, healthy surroundings" either for capitalism or for a highly socialized economy.

Discussing public ownership of utilities, Reed declared:

"Again and again we have seen that even in capable and public spirited hands, the public must sooner or later (and generally sooner) suffer from government ownership's bureaucratic inefficiency, inertia and complete lack of the profit motive's driving urge to find better and cheaper ways to do the job and to enlarge the service."

Suggest Remedy

Reed suggested that the best preparation for the part business is to play "in the economic rough and tumble that may lie ahead" is "a good look at itself in the mirror and a course of diet and training to remove anything not functionally essential."

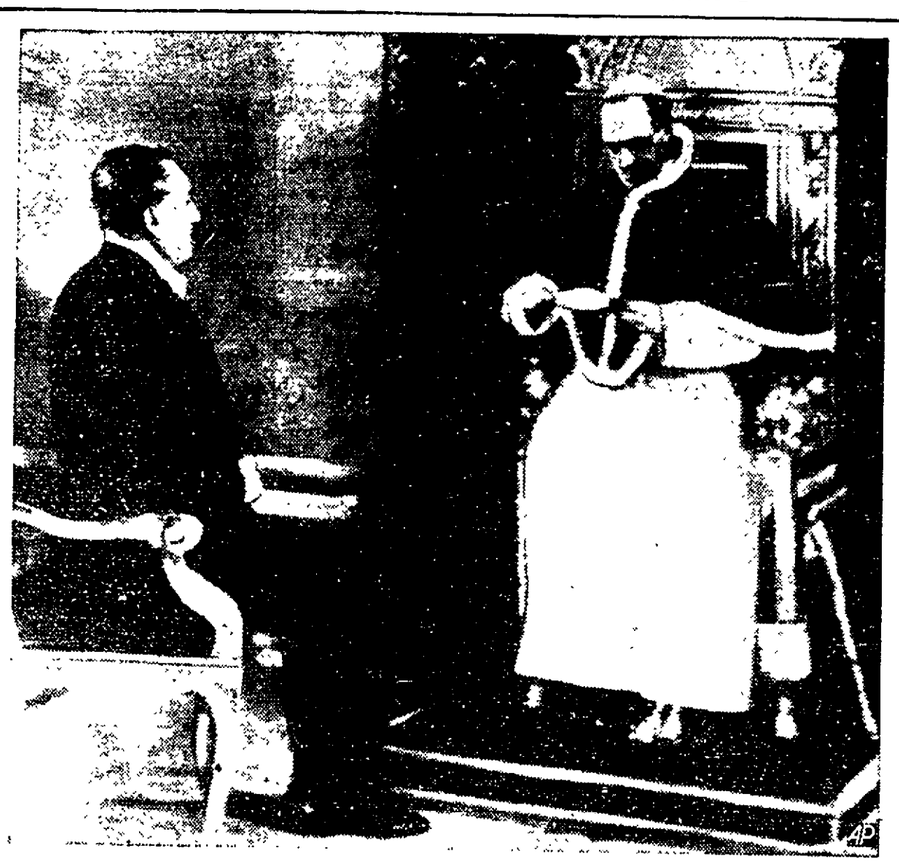

He asserted that business should "restore its corporate figure," put "tone and vitality into every part," oppose programs which would weaken free enterprise and look to the future with "confidence and high courage."

Speaking briefly of his alma mater, Reed said:

"Wisconsin is known for progressiveness in education and its advanced thinking in the fields of social and political science. At times, indeed, it has been considered 'pink' in its viewpoint, but the passage of a few years has in most cases demonstrated that what was mistaken for 'pinkness' was in fact leadership in its thinking plus courage to blaze the trail."

Woman Gets Divorce on Charge of Non-Support

Marion Williams, 35, Menasha, was granted a divorce from James Williams, 44, Milwaukee, by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon. The plaintiff charged non-support and said there had been a voluntary separation of more than five years. The couple married at Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 9, 1928 and separated in 1932.

TAYLOR PAYS FIRST VISIT TO POPE PIUS XII

Pope Pius XII (right) is shown as he received Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican. The Pope is holding the president's letter expressing hope for "reestablishment of a more permanent peace on the foundations of freedom and the assurance of the integrity of all nations under God." This photo was telephotoed from Rome to London, and then radioed to New York.

Vote Due Today On Loan Measure the loans restricted to the purchase of non-military supplies in this country.

They postponed voting until today because many members went home during a snowstorm yesterday raising the possibility that their absence might have strengthened the opposition.

Contrasting sharply with verbal bouquets for Finland's "courageous" stand against the Russians, yesterday's six hour debate crackled at times with denunciations of the bill as a "cloak" for increasing the general lending authority of the Export-Import bank.

Representative Eaton (R-N. J.) proposed that the bank be allowed to lend both Finland and China funds for any purpose they desired.

Representative Fish (R-N. Y.) wanted to direct the bank to make a $20,000,000 loan to Finland and eliminate the balance of the proposed capital increase.

Representative Williams (D-Mo.), on the other hand, said that Democratic members of the banking committee were opposed to loans for military purchases because they were not in accord with "sound banking practice."

The house rejected today a Republican effort to amend the bill to strike at Latin American countries which have defaulted on bonds sold to United States citizens.

The amendment, offered by Representative Kean (R-N. J.), would have prohibited the Export-Import bank from lending any of its proposed $100,000,000 capital increase to any country in default on its obligations to private citizens in this country. It was defeated by a standing vote announced as 135 to 86.

Kean told the house his amendment was aimed principally at Latin American countries, which he said, had defaulted on about 80 per cent of their bonds held by American citizens.

"There is no reason for making this bill a debt-collecting bill," said Representative Patman (D-Texas).

Michigan Republican Scores Welles' Visit

Washington — (AP)—Representative Hoffman (R-Mich.) said yesterday that President Roosevelt had sent an envoy across the seas "in the opening drive for a place in the tragedy now being played by those who have abroad successfully destroyed democracy."

The Michigan Republican referred to the visit being made to Europe by Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state.

In a statement placed in the congressional record, Hoffman added:

"While talking peace, expressing a desire to keep this country out of war, President Roosevelt has been guilty of provocative acts, the natural result of which would lead us into war. A failure at home, with a record which shows that he has no solution for our domestic problems; no regard for his promises; no concern for the future welfare of our children, he is now seeking to distract our attention from our homeland, to become entangled in foreign affairs and to place himself in a position where, at our nation's expense, he can be hailed as the peacemaker of the world."

Will Not Oppose Third Term Issue

Massachusetts Senator Refuses to 'be a Party' In Movement

Washington — (AP)—Senator Walsh (D-Mass.), who has opposed some major administration policies, said today he would not "be a party to any opposition" to a third term for President Roosevelt.

He added a forecast that only presidential intervention would block renomination, since it "appears this is the general sentiment both in and out of congress."

Walsh, chairman of the naval committee, is up for reelection himself this year. He has split with the administration over the neutrality act and reorganization of government departments and the supreme court.

Favors Farley

The senator told reporters he would support Postmaster-General Farley for the presidency at the Democratic convention "if the opportunity comes," but added:

"I certainly have no intention of opposing the president's renomination if by silence or otherwise he indicates willingness to accept it."

The state Democratic organization in Massachusetts has pledged its slate of candidates for delegates to the national convention to Farley, with the understanding they will be released to support Mr. Roosevelt for a third term if such a move is made at the convention.

Walsh added that his support of the president would be forthcoming "if there is a genuine and overwhelming demand in the convention for him."

Garner Is Entered in New York State Race

New York—(AP)—President John N. Garner is an entry in the fight for New York state delegates to the Democratic national convention.

His supporters filed by the last midnight deadline slates of Garner delegates and alternates in eight congressional districts in the city and in unspecified districts upstate.

Names on the Garner forces' petition were those of little-known persons in political circles. It was indicated that names of greater political significance would be substituted early next week.

Delegates, alternates and state committee members will be chosen in the April primary.

between Rumania and Hungary to make it easier to transport vital supplies to the reich.

Authoritative quarters said it was extremely doubtful whether Rumania would accept the plan because the price — a virtual nazi monopoly of her exports—was considered far too high.

The proposed civil mobilization order would give the government control of all industry—similar to the plan already in operation in Turkey.

The presence of allied and Turkish armies in the Near East within reach of Rumania's border was said by diplomats to be making the Balkan country cautious about accepting German guarantees.

Dr. Karl Clodius, Germany's ace economic expert, postponed a visit to Bucharest until next week. Observers said this was to give Rumania time to study the German plan.

The recent favorable trend of French and British relations with Rumania, wherein the allies resumed shipping raw materials, war planes and armaments to Rumania, was seen as another bar to the German proposal.

Meanwhile, Rumania was scheduled to call an additional 200,000 reservists to the colors March 1, swelling the army to 1,600,000—virtually general mobilization.

ed into a riding academy stable, injuring some of the 22 horses stabled there.

Police rescued Mrs. Rose Lescinsky and her two-year-old child, Eugene, after four feet of debris crashed into her home.

The third stream ran down Fairmont drive. J. H. Millar carried his wife to safety as water raced through his front door.

Torrential rains of unseasonable warmth poured down on the mountain snow, flushing it into the already deluged valleys. Normally dry creek beds became torrents. Rivers burst their banks under the pressure.

Issues Warning

E. H. Fletcher, federal meteorologist at Sacramento, warned that a flood of "serious proportion" was upon the Sacramento and tributary rivers.

At Dunsmuir, on the upper stretches of the Sacramento, families moved from their homes.

At Gerber, midway between Sacramento and the Oregon line, 500 persons became alarmed when a river levee weakened. Crews from Red Bluff and Corning removed refugees.

Tehama, near Gerber, was isolated. The business and residential district of the town of 400 was awash.

Rivers and creeks in the rich Sacramento valley ran at flood stage but prospects of fair weather brought hope of averting serious consequences.

Officials of the state legislature considered calling a special session "for the purpose of taking such action as may be necessary under the usual conditions caused by devastating floods."

National guardsmen were ordered by Governor Culbert L. Olson yesterday to help evacuate 70 families from homes in Yolo county, where the Sacramento river was over its banks. Elsewhere, guardsmen turned over equipment for use by local authorities.

State department of agriculture officials said California's rich agricultural industry suffered extensive damage, the amount of which could not be estimated now.

The cities of Redding, in northern California, Napa in the north San Francisco bay region, and Santa Cruz, on the central coast, saw flood waters covering extensive areas.

The only apparent death blamed to the flood was reported at Redding, where Irene Clemens was missing after an auto in which she was riding overturned into a swollen creek five miles north of town. Otis McDonald, the driver, was rescued after being under water eight minutes.

Welles Should be Better Equipped for Mission as Result of Visit to Il Duce

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(AP)—President Roosevelt's peace-sleuth, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, couldn't have been assigned to a better spot to start his investigation of prospects than in the Eternal City with Signor Mussolini, and this may prove to be a bit of rare good-fortune.

There can be few men who have acquired so much information about the belligerents and their innermost aims, their asking prices and their selling prices, as is stowed away in the shrewd and far-seeing brain of the fascist chieftain. Other European leaders don't fool him much if they claim one thing and think another.

As a much sought-after non-belligerent (he himself uses this term rather than "neutral," to show that he has preferences and carries a gun) he has had exceptional chances to make an intimate study of the position from all angles. If he has chosen to talk freely with his visitor—and the American diplomat has been most cordially received—Il Duce likely will have disclosed the results of some keen mind-reading which should be invaluable to Welles in dealing with the warring leaders.

Difficult Mission

The undersecretary's mission—to arrive at the exact, unvarnished truth—is a most difficult one at best. He will be consulting statesmen with whom he isn't well acquainted personally.

For this reason his work must of necessity be to a large degree psychological, lest he place a wrong value on the spoken word. One judges that President Roosevelt will put much reliance on his emissary's assay of the conversations. Perhaps Welles' biggest test will come at his next stop, when he visits Herr Hitler.

The German fuehrer is at times one of the world's most difficult personages to understand, because he has a habit of letting his emotions take him cloud-riding. Some there are who think he does this deliberately to impress or to disconcert the other fellow.

Be that as may, Mussolini has his axis partner pretty well figured out by this time, including the flights of fancy which at one time or another have irked the practical fascist leader no end. Il Duce also has had an opportunity to get a good slant on the astute Birmingham businessman who is Premier Chamberlain of Britain, and the bull of provence, Premier Daladier, who now rules France under dictatorial powers granted him by his parliament.

Mussolini Cooperative

So if Mussolini has felt well-disposed toward Mr. Roosevelt's search for peace, Welles has gone forward with good equipment for the remaining stages of his journey. And he has arranged to see Il Duce again at the completion of the European visit.

As a matter of fact there is every reason to believe that the Italian leader will be delighted to give full cooperation to any legitimate effort to halt the war. Actually this paradoxical personage, who has preached the virtues of war and used force for conquest, has quietly been working vigorously for peace himself, and only slackened in his efforts recently because he saw that the time hadn't yet arrived for mediation.

Mussolini has rattled the saber so hard, and declaimed so loudly that war is "a natural event in the life of a people," that the world at large has come to regard him as pretty much of a martial figure. However, it can be said that at the outbreak of the war he was one of the chief exponents of peace among the statesmen of unhappy Europe.

Stood for Peace

Even a year before that, at Munich, he was one of those chiefly responsible for keeping the German-Czecho-Slovak crisis from precipitating a general war. He stood for peace. I saw him there, his face drawn and lined, and clearly showing the strain under which he was laboring.

On Aug. 26, just before Hitler invaded Poland, Mussolini was said in a responsible Italian quarter to be taking an active part in a "last attempt to save the peace of Europe." After the German war-machine ground across the Polish frontier, but before the Anglo-French allies had yet declared war, Il Duce tried again. That was the period when he cabled Canadian Premier Mackenzie King that he would leave no effort untried "to safeguard the peace of the world."

He proposed a five-power conference—Britain, France, Germany, Poland and Italy—which would settle not only the Polish war but would deal with other European problems at the same time. That failed to materialize because the allies made the German evacuation of Poland a condition to such a conference.

Now Mussolini has a further opportunity to try to halt the war by assisting in the peace efforts of Mr. Roosevelt and Pope Pius, who are coordinating their labors. There is no reason to doubt that Il Duce will lend his full and very powerful support.

Many Democrats Owe Their Jobs to Roosevelt's Hold

Took Office Because of President's Following, Writer Says

BY W. B. RAGSDALE

Washington —(AP)— Two-thirds of the Democrats in congress owe their jobs either to President Roosevelt or to the political upheaval which he precipitated. This has something to do with the way the third-term idea has taken hold.

In addition, the president has a strong hold on state jobholders. In 1932, the Democrats held 26 governorships, 15 of them in the solid south or in the so-called border states which are more often Democratic than Republican. At the peak of New Deal power, after the 1936 elections, the Democrats held 38 governorships. Two others were in the possession of friendly Farmer-Laborites or progressives.

That picture was changed in 1938. The Democrats now have 30 governors. The upturn swept the farmer laborites and progressives out in Minnesota and Wisconsin, too.

But the losses of governorships are believed by many politicians to have strengthened the third-term demand rather than to have weakened it. In some of these states, the Democrats had not commanded the state houses within the memory of full-grown men until Mr. Roosevelt came along. He was not in the running in 1936 when the losses occurred. To their minds, his name is associated with victory. From them comes some of the third-term clamor.

In congress, 173 of the 261 Democratic house members have been elected since Mr. Roosevelt took the stumps in that fateful 1932 campaign. Forty-three of the 69 Democratic senators have come into office since then.

Both Parties Involved in 3rd Term Arguments in Illinois

Chicago— (AP)—The argument about a third term for President Roosevelt involved Republicans as well as Democrats in Illinois today. Primary campaign developments included:

1. Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago said that the president told him, he was tired and felt like retiring. But the mayor said he replied "you must finish the great work you started." Kelly declared the president "has got to be renominated; he has got to be drafted," and added that the full Illinois delegation to the national convention would be for him.

2. At Waukegan, State's Attorney Charles E. Mason said the president's name would not appear on the Lake county preferential ballots April 9, because the Roosevelt petitions sponsored in Illinois by the Kelly-Nash Democratic organization didn't bear a signed declaration of candidacy.

3. Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes predicted the president's name would be ordered printed on all ballots by the state certifying board, which will meet Saturday at Springfield

4. Benjamin S. Adamowski, anti-organization candidate for senator, said in his first speech that Kelly-Nash leaders were using the president's name as a "smoke screen" and for political self-protection. Adamowski called Senator James M. Slattery, his opponent, a "straddler."

5. The Kelly-Nash-Horner ticket headed by Slattery for senator and Harry B. Hershey for governor went to Springfield for its first downstate rally. The anti-organization group headed by Adamowski and John Stelle, Hershey's opponent, will open its downstate tour Saturday night at McLeansboro, Steele's home.

Information From Census to Aid in Drawing Tax Plan

Future System Will Affect Low Income Groups, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Just why the conservative elements in congress are raising such a hullabaloo about the proposed inquisitiveness of the census takers is a bit difficult to understand. The underlying purpose in getting the information, of course, is to prepare a tax plan some day that will extract taxes from the low-income groups, and for years it has been a contention of conservatives that the tax base should be broadened.

Lawrence

It is true that what a person earns or receives in the way of income is his own private affair, but there is no reason why he should not divulge the secret to an honest government which will merely use the results for statistical analysis. As a matter of fact, virtually every piece of information being sought by the census takers could have been obtained by the bureau of internal revenue under existing income tax laws, but the treasury has long since found it uneconomical to check up on low-income groups.

The fact that a decennial census is being taken affords an opportunity for the treasury to get through another department of the government whatever information it may need. There has long been a belief that federal income tax returns are not being filed by hundreds of thousands, if not millions of persons, who at least actually should be filling out the income tax blanks and reporting their annual income.

Handling Information

As for the argument that local politicians will get hold of the information, this can easily be overcome. The census takers can be instructed to put every citizen's answer in an envelope addressed to the census bureau in Washington where it can be examined and, if it is not properly filled out, further information can be sought. But the local employes of the census need not really make records at all. In fact, it is doubtful whether census employes need necessarily be assigned to their own neighborhoods. Practically all the objections that have been raised to the possibility that the information may leak out can be overcome in actual administration of the census-taking law.

A lot of information is needed to determine the economic condition of the American people. It has been stated by the president, for instance, that one-third of the population is ill-clad, ill-housed and ill-nourished. Nobody ca nprove or disprove that declaration, nor can anyone in official dom tell exactly how many of the people in that condition are Negroes or whites and how many are in the south or in the north, how many in the cities and how many in rural areas.

The so-called bathtub census is desired by industry, as is much information of an industrial or business character. Just what kind of a market does the United States represent for the future? Statements are being made every day that America is "finished," that there are no more frontiers, and yet a better distribution of purchasing power might result in an increased demand for certain products and necessities of life.

Has Been Valuable

At the bottom of all reasoning on our economic status is accurate statistical data. The census once every 10 years has in the past been valuable, but at no time has it been more important to find out the details of American economic life than it is today. The census bureau has always handled confidential information satisfactorily. Despite the fact that census employes have been considered beneficiaries of political patronage, the administrative side of the census operation has for many years been an efficient agency of government. The difficulty is not that the census bureau will not keep a secret, but that the committees of congress every now and then call for information which violates the right of privacy.

Congress in recent years has been inclined to make public all facts about income, but a revulsion of feeling has caused the repeal of various measures of this type. Perhaps when there is a lot of confidential data in Washington about persons in the middle-income and low-income groups, there will be a stronger public opinion in favor of holding the records inviolate than there has been in the past. But the gathering of the information is for a constructive purpose. Its misuse is a contingency that can be prevented by an alert congress.

Salary Ordinance Adopted Without Change From 1939

Council Approves Extension of Time for Payment of Taxes

Kaukauna—The common council last night adopted a 1940 salary ordinance which made no changes from the schedule in effect last year. The fire and police commission anent the matter of restoring a 1932 wage cut to firemen and policemen, said it could "only reiterate" its recommendation of Feb 6 which read the commission approved granting of the restoral of wages the "council saw fit."

It was brought out that while the ordinance each year provided $1 000 bonds for all policemen, none had ever been posted. Alderman T. J. Seggelink spoke for obeying the ordinance. James E. McFadden, chief of police, said that for 25 years this provision had been ignored and the city's money saved. Alderman George Luebke suggested that as long as the city had got by for 25 years it could be tried once more.

Seggelink moved that the policemen be required to post bonds, but he was reminded that the salary ordinance, which had already been passed, made all necessary provision. Seggelink said the purpose of the bonds was to protect the city against suits which might be started against policemen.

Tax Extension

The council approved an ordinance extending the time for payment of real estate taxes, without penalty, to July 1. Taxpayers must file an affidavit of inability to pay the levy now.

Seggelink read a report written by Robert Hagman, suggesting tree and shrub additions to Riverside and LaFollette parks, to be had for transportation charges from the state Wisconsin Rapids nursery. Hagman recommended 525 trees be planted. The city clerk was instructed to order the trees, with the planting to be in the hands of the board of public works.

Mayor Lewis F. Nelson made several remarks. The mayor said many residents had the idea that the recent $140,000 utility bond issue was raised through the general tax levy; this was not true, the issue to be taken care of through the revenues of the utility department.

Explains Profit

Nelson commented on a $15,000 profit the utility showed for December, about double the normal profit. This was due to the contract with the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal company when the trade preliminary to beginning of the power project was made, Nelson explained. Under a clause of this agreement, it states that from Jan. 1, 1939, to Jan. 1, 1948, the company's revenue shall not exceed the amount paid to it in 1938. Thus the company could not collect its usual charge in December, as its 1939 revenues had already equalled its 1938 income.

The power project, Nelson said, was proceeding ahead of schedule, with the powerhouse to be finished Sept. 1 and other parts of the project before that. Citizens who thought the mayor and council were responsible for not having more WPA workers from Kaukauna were mistaken, the mayor brought out, stating that the city was only entitled to a certain number under state regulations.

The aldermen discussed changing the hours of voting, but took no action, the hours remaining from 6 a. m. to 8 p. m. A petition of Margreta Lehrer, 205 Dodge street, asking that property of hers be detached from the city, for inclusion in the town of Buchanan, was referred to the city attorney and ordinance committee.

An application of Richard Otte, Wilson street, for the position of bridge tender, was referred to the board of public works.

Pegler Says Picketing Has Reached the Point of Abuse

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—On a recent evening in Washington, as Mrs. Roosevelt was about to enter a movie theater for the premier of the Abe Lincoln show, there was a moment of consternation when it was discovered that the house was being picketed as a protest against a local Jim Crow ordinance or custom. It is my understanding that the picket line was lifted long enough to permit Mrs. Roosevelt to enter.

Pegler

With the merits of this particular case I will not tangle, knowing too little about them, but I make bold enough to say that picketing has been overdone to the point of abuse and that, by many unfair and contemptuous impositions on the public, the picket line has lost sympathy and authority.

A notorious case was settled recently in Chicago. There a picket line which had been maintained for six years at the Edgewater Beach hotel, on the north side, was suddenly withdrawn without any explanation to the public. The hotel management had nothing to explain. Umbrella Mike Boyle, the business agent of the electricians' union, had issued a strike call back in 1934 as a result of some dispute whose merits never were clearly revealed and had maintained the line day and night, in bitter winter and blistering summer.

Picketing became an occupation with some of the trudging sentinels, and after some time the line became a joke. Nobody paid any attention to it, and, far from helping the cause of labor, the demonstration degraded into a cheap display of personal power by a professional unioneer and politician. It was a discredit to organized labor, and the final act was an insult to both the rank and file and the public. Apparently there never was a genuine strike.

The public does have an interest in picket lines. A picket line is an appeal to the public to boycott a place of business on the ground that an employer has dealt unfairly with the workers. That was the old presumption, but it has been discredited in the last few years, and the disinterested individual has been given reason to feel his sympathy has been imposed upon.

Chicago Line Is Said To Have Cost $200,000

The Chicago picket line is said to have cost some union—the exact identity of the union being uncertain—more than $200,000 in wages for pickets. But the scrap ended as mysteriously as it began, with no statement to the public of the merits of the dispute or the basis of the settlement. Moreover, although the public was asked to boycott the Edgewater Beach hotel on the word of one union boss, in the name of organized labor, members of some unions regularly passed through the lines as though they didn't exist.

Unions now put it up to the individual citizen to determine for himself the merits of every controversy represented by a picket line. But people are too busy for that, and in many cases the union agents are too secretive or too skilled in misrepresentation to permit of a fair understanding.

Customers Discover There Are Good and Bad Lines

It is no more unfair to labor, with a capital L, to patronize an unfair employer than it is to boycott a fair employer whose place has been surrounded with a line of men and women in the prosecution of some jurisdictional row or racket. If a fair employer is picketed his employes suffer, but, worse than that, the customers discover that there are good picket lines and bad ones, and that in some cases anyone who wants to be strictly fair is morally obliged to walk through the line and buy at least a package of cigarets.

In the Washington theater case the picket line was asking more than most people would be willing to grant. The Jim Crow tradition is not new, and the opening of a new show was no occasion for demanding snap judgment on a problem that has received much thought from the United States supreme court. And, anyway, the theater management shouldn't have been made the goat.

If unions and societies can throw picket lines around at will, and if the public doesn't exercise its right to discriminate, the picket line will develop into a blackjack, and this is not to say that it hasn't been used as such many a time ere now.

Deny Judge Ryan's Request to Argue High Court Ruling

Application to Discuss Champeau Case Termed 'Extraordinary'

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The state supreme court yesterday disclosed an unusual sequel to an unusual case, as it announced that it has denied an application by Judge Thomas H. Ryan of the Outagamie county municipal court for leave to argue personally a high court decision in which he was reversed last week.

One veteran member of the court said that in his experience no trial court judge has ever asked permission of the high tribunal to present his position to the supreme court after the latter has rendered its decision on an appeal. The application was described as "extraordinary".

Judge Ryan applied for leave to be heard in the case of Sydney Champeau of Appleton, who was granted a new trial by the supreme court last week when he appealed from a decision of the Appleton magistrate denying his motion for a change of plea.

Champeau had been sentenced to the reformatory by Judge Ryan for taking and detaining a minor after he had married a 17-year-old girl. Champeau had represented a 25-year-old friend as the girl's father when he applied for a permit to marry.

At Odds In Case

When Champeau appealed his conviction to the high court, District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr of Outagamie county, who had prosecuted him, and the state attorney general, were found to be at odds on the case. The attorney general supported Champeau in asking for a new trial. Chief Justice Marvin B. Rosenberry pointing out that the attorney general represents the state in criminal case appeals, and that the district attorney appears only through his acquiescence, thereupon announced that Champeau would have a new trial and ordered his release from the reformatory to the custody of the Outagamie sheriff.

Judge Ryan then filed a formal application for permission to present his case personally, it was revealed yesterday. His application was not made public, but it was ascertained that it consisted of a long legal discussion

The court, however, announced that it could not act to change its verdict because the trial court judge was not a party to the proceeding, and therefore not entitled to be heard in the action, and because "the record in the case has been returned to the trial court for further proceedings in accordance with the mandate of this court and this court is now without jurisdiction."

APPLETON BOOKS COLMAN FILM

Ronald Colman is artist and adventurer in the film of Rudyard Kipling's "The Light That Failed," coming to the Appleton Theatre, Saturday, and Ida Lupino is the model, whose career begins in the gutter and climaxes in an unforgettable vengeance. "The Light That Failed" covers a full generation of English life at the close of the last century and includes in its broad sweep the brilliant Sudan campaign of the '90's which conquered that wild country. The action is built around the career of Dick Heldar, his childhood sweetheart, Maisie, and a street waif named Bessie who comes to play an important part in his life. Colman is supported by a brilliant cast which includes Walter Huston, Ida Lupino, Muriel Angelus and Dudley Digges.

The second feature is "Five Little Peppers at Home," starring Edith Fellows and Dorothy Peterson, Clarence Kolb and Ronald Sinclair.

THE PRISONERS OF THE ALTMARK

Out of the rescue of 300 Britons held as prisoners of war on the Altmark have arisen several fine and catchy legalistic problems the importance of which is dimmed by the fact that in international relations might makes right most of the time. But the really interesting feature has to do with the lives of the prisoners and the additional fact that neither side at war will credit the other with hardly a fleck of decency.

The chances are high that these prisoners of war were treated with every consideration possible under the circumstances. The chances are that the British government realizes that fact full well but refuses to face it. There have been, however, other Altmarks and their story has been written by Britons who were prisoners upon them, and theirs is a story altogether to the credit of the German Navy.

London denounced this Altmark as a "slaveship"; the captain was the brutal personification of Naziism; the prisoners were hapless bits of humanity caught upon the torrent of war and thrown helter and skelter in cruel fashion. But a short time before World War No. 2 broke out a man by the name of Roy Alexander published a book entitled "The Cruise of the Raider Wolf," and told the story of his experiences over a period of many months while a prisoner on the Wolf during World War No. 1, which war was in many respects much more bitter than the present one.

The Wolf had been sent out by Germany on a bold and ambitious program.

It carried hundreds of mines and its purpose was to plant them on the main British sea ways around Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Suez and through the Malay Straits and the South China Sea.

Had a single prisoner escaped the jig would have been up. The mines had to be planted while the British considered the sea free of German ships else the Wolf, posing as a freighter, would have been easily destroyed.

The Wolf had to live therefore on what it could pick up because every port in the world was closed to it. It raided English freighters, transferred the crew, fuel and provisions to its own hold, dispatched the hull to the bottom and continued on its dangerous course.

It is plain, of course, that the prisoners were on the verge of a nervous breakdown nearly all the time. In the sight of other vessels they had to be clamped down in the dark. When the Wolf unmasked its guns and shot it out with other boats the prisoners knew that one lucky strike would shoot their store of mines to the clouds and all of them would be destroyed without a chance of survival.

The author writes of stern discipline, poor food, ragged clothes and constant fear, but he directly ascribes the necessity for all this misery to war conditions. Perhaps had he written the book the day after he was freed he might have poured more bile into its pages, but in the fullness of time he had nothing but praise for the German captain, the German crew and their treatment of the prisoners. They only did what was necessary for their own safety and the success of the voyage. This must be considered a considerable tribute on a voyage that lasted fifteen months during which time the Wolf never saw a port and the prisoners never obtained a peep of land, and while their days were monotonously devoted to this barren life, to quote the author:

"Turn out of hammocks soon after daylight.

"Under the poop to wash; a dipper of water to each man. If clothes needed washing one ran about and collected the water already used and then rinsed the garments in sea water.

"Breakfast at 8:00 a. m.; black bread and coffee. On deck till noon. Dinner of prune soup or preserved meat and rice. On deck during the afternoon. Evening meal at 5:00 p. m., black bread and coffee. About 9:00 p. m. sling hammocks and turn in."

The judgment of the author was this:

"These Germans were fine men; apart from small national characteristics they were not a bit different from our own seamen. It was a terrible side light on our civilization that these men and our seamen should be trying to exterminate each other solely on account of the quirks of political leadership."

And to Captain Nerger of the Wolf who placed all his mines and then safely returned home by way of Iceland and the coast of Norway, the Briton closed his book with this tribute:

"Captain Nerger is one of the greatest seamen this world has known. He is one of Germany's most valiant sons. He is a hero of a saga of the sea, whose memory will live forever."

It seems advisable when two nations are at each other's throats and sound like Kilkenney cats with their tails tied together over a clothes line, to uncover what they have said about each other before they became inflamed in every cell of their body.

GREEDY EQUALITY

As the time for filing federal and state income tax returns is here again, we note that this year for the first time the employes of the state and local governments of Wisconsin will be covered in the federal income tax law.

Conversely, the postmasters and others on the payroll of the great government at Washington will contribute toward the support of their own state government for the first time.

As all private citizens and earners will, we applaud that move as one promoting tax equality in America.

There never was anything but a barren legal tradition which dictated that the man in the factory or private office must pay to both state and national governments, while the man on the public pay roll must be limited to one.

At the same time, however, we are sorry that the compulsion for the change was not the desire to make taxation more equitable, but the greedy anxiety of both Madison and Washington to gather onto their tax rolls even more names, and to grasp greater chunks of tax revenue.

THE GOVERNOR AND THE MILITARY

Unless he upsets our calculations before this reaches print, the governor of the state of Wisconsin to date has created a total of 117 honorary colonels.

That is a considerable list of colonels. It is more than any other governor before Gov. Heil ever commissioned. Even assuming that he stops now, he will have set a record of more than one a week during his entire term of office.

Now there is no real harm done by the appointment of 117 colonels, or even 1017 colonels—although we suspect that the adjutant general will be hard put to it to find enough horses for the governor's day review at the national guard encampment this summer. If it pleases his excellency's fancy, he may continue to appoint away for another year, for all that we care. It costs the state nothing, and it probably makes those designated very happy—although whatever distinction there once was in the honorary title is fast being dissipated by the governor's promiscuous and abundant appointments.

The only reason for bringing up this relatively trivial matter of state now is that it may show us something of the character of the man in the executive office, a characteristic which ought not to be exhibited by the man chosen to head the state government in critical times.

While the public is doubtless amused at the governor's penchant, the point is that the governor also seems to be amused. He is using the powers of his high office as a toy. We would rather have the governor concentrating his energies on the serious problems he volunteered to work upon, and for which he was accepted by more than 500,000 people in 1938.

We now have colonels aplenty, but the state budget remains unbalanced.

The latter probably isn't as much fun, but it is far more important, as Mr. Heil shouldn't have to be reminded.

A FAIR TRADE

Since Hitler and Mussolini established the idea of mass movements of people from one country to another we do not see why the same principle cannot be extended by America in settlement of the war in Finland.

Let us absorb all the Finns. We could give in return not only the inmates of our penal institutions but also quite a number of others who go into a nightmare at the very approach of work.

It would be a magnificent deal for us and, according to Soviet principles, an equally magnificent deal for Moscow. We would have several million splendid people, strivers, those who look up at the skys and thank heaven for running sweat; and the Soviets would have what they call the results of capitalism, those people gone hay wire and who spend their time shaking their fists at heaven because it hasn't done more for them.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

IN HER BLINDNESS

Always we think of her dwelling in darkness,
But she explains that colored lights are dancing
Before her sightless eyes. For her no starkness,
But sunset brilliance through her blindness glancing!

Because of her the light of heaven falters
Before my own dulled gaze, and I can see
The steps that lead to high celestial altars,
And the blue glory of Infinity.

Her patience lights the path of life for those Who know her intimately, and her blindness
Kindles in every heart a beam that grows
Into a healing ray of loving kindness.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—Any day now you can look for a vicious congressional attack on the Home Owners Loan corporation.

Leader of the attack, is expected to be Representative Ralph Church, Illinois Republican, who has been critical of HOLC since he forced the resignation of a top-flight HOLC attorney a couple of years ago on a charge of using HOLC facilities to solicit law private business for a former HOLC attorney.

Working hand in glove with Church and supplying him with information is the son and also the brother of the late Joe Byrns, speaker of the house of representatives, who helped guide the HOLC act through congress.

Whether the mass of charges against HOLC have merit or not, the fact remains that the Byrnses—uncle and nephew—seem to have personal grievances against HOLC and have sworn to get revenge.

"Little Joe" Byrns, son of the late speaker, now holds his father's seat in the house. He got there largely by making hot campaign speeches against HOLC and in Washington he has continued his sniping.

The row started when "Big Joe" Byrns, then speaker, persuaded HOLC to appoint "Little Joe" general counsel of its Tennessee regional office. "Little Joe," however, wanted to be state manager and put the political heat on the Washington headquarters in an effort to land the job. When the manager's post was vacated, "Little Joe" was turned down cold.

His frame of mind toward HOLC has been none too amiable ever since.

The late Speaker Byrns also got his brother, John, a job with HOLC in its Washington office. But John relied more on high-placed political backing than on brains, so that on Jan. 1 HOLC and John Byrns parted company. Now Uncle John Byrns is not averse to making HOLC officials rue the day he left the organization.

HOLC officials are patiently waiting for the congressional onslaught, sorry that they ever filled a job on the recommendation of a politician.

WELLES' CANINE DIPLOMAT

Peace envoy Sumner Welles did his best to dissuade newsmen from accompanying him to Europe and drastically limited his own entourage. But one member of the Welles family not left behind was the undersecretary of state's favorite dog, a crochety little Sealyham named Tobey.

Probably Tobey has seen more diplomatic service than any other dog in American history. He accompanied his master to the Panama conference last fall where he showed signs of distinct boredom even when the precedent-making American safety zone was decreed. In fact Tobey was so generally disgusted that the hotel maid had to distract him with a toy mouse to keep from being chewed up while she cleaned the room.

Tobey also visited the Buenos Aires conference of 1936 along with President Roosevelt, Cordell Hull and his master. And although he may have been bored, he brought no boredom to Secretary Hull, who on the trip home almost threw Tobey overboard and demanded that his undersecretary keep "that darn dog" away from his private deck.

The Welleses are extremely fond of dogs and have no less than nine. Mrs. Welles is always rescuing some poor stray. One of them being a new-born fox terrier which Welles carried in an overcoat pocket when he left Cuba as ambassador. The pup was named "Dr. Gran" after the then president of Cuba.

However, Tobey is the favorite, and during dinner at the Welles home, he is taken into the dining room on a leash and sits under his master's chair. Now about nine years old, Tobey is a little sour on diplomats, and according to state department officials, has his paws crossed regarding the outcome of his and his master's present pilgrimage.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Senator Charles McNary, Oregon's brainy Republican floor leader, is being urged as keynoter at the national convention. . . . Finnish Minister Hjalmar Procope continues to be deluged with suggestions for raising funds for Finland. One of the latest (from Capt. Owen E. Jensen, Marine Corps reserve) suggests this slogan to appeal to the man in the street: "Give a 'fin' for Finland." . . . Otto Frankfurter, older brother of the New Deal supreme court justice, works in the advertising department of a Philadelphia newspaper. . . . Average age of the 29 young men who have just passed exams for the United States diplomatic service is 25 years. Largest number from any one state is seven from New York. Four come from Ohio, three from Illinois, three from California. . . . The British are censoring all mail—including wedding invitations. . . . A Curtiss-Wright "75" plane is being built in Argentina, through a licensing arrangement. The finished plane will be exhibited at an aviation exhibition in Buenos Aires next summer.

PRIDE OF MAINE

"She's a gold mine, that ship; I tell you she's a gold mine! Making $19,000 a month, to the glory of the state of Maine!"

Ed Moran of Maine is talking about the S.S. Red Jacket of Maine, and he's proud of the fact that everything about the vessel bespeaks the Pine Tree state. In his office in the maritime commission, there is a picture of the Red Jacket on the wall, a model of the Red Jacket in a glass case, and a history of her and her prototype in the bookcase.

The Red Jacket of today is a "C-2" cargo ship owned by the United States government, launched in May, chartered by the maritime commission to the Waterman Steamship company operating to the Far East. She is named for the Red Jacket of yesterday, the trim clipper ship built in Rockland, Maine, which holds the world's record for the Atlantic crossing under sail—13 days, 1 hour, and 25 minutes. And it was Commissioner Moran who did the naming.

It's sometimes hard for a man from Maine to make a dent in the New Deal, but Moran covered himself with glory. Not only did he name the vessel for a Maine clipper, but he saw to it that she got a Maine master—Captain J. J. Baker of Bangor—and a Maine chief engineer—E. C. Orne of Boothbay harbor—and he had the vessel documented in Maine, tried out on a Maine course, and christened by a Main lady, Mrs. Moran herself.

Commissioner Moran in his own person is built less on the lines of a clipper ship than a Humpty Dumpty, but in action he moves under full sail, especially on the question of government-owned merchant marine. He uses the Red Jacket to prove his point that the government can make money with vessels of its own.

"Following the World war," says Moran, "the government sold its merchant ships at sacrifice prices, some as low as five dollars a ton. The Red Jacket is a 9000-ton vessel, making $19,000 a month. Why, in two months, she would make as much money as we got for those wartime boats—and that's just the hiring of her—we've still got her, to make more money with!"

Moran admits he is a lone voice on the maritime commission in urging government ownership, a lone voice with a down east accent. But he is biding his time, waiting until the other voices tune in with him.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington— The Smith-of-Virginia committee investigating fumblings of the National Labor Relations Board is hot on the trail of so-called "blackjacking" by the government.

Grover

The "blackjacking" is supposed to have been directed at business organizations to compel them to abide by the labor bargaining law.

But if the committee would cast a roving eye about, it would find that Congress itself has been employing the same squeeze-plays for several years with the general aim of boosting wages and reducing working hours.

Congress' Wish

The major discovery of the committee was that the RFC had agreed to hold up loans to employers whose labor relations were under examination by the labor board.

Yet, by specific action, Congress at various times has ruled that no business house or contractor can get government business unless he agrees in advance to guarantee "prevailing wages and hours."

The Bacon-Davis Act requires "prevailing wages and hours" in all government building contracts above $2,000, while the Walsh-Healy Act does the same for government supply contracts valued above $10,000.

Source Of Opposition

Whether or not it is a good idea for the government to go into these things is another question. There have been mutterings in Congress that the thing has gone too far. One of the arguments against the long pending bill to grant extensive Federal aid to schools was that it would permit the government to "blackjack" the states into adopting whatever trend in education the Federal government happened to favor at the time. Good old state's righters looked upon it as almost the ultimate in breaking down state independence.

Hope To Raise Wages

"Blackjacking" is probably a strong word to use in such business, but the idea is the same in all instances. The government may have an idea that a certain glove-maker is paying too low wages, so when a contract for gloves is to be let, the low-wage glove-maker is automatically out of the bidding unless he agrees to pay prevailing wages in the making of the government gloves.

The result in some instances has been that workmen standing side by side draw two different scales of pay. The administrators of the law do not attempt to hide their hope that the result will be to force general adoption of the "prevailing wages" by all industries.

An Old Idea

As a matter of fact a somewhat modified system of governmental "blackjacking" of the states has been going on for a half century, all in the cause of better education. And the states love it.

The system has to do with the various "grants in aid" to the states for doing this and that. Annually the government puts up in excess of $30,000,000 for distribution among the states for education in home economics, vocational training and rehabilitation, for farm experimentation.

Most of the money must be matched dollar-for-dollar by the states. While the government claims not to hold too close a rein on how the states will spend the money, it exercises a veto power which is backed up by the prospect that the money may be withdrawn if the states don't follow directions.

That system dates clear back to 1887, when the Hatch Act authorized research in rural home economics and sociology with a flavoring of agricultural experimenting. The states had to match the money if they got it.

And it was only lately that Congress eased up on the most controversial squeeze of all—the ruling that land-grant colleges must require all male students of suitable physique to take military training.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Feb. 26, 1930

Russel Wichman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Wichman, 525 N. Sampson street, was to give his debut organ recital at the First Methodist church Monday evening. A senior at Appleton High school, Wichman had been studying organ with Professor W. C. Webb of the Lawrence Conservatory of Music.

Marquette cagers eked out a 26-25 win over Lawrence college in a tilt the previous evening.

Jessica Brokow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brokow, was the first Neenah person to take a swim in the Fox river that year. She donned her bathing suit after school Tuesday and took a dip in the river opposite her home.

25 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, March 3, 1915

Thirteen candidates were in the field for commissioner to succeed John Goodland, Jr., incumbent. They were Frank Bartz, S. N. Fish, August Gerlach, Goodland, George Limpert, Carl Maeser, John Melcher, C. D. Thompson, Richard Van Wyk, J. W. Verity, E. J. Westphal, Louis Wurl, Frank P. Young.

Membership inviations were issued that morning by the Lawrence chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, the national scholarship fraternity, to six seniors, four men and two women. Raymond Cramer and Hugh Misdall of Appleton were included on the list.

The Cologne Gazette, in commenting on Premier Asquith's speech, said "Our submarines will now, we hope, endeavor to destroy all goods for Britain. If the British want war to the knife, she shall have it."

The name "sugar" applies to over 100 substances.

THE MIDAS TOUCH . .

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — State politicians would quickly beat a path to the door of the man who can predict how Progressives of Wisconsin will vote in the presidential primary election to be held in Wisconsin in April. That question remains one of the most important in state politics today, but apparently no one can answer it—yet.

Wyngaard

Some of the Vandenberg men believe that LaFollette supporters in considerable numbers will be found voting for their delegate slate. Dewey organizers at the same time are understood to be hoping that LaFollette liberals will give their young man some support. Meanwhile both of the New Deal delegate tickets are courting, openly and unashamedly, the Progressive organization, knowing full well that the LaFollettes and their cohorts will decide the issue if they choose to do so.

Thus, ironic as it is, the political party which took such a sound threshing a little over a year ago, is today in the driver's seat as far as the election of delegates to the all-important national conventions is concerned. If the Progressives vote for a specific ticket they will be able to insure victory for that ticket, as events are shaping up now.

AMBITION

It is rare in Wisconsin for the teacher of politics and government to participate personally in politics. There have been a few professors in the state legislature, but pedagogs are still scarce in party activity.

Now the story leaks out that a young faculty man at the University of Wisconsin is hankering to become governor—perhaps to test some of the theories which he has been putting before his classes. A Progressive, he isn't sure whether he will make the attempt this year, or in 1942.

COINCIDENCE

This column does not intend to imply that there is any connection between the two incidents, but there is a lot of speculation on the coincidence that the same paper manufacturers who were prominently involved in the fight against the Heil administration's proposal to reorganize the state public service commission last year took a beating last week when the Heil majority on that commission approved a 10 per cent increase in rail freight charges for pulpwood.

Significantly, the minority member of the commission who filed a dissenting opinion is the former chairman of that body in the days when it defended the paper makers' point of view on rail charges.

PROGRESS

In all the discussion and theorizing of the problems of the cut-over counties in northern Wisconsin in the last year or two, the fact that several of those counties have done a surprising job of pulling themselves out of their difficulties, and by their own bootstraps, has escaped general notice.

At least three counties in the northern group generally classed with those who are bankrupt or nearly so are now in passably good financial condition, through good management and realistic policies. One of the factors in the improvement has been decisive action to cut down the delinquent tax lists through taking title to delinquent lands.

In that way the counties' cash position has been improved, since under former conditions local units continued to assess the delinquent parcels, and since the county gets the last slice of the tax receipts, it was frequently left holding the bag—or the tax delinquencies. With the delinquencies eliminated, there is a lower assessed valuation, with the result that the localities have had to tighten their belts while the county has been able to command some cash resources.

A good name for it, if I ever put it all in one bottle, will be Ol' Doc Brady's Three Way Restorer. No, on second thought we had better make it Four Ways—four ways to prevent hair from turning prematurely gray or, by juggling the words around a bit and slipping in a couple of "helps" we can even make a portion of the public believe we say the treatment will restore the original color to the hair even after it has turned as gray as can be without being white.

First Way: Take a suitable Iodin Ration. For instructions about this send a stamped envelope bearing your address.

Second Way: Be sure to get an optimal ration of vitamin B complex, not just vitamin B1 the synthetic thiamin, but all of the entities or factors that naturally grow in the B-complex, including, of course, the one thus far identified only as the anti-gray hair factor. Mind, now, I don't know whether B complex really prevents premature graying of hair in man; but the nutrition physiologists have found that if experimental rats do not get enough of the anti-gray hair factor they become gray before their time. All I can tell you is that plenty of B complex to supplement your regular diet will very likely give you better health, more vite, whether it has any effect on gray or graying hair or not.

Third Way: A Japanese investigator (U. Sarata) has found that black skin and hair contains more copper than brown, and brown skin and hair contains more than white. Animals on a diet poor in copper show a progressive decrease in the pigment in their skin and fur, and addition of copper brings about restoration of the normal color to the skin and hair. From these and other observations it would seem that copper is essential for the formation of pigment in the skin and hair of mammals. You are a mammal, not to say rat. Of course it takes only a wee, wee bit of copper, probably the hundredth part of a grain a day, to keep your hair from turning gray, and so many foods contain copper that it would seem strange that anybody's hair turns gray as long as he still has teeth that function well—his own or his dentor's. I suspect that it is not so much the dearth of copper in our food but rather the deficiency of vitamins essential for the assimiliation and retention of copper, that matters, and that eventually we shall learn just which vitamin it may be. Off hand I'd surmise it might be the anti-gray hair factor or possibly nicotinic acid in the vitamin B complex.

Fourth Way: More exposure to sunshine. Sunshine on naked skin produces vitamin D by ultraviolet ray action on sterol, fat-like substance in the skin, converting it into vitamin D. Alternative for any one who can't have his place in the sun, an adequate daily ration of vitamin D in pleasant form, to supplemnt the regular diet

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Request by Postcard

A few weeks ago you had an article concerning bed wetting. I'll be grateful if you will send it to me. (Mrs. R. P.)

Answer—Ol' Doc Brady is willing to furnish the goods, but you have to provide a stamped (3c) envelope bearing your address.

How to Fight

I want to thank you for recommending the book "Want to Get Well" by Fannie Benson Rogers, Colorado Springs. It has been very helpful. (F. A. M.)

Answer—The book, one dollar, is a fine one for any one with tuberculosis to read. Your public library may have it.

Meticulous Life

In spite of a lifetime of meticulous care my hair is thin, fine, easily broken and now, at thirty, graying rapidly. (Mrs. M. V. P.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for (a) Care of the Hair, and (b) Instructions for Taking Iodin Ration.

Bromidrosis

Can you suggest any remedy for fetid perspiration of the feet? My son, aged sixteen, suffers horribly from this, although he is fastidious about cleanliness and wears fresh sox every day. (Mrs. A. F.)

Answer—Send ten cents coin and 1-cent stamped envelope bearing your address, and ask for booklet "Care of the Feet." Frequently the trouble responds to a saturation of the insoles and linings with diluted formalin (Liquor Formaldehyde as it is called in the U. S. and British pharmacopoeias) that is, pouring in each shoe a tablespoonful of a solution of one part of standard (37 per cent) solution of formaldehyde in six parts of water, swishing around and draining into next shoe. After such treatment (once in a week or so) the shoe should be allowed to dry for at least 24 hours before wearing. Feet of stockings may be similarly treated.

Chronic Running Ear

Quite a while ago you gave a recipe for chronic discharge for the ear. Two people I know have told me it cured them, but they can't remember the formula. (S. H. M.)

Answer—Drop in ear night and morning two or three drops of saturated alcoholic solution of boric acid, from a vial warmed by standing in warm water. One ounce of alcohol will dissolve about thirty grains of boric acid—if more is put in than the alcohol will dissolve the excess settles at bottom and will be dissolved when alcohol is added.

Cracks

I am a young man 20 years old yet only 64 inches tall. How can I increase my height — and no cracks please. (R. H.)

Answer—I don't know son. Personally, I wouldn't mind taking all the cracks if I could learn how to increase my height an inch or two.

Acid Stomach

My only trouble is acid stomach and heartburn. I've taken barrels of soda and mint, but the trouble goes on about the same. . . . (W. F. A.)

Answer—For the price of a barrel of soda and mint you could have a complete physical examination and whatever special clinical tests your physician deems necessary to arrive at a diagnosis. Or isn't your health worth such an investment? Send a stamped envelope bearing your address, and inclose ten cents coin, for booklet "So You Have Indigestion". It contains advice about diet and the least objectionable alkalis to neutralize acidity.

Blackheads and Pimples

Have you any advice for a girl seventeen whose face is broken out with blackheads and pimples? (Mrs. S. M.)

Ans. — Send 3-cent-stamped envelope with her name and address on it, for monograph on Acne.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered Address Dr. William Brady, 265 El Camino, South, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Peggy Woods was elected vice president of Pleasant Corners Girls 4-H club to succeed Norana Trauba at the first meeting of the season Monday night at the home of Mrs. Leo Schreiter, Greenville. All other officers were reelected as follows: Lois Schreiter, president; Bernice Becker, secretary; Mary Jochman, treasurer; and Dorothy Palmbach, reporter.

Mrs. Schreiter and Mrs. Leonard Palmbach are leaders of the club. The group discussed forming singing and drama clubs, and it was announced that Norana Trauba and Mrs. Schreiter will attend the drama school which Mrs. Marie Kellogg of the rural sociology department of the University of Wisconsin will conduct Wednesday night at the court house.

The club will hold its meetings the first Monday of each month for the rest of the school year, the next meeting to be April 1 at the home of Miss Trauba. This will be an April Fool's party. Miss Trauba and Dorothy Palmbach will act as an entertainment and refreshment committee for the party.

Extension Dairymen Prove Bull Owned by George A. Palmbach

Newinco Felix Pontiac Fobes, a Holstein sire owned by George A. Palmbach, route 1, Appleton, has been reported proved by extension dairymen of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, according to word received by W. D. Brownson, fieldman of the Outagamie Dairy Herd Improvement association, No. 1. This is the sixteenth sire proved in the county.

The sire's six daughters have 13 records averaging 10,728 pounds of milk testing 3.7 per cent with an average yearly fat production of 392 pounds. His daughters, upon which comparisons were made, showed an average butterfat increase of 40 pounds over that of their respective dams.

A sire may be called proved whenever the average milk and butterfat production records of five or more tested daughters may be compared with the production records of their dams. To standardize classification in Wisconsin, all sires proved in testing associations are given star ratings. A sire that is able to raise the production of his daughters above that of their dams when their dams are of a 300 to 374 pound butterfat level would be called a 2-star bull.

Three Cheese Hearings Will be Held in State

The Brick and Munster hearing will be held March 4 in the armory at Beaver Dam. All three hearings will open at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and will be conducted by L. G. Kuenning, chief of the department's dairy division.

At Beaver Dam consideration will be given a recommendation of a special committee of Brick and Munster cheese producers and manufacturers that the moisture content of Wisconsin State Brand Brick and Wisconsin State Brand Munster cheese be increased one per cent.

These meetings will be held from 10 o'clock until 12 o'clock Monday morning in the Harrison town hall, and from 1:30 to 3:03 in the afternoon in the Brillion city hall. A. L. McMahon, county agent, said the meetings will be of special interest to women because some varieties of these small fruits are excellent when eaten fresh but are not so desirable from the standpoint of preserving.

Fertilizers Topic at Chilton City Hall

Chilton—Mark H. Mitchell, Kenosha, fieldman for a fertilizer company, will discuss the use of fertilizers at 8 o'clock Monday evening, March 4, at the city hall in Chilton.

The county is the second in Wisconsin to adopt the quality improvement program, Outagamie county being the first.

New World Record Is Set by Holstein Cow

A purebred Holstein cow of Pabst farms, Oconomowoc, set a new world's record in completing a 305-day test period during which she produced 24,531.2 pounds of milk that included 1,005.4 pounds of fat. According to Fred Pabst, owner of the farm, this record was made while the cow was carrying twin calves. She freshened with them only 11 months and 4 days from the calving that started her on her way to the world's record.

Flats as Good as Rounds in Hybrid Corn, Test Reveals

Most sizes of seed corn yield equally well.

"Rounds" and "flats" produced about equally good results in 1939 in a trial by Norman Neal in the fields of the state university, according to a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus. In the trial, Neal was determining the effect of seed kernel size and shape on the yield of corn.

Small flats were the only grade tested that proved disappointing. Neal reports that corn, grown from small flats, yielded 64 bushels per acre, while yields clustered between 68 and 71 bushels with medium flats, large flats, small rounds, medium rounds, and large rounds.

Neal believes the reason the small flats gave slightly poorer results than other grades is that they contain less stored food. Such food is needed, he explains, to get the young plants off to a good start at the time they are too small to get their nutrients from the soil. Since the amount needed depends upon the soil and weather, small kernels are at a disadvantage when conditions are unfavorable for germination and early growth, but may do about as well as any when conditions are good.

Because the rounds sell for lower prices than flats, and yet give equally good results, they are considered "best buys" in hybrid seed. Usually it is possible to get his type at prices little higher than the cost of open-pollinated seed.

Committee Will Hold 1st Horse Sale at Seymour

Acclimated Animals Being Consigned for Event Saturday

The county horse sales committee, composed of Outagamie county farm implement dealers and farmers, will sponsor its first sale of local acclimated horses at 12:30 Saturday afternoon at the old Miller barn, Seymour. Horses consigned to the sale should be at the barn no later than 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

The committee acts simply as a sales agency and will make no guarantee in regard to the horses. Anyone entering horses in the sale will be paid cash for the horses minus commission within a week or ten days after the sale.

Best buys in horses most often are the ones made closest to home, according to J. G. Fuller and B. A. Beach of the college of agriculture. They believe that farm horses raised in the home community or in nearby counties are more likely to prove satisfactory than horses shipped in.

"A shipped-in animal usually does not become acclimated and fully adjusted to his new surroundings for about a year," according to Fuller. "Almost without exception, a colt raised and broken locally is a quicker and a better dispositioned farm work horse."

"With home - produced horses, there is more chance to know the breeding and history of the animals, Fuller and Beach emphasize. "Due to provisions of Wisconsin's stallion law stressing breeding and conformation, chances are greater that the home-raised animals will be larger, better-bred, and more suited to general farm work.

"Disease and internal parasites also enter the picture. Horses from a distance are likely to carry the internal parasites common to that region. Many of the troubles, now common with Wisconsin horses, are said to have been brought in by shipped-in- animals. The bot fly, the stomach worm, and possibly sleeping sickness are believed to have entered the state in this fashion."

Members of the Eastern Star will entertain at a birthday party Monday evening at the Masonic temple. Hostesses will be all those whose birthdays occur during March. The business meeting will be followed by a social hour after which supper will be served.

Mrs. Frank Tesch, Mr. and Mrs Roland Tesch and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jensen and family and Mrs. C. O. Piper were in Appleton Saturday to attend the funeral of a niece of the former's, Mrs. Claude Cannon.

Report Reveals Railways in Dire Straits in 1938

Majority of Roads in Receivership; Mileage, Volume Declined

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — With 75 per cent of Wisconsin roads in receivership, track mileage and traffic volume continued to decline and net operating revenues were only slightly higher than in the depression year of 1932, the state public service commission said today in a study of railroad business in Wisconsin for the year 1938.

The net railway operating income in Wisconsin for 1938—for 22 railways operating 10,672 miles of track—was a deficit of $116,020, so that the 1938 record of business was an improvement of only $368,092 over 1932.

Although recent testimony before the commission showed an increase of business for Wisconsin rail lines in 1939, preliminary returns showed earnings of less than 1 per cent," it was reported recently.

Significant Trend

A significant part of the report is the showing that both mileage and the number of railways are decreasing in the state.

In 1932 there were 27 railways operating more than 7,000 miles of road, while in 1938 there were 22 railways operating 6,745 miles of road.

Sixty four miles of road and 122 miles of track were abandoned in 1937 alone, it was pointed out.

At present five of the railroad companies operating in Wisconsin are in the hands of receivers or trustees, it was pointed out.

The Wisconsin Central Railway company has been in the hands of a receiver since 1932. The properties of the other four companies are all in the hands of trustees, under the terms of the federal bankruptcy law: The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific since Jan. 1, 1936, the Chicago and North Western railway company since October 21, 1935; the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie since July 1, 1938, and the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic Railway since March 1, 1937.

In 1920 there were 35 separate railways operating in Wisconsin, it was shown. The number of Class I railways has remained constant, however.

Traffic Declines

Both freight and passenger traffic has declined steeply, from a total of both of 30,043,000 miles in 1920 and 23,182,000 miles in 1929, to 19,245,000 miles in 1938.

Freight revenues declined from $92,825,000 in 1920, and $94,231,000 in 1929, to $56,258,000 in 1938.

During the same period passenger revenues dropped even more drastically, from $28,646,000 in 1920 and $12,034,000 in 1929, to only $7,955,000 in 1938. Record low was in 1934, when Wisconsin roads hauled only $6,150,000 worth of passenger traffic.

The freight decline was represented most severely in loss in forest products transportation, from, for example, 6,255,000 tons in 1925, to only 1,902,000, a record low, in 1938. Agricultural products, livestock, mines, and manufactured materials also declined in freight tonnage, it was shown, although not to such a degree as forest products.

Biggest returns by Wisconsin railroads in the last fifteen years were made in 1926, $23,808,000, in 1925, $23,102,907, and in 1923, $22,490,000.

Net Revenues in 1936 were the highest in the last decade, and totalled more than $9,000,000, it was reported. The 1938 deficit was the second of that decade through 1938.

Recent Russian Successes Indicate Previous Failures Were Political, Not Military

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY

Washington—(AP)—The recent successes of the Russian army against the Mannerheim line convinces the better informed military experts here that the original failure of the Russians in Finland was political—not military.

In short, Mr. Stalin's famed secret service, or OGPU, may have pulled one of the classic boners of modern history. As one of the experts put it:

"The OGPU knows how to chop things off all right, but you can't do that to hard-bitten facts—and get by with it."

One of the outstanding American experts in military affairs of Northeastern Europe has held the opinion from the start that the Russians were not developing their maximum military power in Finland.

He does not argue that the Russians are a match for a major power. But considering the Soviets' overwhelming superiority in numbers, he has felt that the Russian machine could develop enough strength to reach and crack the Mannerheim line.

The Russians finally have done that—a clean break though is another question.

Why the Delay

Why didn't they do it before? Here's how the expert figures it out:

Russian agents must have been informing Stalin and his military advisers for many months on internal conditions in Finland — military, economic, and social.

If this information had been accurate, these agents would have reported back to Moscow that Finnish capitalistic society was undoubtedly strong and capable of a great deal of resistence to communism; that the economic condition of the people was fairly sound, at least much more solid than it was in Russia; and that the military preparedness of the Finns was such that only smashing, trip-hammer blows against the Mannerheim line with heavy losses, would carry through a Russian assault.

But says the expert, was this information conveyed to Stalin and his general staff? Nobody knows, but apparently it was not.

For on December 3 the Soviet press hailed the formation of a people's regime of Finland at Terijoki on the Karelian isthmus. These newspapers treated it as a foregone conclusion that a new government had been set up, and the people of Finland were rising against the "reactionary beasts" in Helsinki, who controlled the "old government."

The Russian government, argues the expert, must have had well-laid plans for setting up a new government in Finland, and must have expected the people of that nation to back up a new government under Soviet auspices, else it would not have allowed the Russian press to go crowing about it in advance.

That means the Russian government must have been erroneously informed that capitalistic society in Finland was tottering and that the common people were ready to revolt against it. The Soviet inner council must have had some kind of advice that no more than a big show of military strength, and isolated pressure here and there would be sufficient also to crack the highly-touted Mannerheim line and Finnish morale.

And inner Moscow circles must have believed these things, else they would not had waited this long to start a real drive against the Finns, with the spring thaw just around the corner to endanger the world prestige of Russia and the soviet army.

'Yes Men'

In other words, it's beginning to look to the experts, as if somebody in the OGPU has been telling Mr. Stalin what somebody in the OGPU thought Mr. Stalin wanted to hear, regardless of the true facts. The logical attitude of the Russian military to assume in this situation would be one of watchful waiting, else the generals might lose their heads.

When "the people's government of Finland" was organized and nothing happened, the Russian army was sent to repair the damage created politically.

Ineffectively organized, the military machine met the kind of resistance you have been reading about. It had to fall back, reorganize itself to meet the situation. By that time, half of January had passed, and the coldest winter in 50 years was interfering with mechanized warfare.

Then, almost too late — and maybe it may prove to be too late yet — Russia's General Stern, the man who takes his military objectives, no matter what the cost in lives, took over the Russian army, and shoved it into the Karelian isthmus, the only place where any invading army should try to pass. He has so many men, he doesn't even have to reform his divisions when they are shattered against the Mannerheim line. He merely withdraws them, and replaces them with fresh troops.

The American military experts say these should have been the tactics last November 30, if Russia intended to capture Finland before spring.

If Russia doesn't make a clean break through the Mannerheim line before spring, the Russian army may look like Napoleon's after the retreat from Moscow.

And even if Russia does make a clean-break through by spring, Russian prestige has suffered irreparable damage — apparently because Stalin's yes men "yessed" once too often.

Lenten Thought For Today

Wednesday, Feb. 28. The Lord shall keep thy going out and thy coming in, from this time forth and forever more. Read Psalm 121.

'Going home' is only one segment of the circle of life; we go out as well as come in. "One of the great dividing lines in human life," Percy Ainsworth wrote, "is the threshold line." On one side of that line, he said, a man has his world within the world; on the other side lies the larger life of mankind, wherein also we find our places and do our work.

Normally life is spent in crossing this line, out and back. The promise of the Psalm is that God's loving care will guard our going out and our coming in. 'Going out' carries with it the whole challenge of our confused world of action and relationship. 'Coming in' means life's intimacies; its leisure and inner resource and all the experience, bright or shadowed, behind the threshold. We cannot separate the two; we take out what our "world within the world" supplies; we bring back what the world without has given. Within the circle is the whole of life.

Prayer: "From every evil shall be kept thy soul,
From every sin,
Jehovah shall preserve thy going out
Thy coming in;
Whom we adore."

Fulfill for us this promise, we beseech Thee. Amen

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Says Opportunity Has Been Ousted As People's Aim

Americans More Interested in Security, Griswold Declares

Glenn Griswold, head of a New York public relations firm, said at a Chamber of Commerce forum meeting yesterday that "We don't understand we're dealing with a new breed of Americans" and that "one of the most dangerous steps in dealing with our present problems is assuming that all we must do to solve them is to get a change of administration."

Addressing about 200 men and women at the Conway hotel, the public relations counsel said that 150 and 200 years ago, 90 out of 100 Americans "wanted only an opportunity" and that "now they are more interested in security than opportunity."

He said the change was wrought in the "average American" about 1930 and that the common outlook now is that "somebody is going to take care of us and we are going to see that it is done."

Whether America can stand a five billion tax load and a 45 billion debt "depends on what is in our hearts and not what is in our pocketbooks," he asserted.

Had to Promise More

Remarking that the "only time the Republicans have had any victories in the last few years is when they have promised more ham and eggs than the New Deal," Griswold said that the most pressing problem in America today is the dependency of 22 million people "in some way or other" on the government.

"Our responsibility is to mold their thinking and keep them from following a destructive kind of leadership."

He said that America may receive "sure support" in this effort by the forces of reaction, that is, eventual dissatisfaction among those being supported by the government so that they fall into segregated, unfriendly groups.

Declaring that "too many people have practiced public relations as though it were a fumigating process," Griswold said that proper employer-employe relationships can be brought about by observing the simplest of rules.

He finds two attitudes towards public relations work among industrial leaders, he reported, describing the first man as being the "know it all" type and the other who feels that he must worry about public relations only because of this "devilish New Deal."

Personal Touch Lacking

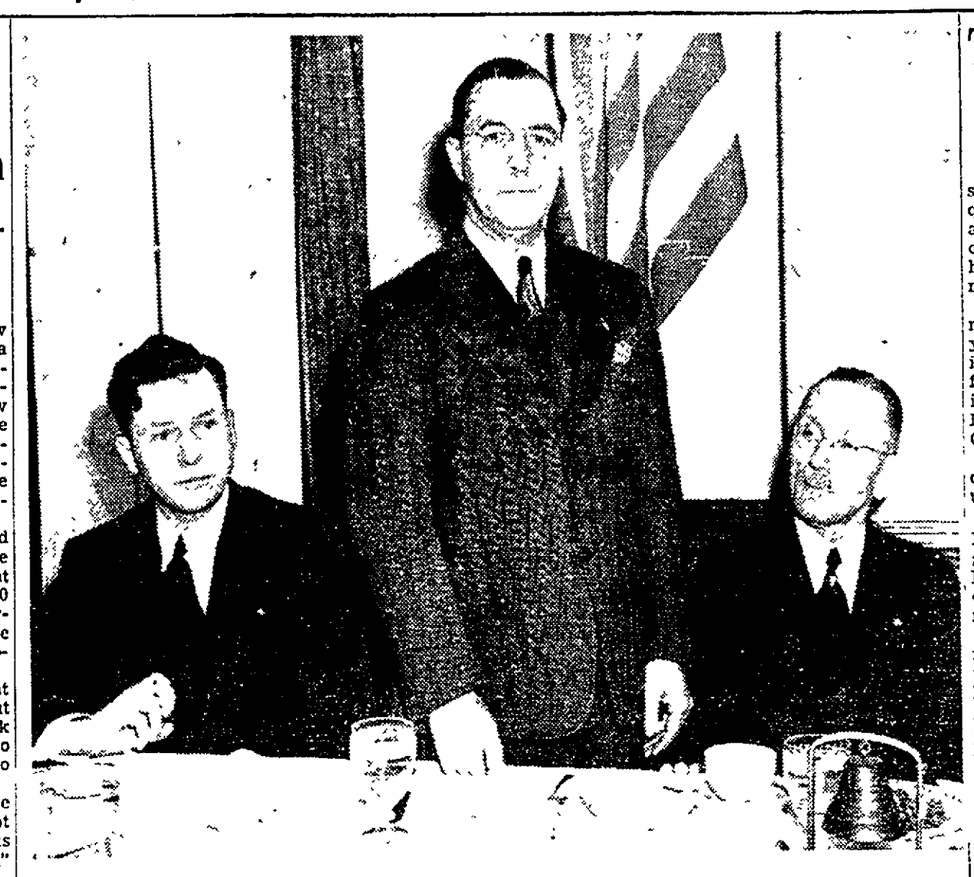

Griswold said that what American industry needs most is a "return to the days when the employer knew all his employes, was frequently seen in the plant, and was a well known man in town. We must find an exact substitute for 'a visit with the old man.'"

He termed a "most misleading impression" the belief that public relations problems can be solved by trade associations with their headquarters in New York, asserting that the real, effective work of this type must be done by "the folks back home."

Griswold said it was silly for an industrial executive to go to a foreman or some other subordinate and tell him "what a great guy he is, because he won't believe it."

"But," the speaker said, "if you tell the public that your worker is a fine citizen, a skilled craftsman, and so forth, he will believe it and will set out to prove it."

He illustrated by pointing to advertising campaigns used by various industries in which they played up, in pictures and copy, the experience and loyalty of their employes.

Southwestern States End Trade Conference

Santa Fe, N. M.—(AP)—Representatives of ten southwestern states, after a two-day interstate trade barrier conference, are in general agreement against certain types of commerce restricting state laws.

The conferees agreed to refer to their state legislatures for repeal or modification laws they had found to restrain interstate trade.

The conference named these types of legislation as hindrances to the free flow of commerce:

"Buy-at-home" laws giving preferential price advantages to home products, widely varying weight regulations, mileage taxes and license fees from trucks; use taxes which do not have compensating features to allow for sales taxes paid in other states; taxes against oleo-margarine made from domestic oils, and laws protecting home distillers against out-of-state competition.

Nazi Press Chief Declares Germans Are Best-Informed

Berlin — (AP) — Germany's press department chief, Otto Dietrich, told a group of editors at Wiesbaden today that readers of the controlled German press were the best-informed in the world.

Dietrich, who also is Adolf Hitler's personal press relations officer, said Germany had devised a new form of war-reporting by organizing correspondents as soldiers in "propaganda companies" and making them serve at the front to report "honest" first-hand experiences.

"Moreover, German papers do not print indiscriminately all lies which the enemy invents," Dietrich said. "The German newspaper reader is not rushed from one nerve-racking sensation to another. Through a sensible, consistent policy of correspondence, the German reader constantly is able to make a sure judgment concerning the life and power of his people."

Dietrich said that shortly before the war he arranged with Lord Kemsley, British newspaper proprietor, for an exchange of articles to give German and British readers the other's point of view. Kemsley refused to publish the German viewpoint, Dietrich said, adding that the Englishman never had submitted his promised article.

Taxes Due Mar. 1, Treasurer Warns Property Owners

2-Payment Plan Available To Those Unable to Pay Their Bills

The deadline for the payment in part or in full of real estate and personal property taxes is Friday, March 1, Joseph A. Kox, city treasurer, reminded property owners today.

Taxes on which no payment has been made by Friday, will be declared delinquent and will be turned over to the county treasurer for collection. The rate of interest on delinquent taxes is .8 per cent per month from Jan. 1 until they are paid.

Persons unable to pay the full amount of their taxes may take advantage of the city's 2-payment plan. Fifty per cent of the tax bill may be paid before Friday and the remainder will be carried by the city until July 31. An interest charge of a half of 1 per cent will be charged to cover bookkeeping costs. Last year a charge of 1 per cent was made.

Still another method of delaying the payment of taxes is available under the state law. Persons who swear they are unable to pay any part of their tax bills, may file affidavits to that effect with the treasurer and the payment of taxes will be extended to July 1 without penalty. This plan does not apply to personal property taxes.

And of course it takes the heart out of one when he receives a resignation like yours.

Reed's appointment to the board was confirmed by the 1939 legislature. His letter of resignation was dated Feb. 12. He said personal affairs required his entire attention.

BULLET-PIERCED CAR IN WHICH PAIR WAS CAPTURED

Jack Frenzl, county traffic policeman, is shown above with the stolen car in which two youths were caught after he fired upon them as they fled on Highway 41 west of Appleton last night. Two of four bullets fired entered the car, one grazing the jaw of the driver, Harold Haney, 20, Kalamazoo, Mich., and the other whistling through the hat of his companion, Gaylord DeRyke, 18, also of Kalamazoo. The bullet holes in the car are indicated by the arrows. Two girl companions of the youths were in the car at the time of their capture but neither was injured. The pair confessed stealing the car and are being held at the county jail. Kalamazoo officials and the Federal Bureau of Investigation have been notified of their capture. (Post-Crescent Photo) near the viaduct on Highway 10 and gave chase.

Frenzl said that he took a sawed-off shotgun from his car after the youths stopped and made them remain in their car until Captain Charles Steidl and County Patrolman Ronald Decker, who were stationed on Highway 10 near the intersection of Highway 76, drove up after being notified by the trucker Frenzl had sent to get aid. Frenzl said that while he stood on the highway guarding the youths, several motorists drove by, refusing to stop when they noticed his gun.

The youths and girls were brought to the county jail and the girls, after questioning, were allowed to return to their homes. The girls said they had gone for a ride with the pair, one of them knowing Haney since meeting him two or three years ago when he was in Appleton working for a circus.

The youths this morning said that they had eluded three police units in Indiana, according to Frenzl, after they drove away from a service station without paying for 15 gallons of gas.

DeRyke said this morning that they would not have stopped the car when they were fired upon if it hadn't been for the girls. Haney, however, said that he had to stop, because he was unable to see after the bullet struck him. He is under treatment of a physician who said the wound is not serious.

Declares Trade Treaties 'Offend' U. S. Basic Laws

Wyoming Senator Cites Five Provisions Embodied in Constitution

Washington —(AP)— Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) declared today that the administration's present system of negotiating trade agreements "offended" five provisions of the constitution.

He proposed that each agreement hereafter be subject to senate ratification.

Appearing before the senate finance committee, O'Mahoney argued that house-approved legislation to continue the system for three years was unconstitutional likewise since it would not require either approval by both branches of congress, as does a law, nor ratification by the senate alone, as does a treaty.

The legislation should be changed, he said, to restore to congress powers which he claimed properly belonged there. "I believe that to save democracy," he said, "we have got to have the courage to be democratic."

O'Mahoney said these were the five "offended" provisions of the constitution:

1. That treaties be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the senate. (Administration officials claim the trade pacts are not treaties. O'Mahoney claims they are, and Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), cited as an example to the committee that a reciprocal agreement with Colombia replaced a previous commercial treaty with that country.)
2. That all legislative power be vested in congress.
3. That all tax measures originate in the house.
4. That customs duties enacted by congress not be modified by executive action.
5. That states have equality of rights in the senate.

Says Provisions Violated

O'Mahoney asserted that in some way the agreements, involving tariff reductions, import quotas and the like, and being free of congressional review, were contrary to all those provisions.

He told the committee that additional delegation of powers to the president might be followed later by popular action to take more powers away from congress.

Senator Vandenberg recalled a speech by Secretary of State Hull, when the latter was a member of the house, describing the Republican-sponsored "elastic" tariff as "contrary to the plainest and most fundamental provisions of the constitution."

Decline in Steel Market Believed Nearing Bottom

Signs Indicate Recent Sharp Recession About To be Checked

Cleveland—Signs are appearing of a check to the recent sharp recession in steel market activity. Ingot production has declined further and no general upturn has appeared in buying, but demand is steadier and prospects for a leveling off in steelmaking during March are brighter, according to magazine Steel.

The national ingot rate slipped 2 points to 67 per cent last week. This compares with 55 per cent a year ago and is the lowest since just prior to the start of last September's abrupt rise in operations.

Inventories of steel users are moderating, but it is thought unlikely stocks will be permitted to decline to the level prevailing the middle of 1938. This means that replacement buying on the part of some consumers is not far off. The weather has had more than its usual adverse effect on business so far this year, with compensating betterment expected in demand for certain products with the approach of spring.

The relatively high rate of automobile production has yet to be reflected in steel purchases by that industry. Most buying lately has been of a fill-in nature, but larger tonnages still are in prospect. Assemblies last week increased 7520 units to 102,570, a trend contrary to the usual one for this period. Output a year ago was 75,660. General Motors with an increase of 6500 units, accounted for most of the gain. Chrysler and Ford recorded only small changes in their totals, while independent makers moved up by about 1200.

Private Projects Appear

Steel inquiries for building construction still are short of the volume looked for by spring but are marked by a relatively large number of private projects. Fabricated shape awards were smaller last week, principal ones being 1200 tons for a Buick Motor plant and 1260 tons for a California bridge. Concrete reinforcing bar prices, recently weak in many districts, have tended to strengthen. Cast iron pipe inquiries are more numerous in some sections in anticipation of spring work.

Scrap prices have yet to reverse their recent trend, changes in most districts still being downward. The composite is off 12 cents to $16.67, compared with $14.96 a year ago and $15.50 at the opening of last September.

Variations in steelmaking last week were mixed, six districts showing reductions while two were advancing and four were unchanged. Pittsburgh and Chicago moved apace, the former being down 3 points to 63 per cent and the latter 4 points to 63½. Buffalo was off 3 points to 67, Cincinnati declined 2 points to 59 and St. Louis dropped 4½ points to 63½. Wheeling rose 8 points to 94 and Cleveland was up 1½ to 68. Unchanged areas were eastern Pennsylvania at 68, Birmingham at 90, Detroit at 92 and New England at 63. Youngstown declined 3 points to 40.

Resolution by the Appleton Park Board.

Resolved, That the Common Council be requested to purchase the William Knuth farm of 87 acres in Calumet county for the extension of the Municipal Golf course, to be financed by a mortgage to be repaid out of the golf course revenues, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED That the Estelle Reid legacy be appropriated to improve said land for golf purposes, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the name of the golf course be hereafter known as the Estelle Reid Golf course, with suitable memorial marker to be erected designating the late Estelle Reid as the donor.

This resolution was unanimously adopted by the Board with all members present.

By way of further explanation, we attach copy of a letter from Laabs & Sons giving details as to the land transaction, acting as agent of the Park Board. The board's plan is to develop nine holes immediately on the newly acquired land, using the Reid legacy of approximately $10,000 for construction, thus giving the public an 18-hole golf course. We estimate enough land will be available to build another nine holes on the Knuth farm in the future, should it be deemed advisable to surrender the present golf couse within the city limits. While the average revenues from the golf course will be ample to retire the mortgage, the Park Board believes there will be a substantial increase as soon as an 18-hole course is made available.

It is requested that final action be taken as soon as possible authorizing purchase of the needed land adjoining the present golf course.

Erik L. Madisen, Secretary.

Clintonville Woman's Club Celebrates Founders' Day

Clintonville — Founders' day was observed by the Clintonville Woman's club Monday evening at the library clubrooms. The event was arranged in celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the local club and the golden anniversary of the Federated Women's club movement. Decorations for the event consisted of golden colored cut flowers, gold colored candles and candelabra, and a large cake decorated with golden colored flowers.

Special guests for the occasion were charter members and past presidents of the club, and members of the Junior Woman's club. Receiving the guests were Mrs. Otto Olen and Mrs. Orville Kuckuk, who were dressed in costumes of 50 years ago.

The program was opened with assembly singing of the national federation song, under the direction of Mrs. C. B. Stanley. Mrs J. H. Stein presented a history of the Clintonville Woman's club, which was organized in 1909 as the Culture Club with 26 charter members. Wishing to be more of a community service organization, the name of the club was changed in 1917 to the Clintonville Woman's club.

Mrs. Otto Zachow was honored for being the oldest charter member present at the meeting and was presented with a pin. The presentation was made by Mrs. E. C. Thimke.

Mrs. Roy Martin, president of the club, gave a tribute to the past presidents, who were presented with corsages. Those present were: Mrs J. E. Long, Mrs. D. J. Rohrer, Mrs. C. E. Gibson, Mrs. W. A. Olen, Mrs. C. B. Stanley, Mrs. H. B. Dodge, Mrs. A. G. Bohr, Mrs. B. G. Donley, Mrs. Herbert Bovee and Mrs George McCauley. The latter served as president of the Junior Woman's club before becoming a member of the senior club.

Past Presidents Speak

The past presidents were called upon to speak briefly on some outstanding event which occurred during their term of office. A group of vocal solos were contributed to the program by Mrs. A. B. Mayhew, with piano accompaniment by Miss Hilda Besserdich.

Entertainment was also provided by a contest in which the club members were asked to identify early pictures of the past presidents and charter members. Mrs. H. B. Dodge was awarded the prize for guessing the largest number correctly.

The evening was concluded with the serving of a lunch. Nearly 100 persons were present for the occasion. Mrs. Donald Russell was chairman of the refreshment committee and Mrs. A. L. Merrill was in charge of the program.

The Clintonville Woman's club now has 53 members and its officers are: Mrs. Roy Martin, president; Mrs. J. H. Stein, first vice president; Mrs. Russell Rill, second vice president; Mrs. G. A. Seidel, secretary, and Mrs. E. C. Thimke, treasurer.

Major projects sponsored by the club are the child health clinics and the annual sale of anti-tuberculosis Christmas seals. The free clinics were started here 14 years ago. For several years the Woman's club also furnished free milk to children of the lower grades in the public school. Hundreds of dollars have been given toward books and furnishings at the library and for work at the park. Records of the club show that money was earned for these projects by giving home talent plays, a dance, sponsoring the appearance of well known glee clubs, a benefit movie, a style show and a number of card parties.

Menasha Quintet Begins Drill for Regional Tourney

Jays May Meet Kaukauna Or New London in Initial Round

Menasha — Menasha High school cagers have started drilling for the regional cage tournament which will be held at the Menasha High school gymnasium March 6 through 9. The Jays will not have a game this week but instead will concentrate on preparation for the tournament.

Although it is impossible to tell the pairings definitely until the two district winners have been assigned to the Menasha tournament apparently the Jays will clash with either Kaukauna or New London in the first round.

The Jays must be cast in the underdog role for they lost twice to both New London and Kaukauna during the regular Northeastern Wisconsin conference season. However, the Jays hope that they will draw New London in the first round. They lost two close games to the Bulldogs and the Menasha defense had New London puzzled. Kaukauna was able to crash through the Menasha defense for the two most decisive defeats the Jays received 35 to 18 and 45 to 30.

Will Stress Defense

The Jays will stress defense and shooting in drills this week. Ray Wippich, Douglas Anderson, Gus Black, and Richard Landskron have shown indications of scoring power in recent tilts and if two of them should happen to have an "on" night, the Menasha team will prove troublesome in the tournament in spite of its small size.

The Jays have a season record of five victories and nine defeats, including non-conference games. They have scored 360 points, an average of 25.7 a game, to 390 for their opponents, an average of 27.8 a tilt. The Jays collected 132 field goals to 129 for opponents but opponents gained their margin in points from the free throw line.

Opponents made 132 charity tosses and missed 136 as a result of the 203 fouls committed by the Jays, who averaged 14.5 fouls a game. Menasha scored 96 gift points but missed on 109 on 166 fouls committed by opponents. The Jays connected on 46.8 per cent of their gift shots while opponents made 49.1 per cent of their charity tosses count.

Junior High Stars Defeat Champions

Supermen took an early lead and were in front 6 to 4 at the end of the first quarter. They were held scoreless in the second quarter while the All-Stars took the lead 11 to 6 at the half.

Both teams matched points in the third quarter which ended with the All-Stars in front by 18 to 12. In the final quarter the All - Stars counted 14 points to seven for the Supermen.

Frank Heckrodt, captain of the stars, and William Grode, captain of the Supermen, tied for scoring honors with five field goals and a free throw for 11 points each. Robert Miller and Fred Rasmussen were second high for their respective teams with three field goals each.

An antique baby walker made in the early 1890's which belongs to C. H. Brown of Neenah was displayed in the bedroom with the wedding dress of Mrs. W. C. Friedland, the material having been in the family for 127 years, a chest brought from England by Mrs. J. M. Holderby's grandparents, an old fashioned makeup box belonging to Mrs. Russell Anderson, an original Jenny Lind bed which has been in the Freidland family for over 70 years, a baby bed belonging to Mrs. H. B. Perham as well as the baby clothes of Mrs. C. Friedland. An old-fashioned jacket belonging to Ruth Julius hung in the room. On the bed was a crocheted bedspread belonging to Mrs. F. Meyer and a quilt made by Mrs. S. S. Roby and owned by Mrs. W. A. Friedland.

Pre-Plumbing Era

Under the Jenny Lind bed were two articles used before the days of modern plumbing. The two articles which were reputed to be of Sheffield ware caused much merriment during the tour of the bedroom display.

A handmade print made before the time of Currier and Ives and owned by Mrs. Russell Anderson decorated the wall of the living room which was furnished with a settee belonging to Mr. Charles Friedland, a footstool over 100 years old which was brought from Poland and is the property of Mrs. Robert Barnes, Nancy Bullard in 1868, a spinning wheel over 200 years old belonging to Mrs. Louis Schmidt, a chair made in 1750 and the property of Mrs. Russell Anderson. On the table which belonged to Mrs. W. C. Friedland's grandmother was a china sandshaker used for blotting ink about 200 years ago. The shaker belongs to Miss Jennie Van Wyck of Appleton. Tintypes also decorated the table and were the property of Mrs. J. M. Holderby. A dropleaf table in another part of the improvised living room was a wedding present of Mrs. S. S. Roby and is now the property of Mrs. Fred Peterson. It is 90 years old. In one corner of the room was a what-not which belongs to Mrs. E. E. Glomstead and was her grandmother's. On one of the tables was a memory book of H. A. Miner, used in 1861. In the book was a poem by Mrs. O. P. Clinton, wife of the minister who founded the Menasha church. A rocker, belonging to Mrs. H. Perham, a wall bracket, the property of Mrs. M. G. Auer and an old easel and stereoscope were among the other antiques on display in this room.

Persian Shawl Shown

Chief among the articles exhibited in the dining room was a Persian shawl owned by Mrs. Ralph Moon. The shawl, made of tiny pieces of material, was made by generations of her family. Each family worked in its own design as the shawl was made. In the center of the shawl is the signature of the family. On the 140-year-old table owned by Mrs. Fred Peterson was the ruby thumb print glassware owned by Mrs. W. C. Friedland. The rug, also an antique, belongs to Mrs. E. E. Ruby, and the tablecloth, 70 years old, is the property of Mrs. Silas Spengler. On the whatnot owned by Mrs. E. J. Quick were the Clinton butter dish, spoons pounded out of silver money in 1800 and once owned by the great great grandaunt of Mrs. H. A. Heiler.

A Gothic clock, 150 years old, and owned by Mrs. Hugh Sutton, had its place in the dining room with a cast iron kettle dated 1855 and owned by C. H. Brown of Neenah, a 1750 chair, the property of Mrs. Russell Andersen, and another antique chair owned by Mrs. W. C. Friedland. Alsace Lorraine glass tumbers, 150 years old, owned by Olivette Elliott, cake plate owned by Mrs. M. Phillips, a Wedgewood platter, 150 years old, owned by Mrs. Sutton, an alphabet plate owned by Mrs. Eda Duemke, a gravy bowl, 75 years old, owned by Mrs. E. Phillips.

Featured among the glassware in the dining room was a glass dish which was the wedding present given Mrs. Herring by Mr. and Mrs. Trilling, great grandparents of William Trilling of Menasha, which has been used as a christening bowl for all the children of the family. The dish is the property of Mrs. Eda Duemke.

Displays Pitchers

A collection of glass and China pitchers, owned by Mrs. W. C. Friedland, featured another booth. Mrs. Friedland has many unusual patterns of early American glass. She began her collection last November and has more than 80 pitchers at present. Two plates, brought from Scotland, 162 years ago, are the property of Mrs. John Crooks. A Chelsea tea set, 200 years old, which came from England was also displayed by Mrs. Sutton. The set belongs to her sister as do two Copeland Barry dishes, also 200 years old.

Hugh Sutton and Oscar Peterson were in charge of the booth which contained articles of special interest to the men, chief among which, from the spectator's point of view, was the 1906 Sears and Roebuck catalog, belonging to Mrs. Irving Merril. A collection of guns, owned by Louis Ellinger, contained a Kentucky squirrel rifle said to be 200 years old as well as muzzle loaders, pin fire guns and one with the hammer underneath. Bows and arrows made by Roy Hoffman, candle molders handmade boot jake, Pueblo Indian rain god, caps used to explode powder charge in muzzle loading guns, cartridge recovered from the Maine, lead shot pouch, handmade oxen shoes, and a clay pipe, all belonging to H. B. Sutton, were exhibited. A Masonic apron made of sheepskin belonging to the Roby family, a collection of Lincoln head pennies and a foreign and United States stamp collection belonging to Oscar Petersen were displayed.

Fishing Equipment

Trout flies and a fly rod made by Victor Fritz, a Masonic paper dolilies made by which belongs to Hugh Sutton, were also exhibited.

Another feature of the exhibit was a land grant issued by King George I of Great Britain to James Angel, ancestor of Mrs. Herb Heller, and the collection of old Bibles, some of which were from Holland and Sweden, as well as the Northrup, Bullard and Masters' family Bibles. H. B. Sutton's 1831 dictionary from Wales was exhibited with other books.

In a glass case, antique jewelry was shown. Two bracelets brought from England 115 years ago by Russell Flom's great grandmother, a Masonic watch chain and letter seal owned by Henry Wendt, a watch belonging to Mrs. Scoville of Fond du Lac, sister of Mrs. Sutton, carrying the pictures of the Rev. and Mrs. O. P. Clinton on the face, were shown. Mrs. Olivette Elliott brought a group of pins about 100 years old, Dianne Sutton brought sterling silver demi tasse spoons which are 40 years old as well as a bracelet made in 1879. Both were gifts to Dianne. A watch which is wound by key and is 80 years old belongs to Henry Wendt. Mr. Wendt's mother brought the watch from France. Solid silver spoons 150 years old are the property of Mrs. Franklyn LeFevre. The spoons were brought from Holland. Shirt studs, 100 years old, belonged at one time to Sam Sutton, grandfather of H. B. Sutton. Mrs. Russell Flom had at the display two Norwegian drop earrings 50 years old.

Older members of the parish as well as elderly visitors enjoyed the Friendship quilt made in 1889 by the Methodist Ladies Aid of Menasha. The built, which now belongs to Mrs. Goldie Timmerman, contains names of merchants and other elderly residents of Menasha. The society raised $150 by selling the space in the quilt in a new form of advertising.

During the tea in the afternoon and the refreshments in the evening, Mrs. W. M. Elliott, Mrs. Henry Wendt, Mrs. W. H. Miner, Mrs. Hugh Strange, Mrs. E. H. Schultz and Mrs. Gerald Churchill presided at the luncheon tables.

Musical selections were presented during the evening by Diane Sutton, Norman Michie, Mrs. Franklyn LeFevre, Miss Ruth Duemke, Miss Virginia Jensen, Twyla Bae Moon, Mrs. Hugh Sutton, Mrs. R. H. Faulkner and Herbert Merrill. Mrs. E. S. Schultz played piano accompaniments for the vocal selections.

Imrie Describes American Problem At Safety Meeting

700 Persons Attend Second Twin City Industrial Session

Menasha—Major Norman C. Imrie, associate editor of the Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch, declared that three mischievous maladies of the head, heart, and spine are hampering the United States and then offered a slogan to cure the diseases in a talk to 700 people who attended the second Twin City industrial safety school Tuesday night at the Menasha High school auditorium.

"What does America Need?" the speaker queried and answered, "It's not a good 5 cent cigar in spite of what Tom Marshall said. It's not more dollars for we have 18 billions in gold buried at Fort Knox. It's not more territory for we now have 3,500,000 square miles of territory."

The speaker explained that the disease of the head from which the country suffers is ignorance—ignorance of the causes of social disturbance and economic maladjustment of today, ignorance of the history and mentality and backgrounds of people which has resulted in war, ignorance of finance and economic principles which resulted in the crash of 1929, and ignorance on the highways and streets which has resulted in more deaths than all those killed in the six wars in which the United States has participated.

Scores Indifference

Imrie described the malady of the heart as apathy, the heart become cold, stony, indifferent. "It is dangerous in these times of social discontent for people to know that things are wrong yet to assume an indifferent attitude."

He pointed out that 99 people were killed in traffic accidents in Columbus in one year because drivers were indifferent and careless.

The third malady described by the speaker was paralysis of the spine, not the physical but the moral backbone paralyzed by fear. "Fear is a terrible thing. Nothing is more contagious. In these recent trying times fear has touched factory after factory, corporation after corporation, man after man." He declared that many people are not ignorant nor apathetic but are paralyzed when it comes to action.

As a remedy for the maladies affecting the country, Imrie offered a sign which he saw in the sky, the slogan of the Edison light plant in New York—"Light, Heat and Power." He urged application of the light of truth, of learning, of science, of applied knowledge to dispel the darkness of ignorance. Although many things are wrong here, this country does spend more money to spread and diffuse education than any other country.

Urges Enthusiasm

To overcome the apathy of the heart, the speaker urged the heat of enthusiasm, devotion to public welfare and public good. "No great work ever was done without enthusiasm." To overcome the paralysis of the moral backbone he urged power, courageous, purposeful, organized action.

The speaker described the accomplishments of Pasteur in the medical field and declared that the French scientist saved more lives than all the Hitlers, Stalins, and military leaders have killed during the centuries. "It is just as grand to save one life from a traffic accident, from a railroad wreck, from a lathe or high-powered machine as it is to save life from disease."

Walter E. Strong was the chairman of the general meeting. Five sectional meetings preceded the general meeting. The Menasha High school band under the direction of L. E. Kraft played a short concert before the general meeting.

Renew Arguments in Move for Sidewalk On Railroad Bridge

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — After nearly two years of litigation, the Wisconsin public service commission Monday will again hear arguments on the legal issues involved in the controversial issue of a sidewalk on the Neenah bridge of the North Western railway.

Nearly two years ago the commission ordered the railroad, on the petition of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, to install a walk on one side of the bridge for use of the trainmen when trains are switched or stopped on the bridge.

The railway appealed the order in Dane county circuit court, asserting that the walk would increase the hazard of the bridge by causing pedestrian and fishermen use of the walk. Powers of the commission to make the order were challenged.

When the appeal was recently heard in the circuit court, additional testimony was offered by the railroad and thus under the provisions of the law the case was returned to the utilities body to decide whether in view of the added evidence in court it wishes to change its previous order. The commission decided to hear oral argument first.

Brigade Groups See Safety Film

Variety of Programs are Presented During Meetings

Neenah — Captain Irving Stilp of the Winnebago county highway police force showed his moving pictures, "Traffic Safety," to sixth, seventh and eighth graders of the Neenah Boys' Brigade Monday night at the Brigade building.

He showed samples of food fed to minks, huts and pelting cages. He also exhibited a live mink. He described in detail the value of minks as pelts and as breeding stock, stating that it requires about 70 to 80 pelts for one coat costing between $500 and $700.

Max Schalk of Jandrey's discussed merchandizing in a store, pointing out the value of advertising, credit bureaus, buying, selection of merchandise and other details in the operation of a store. He stated that there were many fields open to youths in display, window trimming, advertising and buying.

Earl Williams' twelfth grade group visited the Northwestern Engraving company where Tom Shreve explained the various steps required in making zinc plates for printing. Other things covered were photography, routing, design, metal and sketching.

Leo Schubart's group was entertained at a dinner and social at the Schubart home.

The eleventh and twelfth graders will have their athletic program at 1:30 Saturday afternoon.

Iveaux Andersen Is Jaces Speaker

Explains History, Functions of Loan, Savings Association

Neenah — Explaining that the Twin City Building-Loan and Savings association is essentially a co-operative, Iveaux W. Andersen, assistant secretary-treasurer, briefly outlined the history of the association and its functions in a talk at the meeting of the Neenah Junior Chamber of Commerce last night at the new recreation building.

The Jaces last night initiated the meeting room of Neenah's $160,000 swimming pool and recreation center, for it was the first organization to hold a dinner meeting at the center. About 40 members attended.

Pointing out the differences between the association and banks, the FHA and finance companies, Andersen told the Jaces that the organization was formed in 1831 in Frankfort, Pa. Because it was difficult at that time for men to secure loans to build a home, 17 young men formed a society and contributed toward a fund. When the fund was large enough, a draw was held and the one drawing the winning number got the money to build a home. The association grew out of that society.

Investors, savers and borrowers are all members of the association, he said, and there are associations in every state of the union. Thirty-two per cent of all first mortgages in 1939 were held by associations.

The Twin City association was organized in 1893, and it is a Twin City institution, he said.

Elmer Radtke, president of the Jaces, announced that the next meeting, which will be March 12, will be a joint session of the Neenah and Menasha Jaces. Norman Greenwood, assistant cashier at the National Manufacturers bank, will be the speaker and he also will show motion pictures on banking. It will be the first of a series of talks by members of the organization on their own business and professions.

Kirk Sees Danger Of Soviet Thrust Through Balkans

Possibility Prompts Allied Troop Concentrations in Near East

Neenah — Possible trouble in the Near East by spring as a result of a thrust by Russia through the Balkans to realize a long-cherished dream, control of the straits of the Dardenelles, is the reason for concentration of troops by Britain and France as well as Turkey in the Near East, was the "speculation" of Dr. Grayson Kirk, political science department professor at the University of Wisconsin, as he presented the second of a series of lectures on world politics at the Woman's Tuesday club meeting yesterday afternoon in Neenah Public library.

"If and when Russia's campaign in Finland is completed, she may see in the Balkans a magnificent opportunity to stir up trouble and apply the spark for social unrest and revolt among the desperately poor peasantry of the Balkans and through that unrest, enhance and spread the influence of communism. Demanding return of Bessarabia by Rumania would be her pretext. Britain and France are more disturbed about such a possibility than about their war with Germany.

"By concentration of troops in the Near East, it is probable that England and France, together with their ally, Turkey, hope to dissuade Russia if such an attempt through the Balkans would be made. They know too that Italy would come to their aid because she could not afford to have Russia as a neighbor.

Blockade Effective

Questioned as to the effectiveness of the British-French blockade of Germany, Dr. Kirk said, "Close cooperation of France and Britain, profiting from mistakes during the last war, is making the economic blockade effective. The Balkans and Russia cannot aid Germany enough to offset the blockade of the west."

Dr. Kirk opened his discussion with a summary of the developments of allied foreign policy, particular Great Britain. Although Eden was convinced it was unwise to offer concessions to any dictator on the grounds that it would be considered weakness, Chamberlain believed in appeasement on the basis that democracy cannot be forced on another country, and it is foolish to assume that business cannot be done with another country because she is not a democracy.

France, while having no great interest in appeasement, was forced to follow the leadership of Great Britain, harrassed by economic weaknesses and the Spanish situation.

Austria and the Czecho Slovakian settlement at Munich were steps in the policy of appeasement, Chamberlain still being convinced that Hitler meant what he said when he declared "no more territorial claims in Europe."

Then it became Italy's turn to make demands on France. Chamberlain continued his policy of appeasement but his trips to Paris and Rome were unsuccessful. The Gentlemen's Agreement with Italy by Great Britain and the official recognition of the Italian conquest of Ethiopia was the continuance of the policy of appeasement.

Major Blunder

Almost overnight the policy changed. Hitler took Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia, a completely incomprehensible action. It was his first major blunder because for the first time, the appeasement group in Britain realized it had been following a false scent.

"It is strange that the sudden change was not understood in Berlin. The Nazi's were supremely confident that the British could be bluffed again. The threat of German power to France and Britain, the persecution of groups whose culture and religion was different than the Nazi's, the realization of the challenge of basic tenets was a belated way of saying that which I think is true. The unification of Germany destroyed the balance of power that made for peace during the nineteenth century. It was realized in 1914 but after the war, mistakes were made again.

"What do the Allies want? I believe prevention of the Nazi system from acquiring dominance in Europe. My guess is that they would be content with army dictatorship in Germany, for the army is the only organized group capable.

Seems That Some Republicans Don't Relish the Frank Report

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Miami, Fla.—Actions speak louder than words, particularly in politics. Therefore it is well to note, not what Republicans say, but what they do, as the more revealing guide to what is coming.

Dr. Glenn Frank sounded many long and beautiful words about the Republican program in his recent report. He offered the party a nobly phrased, broadminded course, which recognized that times have changed. He urged the Republican party to move up into the procession and accept most of the basic reforms of the Roosevelt administration, with the addition of more efficient administration and modifications to remove some of their irritating and obstructive features. That was all very well—if the words meant anything, if they were to be taken seriously by the Republicans. There was a noticeable lack of enthusiasm for the Frank report among Republican spokesmen, most of whom lapsed into silence.

Clapper

Then came the first significant action. It was the appointment of that hard-bitten, tough foe of New Deal reforms, Ernest T. Weir, head of the National Steel company, as chairman of the Republican finance committee. He and his friends are to raise money to run the Republican party at least through the nominating convention. They already have raised about $600,000 toward taking the party out of hock from the 1936 campaign.

Mr. Weir and his fellow millionaires are digging into their pockets to pay the piper. Unless they suddenly have gone soft, they are going to call the tune. And the tune won't be one that President Roosevelt or any of his sympathizers likes. Recently Mr. Weir denounced the New Deal as something that came "out of the same box as Nazism, Communism, Fascism, and all of the other foreign isms." His tune will be the tune of good old rugged individualism, and none of this New Dealish nonsense in the Glenn Frank report that would pamper our citizens and make them too lazy even to try to become millionaires.

Clapper Wonders if Elephant is in Danger of Stumbling Again

I don't want to pick on Mr. Weir or to seem to be making a personal devil out of him. In the class which he represents, he stands as one of the ablest and one of the most successful, a man who is honest and courageous about the things in which he believes, one not inclined to sacrifice principles for expediency. I'm just sorry that a man like Mr. Weir doesn't get behind the Glenn Frank report and make the Republican party into a live, going concern again instead of trying to keep it a dead echo of other days. All these millionaires around here, crying about how Roosevelt has ruined the country, their salty tears dripping on the polished decks of their yachts, living mighty well for people who have been ruined—they would listen to a man like Mr. Weir. But he and they see in what has happened during the last seven years only an attack upon themselves, an attempt to take something away from them.

Points Out That Residential Construction Gained in 1939

One gentleman here was complaining about FHA. I notice that residential construction, much of it financed through FHA-guaranteed mortgages, rose 40 per cent last year above 1938. But my friend said that in this activity the government was compelling owners of real estate to pay taxes to subsidize, or guarantee mortgages on, new housing which would compete with his apartment houses and undermine his rents. "I have to help pay the government to finance my competition," he said. Of course he would prefer to have fewer houses and apartments built.

Men who are financing the Republican party see only Roosevelt and not the conditions of which he is the creature, not the creator. They couldn't see it in 1932 nor again in 1936, and it looks as if they are going to miss the boat again. Certainly they are having trouble finding the gangplank. And if they don't watch out they'll wind up again by walking that other plank, which has nothing at the end except deep water.

Garner Clubs to Be Organized in Eighth District

Filing of Slate Provides Test Between Texan Roosevelt

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Garner-for-President clubs in every county of the Eighth congressional district will be organized by F. H. Tibbetts of Green Bay and other district leaders of the Garner movement in the next few weeks, it was announced here yesterday by John Slocum, state co-chairman of the Garner campaign organization.

Slocum yesterday filed the names of 25 candidates for seats at the Democratic convention at Chicago pledged to the nomination of the vice president, and thus paved the way for the first test in the country between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner. Recently the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin, pledged to the New Deal, filed the names of a slate of Roosevelt-pledged delegates.

Eighth district candidates on the Garner slate are Assistant Albert D. Shimek of Algoma, three term member of the legislature, and James Early of Green Bay, a former Democratic candidate for sheriff of Brown county.

Conservative Element

The Garner slate generally is composed of men who have been considered among the conservative element in the Wisconsin Democratic party organization.

Maurice Fitzsimmons of Fond du Lac sixth district candidates, is a member of the state assembly and one of the leaders of the lower house division of the Republican-Democratic coalition which controlled the 1939 legislature under the Heil administration. He has been critical of the New Deal and was the author of the resolution adopted by the Republican-dominated legislature which assailed the president for the appointment of Thomas Amlie, leading Progressive, to a federal post last year.

Willis Doneley of Menominie was one of the organizers of the formal Coalition party which was led by Robert K. Henry in 1938, while William R. Callahan, Garner co-chairman in Wisconsin, was an anti-New Deal candidate for secretary of state in 1938, and is the son of John Callahan, former Democratic national committeeman from Wisconsin, former Al Smith campaign leader, and a "Jeffersonian" Democrat.

Shimek, Elmer Genzer of Mayville, Henry Kreuger of Beaver Dam, James T. Cavanaugh of Antigo are also either present or former members of the legislative with conservative leanings, in contrast to the respective New Deal factions led by National Committeeman C. E. Broughton, and Gustave J. Keller, head of the insurgent New Deal organization in the state.

'Modern Pioneers' Given Recognition

U. W. Professor Only Wisconsin Man to Receive Silver Plaque

New York—(AP)—Nineteen men of science whose inventions have affected nearly every phase of American life were acclaimed "modern pioneers" last night by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Men whose names are bywords in industry were awarded silver plaques for their researches which have given the nation such diverse things as air conditioning and television, the application of chlorine to water, and a new product from which "silk" stockings are made.

Harry Steenbock, of the University of Wisconsin scientist, who discovered that ultra violet rays were related to vitamin D and worked out a method of including this vital element in human diet, was the only Wisconsin man to receive a silver plaque. Professor Steenbock turned down fabulous sums for his discovery and turned it over to the Wisconsin Alumni Research foundation.

Henry Ford and Orville Wright were among those to receive awards. Recognition also went to Edwin Land of Boston, who won't be 30 until May, for his invention of polaroid which makes possible the use of polarized light in an unlimited field.

FCC Adopts Rules for Lakes Radio-Telephone

Washington — (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission adopted yesterday, effective April 1, rules specifically applicable to the operation of ship and coastal harbor radio-telephone stations in the great lakes.

"The rules may be expected to reduce interference to a minimum, and to expedite the exchange of communications" the commission said.

The rules were developed from information obtained during the operation of special temporary rules during the 1939 great lakes navigation season.

Heretofore, the regulation of maritime telephoney on the great lakes had been governed by the general rules applicable to all ship telephone and coastal harbor stations. Because of the steadily increasing number of ships of both Canadian and United States registry using radio telephony, the commission said, a special set of rules was needed to regulate United States stations.

The maximum operating power of ship stations will be limited to 100 watts in order to minimize long distance interference and to somewhat stabilize equipment design, the commission added.

Eva Le Gallienne Dominates Presentation of 'Hedda Gabler'

A CROWD of about 1,200 came to the Rio theater last night to see Eva Le Gallienne, one of the outstanding personalities of the stage, and it is safe to say that no one was disappointed for the show was Miss Le Gallienne's from start to finish. Whatever one may think of Ibsen as stage fare for the present day, "Hedda Gabler" seems made to order for Miss Le Gallienne who dominated the performance throughout the entire three acts last night.

Even when she was not occupying the center of the stage, which was seldom, the actress managed to convey the impression that things revolved around her. From her opening line she was able to create the atmosphere of desperate unhappiness, and as the play unfolded she built up the mood to the tragic climax of her self-destruction. Her hysterical outburst at the end of the second act when she tore and burned the manuscript of Eilert Lovborg left the audience tense.

Earle Larimore who receives second billing to the star had little opportunity to display his own talents in "Hedda Gabler" but he made the most of his small part. His best scene was that in which he returned to the Tesman home to tell Hedda of the loss of his manuscript. A thoroughly unsympathetic part was handled very well by Matthew Smith as George Tesman, Hedda's technical-minded husband, and Peter Capell was the suave and sinister Judge Brack. Others in the cast were Katherine Squire as Mrs. Elvsted, Marion Evenson as Aunt Juliana Tesman, and Alice John as Bertha, the maid.

Archbishop Gets Warning About His New Purple Robes

Told Chicago Climate May Change Them To Cardinal Red

Milwaukee—(AP)—Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, who becomes head of the Chicago Catholic See next week, was given a word of advice at a farewell banquet last night—not to spend too much on new purple robes because he might ultimately be wearing vestments of a cardinal.

The suggestion came from the Rev. August J. Gearhard after the archbishop remarked that despite reference to his "promotion" the papal bull conferring the Chicago appointment merely says "transferred."

"This probably is the only opportunity I ever will have to give advice to an archbishop," said Father Gearhard. "Your excellency, don't spend too much for new purple vestments when you get to Chicago. The climate there has a tendency to change purple to a deep cardinal red."

Approximately 250 persons attended the banquet, tendered by the Marquette Woman's league.

Spiritual bouquets were presented by numerous Catholic organizations. The archbishop was moved deeply when three youths from the St. Charles' boys' home made their presentation and said "We hate to see you go, but we're glad the boys of Chicago are to have you for their pastor." The archbishop warmly embraced each boy.

"It is hard to say goodbye to Milwaukee and everything that Milwaukee has meant to me," he told the assembly. "The canonical bond is broken, but the bond of love that has grown up between us cannot be broken."

Posterity Values Life Masks Made by Unrecognized Artist

New York —(AP)— In 1825 a young American artist, John H. I. Browere, began making life masks of his famous countrymen. Heiss Oratory Recital Tonight

Five High School Boys Will Present Original Subjects

Five original orations will be presented at 8 o'clock this evening in the Appleton High school auditorium in the annual William B. Heiss memorial oratorical recital. Kenneth Edge, social science instructor, is in charge of the program and Clem Ketchum, head of the science department, will preside.

Harold Wieland has chosen "Prospectus" as the title for his oration. He proposes a more vocational type of education for youth to correct the defeatist attitude current today. James Miller favors an increase in national defense as a means of maintaining peace in his oration, "Quo Vadis, America?"

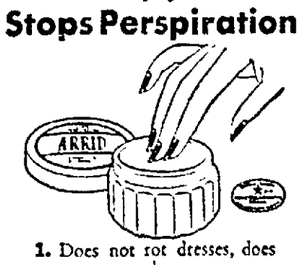

The place of education in a democratic society is the topic which David Bliss will consider in "Whither Art Thou Going, Oh, My Son?" Don Smith's "Patterns of Environment" is an indictment of the modern home and a plea for better home training. Crime, its origin, causes, and remedies, will be discussed by Donald Bohl in "Are You Your Brother's Keeper?"

One of the boys will be selected to represent Appleton in the Fox River Valley oratorical recital and one in the regional American Legion oratory contest to be held here in the high school auditorium Saturday, March 2.

Tobey Maintains Census Pries Into Personal Affairs

Bureau Head Replies People Themselves Request Information

Washington — (AP)—Senator Tobey (R-N. H.) accused the census bureau today of "prying into personal affairs" with questions about individual income and Census Director W. L. Austin replied that the questions were requested "by a representative cross-section" of the people themselves.

Tobey and Austin presented their arguments to a special senate subcommittee at the start of hearings on Tobey's resolution to eliminate the questions from this year's census. The questions ask the amount of income received in salary or wages and the amount in excess of $50 received from other sources.

Tobey said:

"Never before in the history of this country have the people been forced to reveal to locally-appointed census enumerators, under the population schedule, the amount of their incomes, and this is admitted by the statement of the census bureau itself."

Not New System

Austin said:

"Questions pertaining to financial status have appeared recurrently in state and federal censuses for more than 100 years.

"I should like to point out that the income questions on the population schedule do not represent a startling break from precedent.

"They have been requested by a representative cross-section of the American people and included in a number of studies conducted in this country and in other Democratic nations; they have been cleared with representatives of business, industry, labor, science, and government; they have been tested in a special census conducted by the bureau; and they have, as precedent, not only the censuses of 1850, 1860 and 1870, in which much more comprehensive financial information was asked, but also the act of congress passed as recently as 1937 providing for the national census of unemployment.

Tobey's Charges

"On the basis of its record, the bureau of the census possesses the confidence of the American people, and actual experience assures us that the questions to be asked in the 1940 census contain nothing that will shake that confidence."

Tobey declared that individuals would be required to answer the income questions "whether your neighbor, who happens to be the enumerator, is a creditor or an enemy of yours; or whether you have a good reason to feel that your private affairs may be quietly revealed to others in your neighborhood."

Even though there is a prohibition against the revelation of data by census-takers Tobey said he saw grounds for apprehension that politicians might "take political advantage of the financial plight of the individual citizen."

"These census questions demanding you to divulge your income manifestly violate constitutional right," the senator said. "They constitute an unwarranted prying into personal affairs, they open up personal information to people in your own community who have been politically-appointed as enumerators, and they are an invasion of the natural right of privacy of every citizen."

Hatch Bill Against Soliciting Campaign Funds From Federal Employes Approved in Survey

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J. — The drive in Congress by Senator Hatch to cut down politics in government by making it illegal to solicit campaign funds from Federal employes is widely supported by voters in a nation-wide poll of public opinion.

It has been a time-honored custom for government workers in election year to contribute part of their wages to the party, either voluntarily or as a result of solicitation. A bill sponsored by Senator Hatch would bring sweeping changes to this practice, for, while it would leave government workers free to contribute voluntarily if they wished, it would prohibit anyone from soliciting money from them for a candidate or a political party.

The amount of public sentiment for this drastic change, as measured by an Institute survey, is such as to indicate that the public is almost completely out of sympathy with the old practice of collecting funds from government workers through overt solicitation by party bosses or workers. Instead, the majority of voters have apparently adopted the principle that a government worker owes no more financial obligation to his party than any other type of citizen.

The issue put to voters in the Institute survey was:

"Do you think it is all right for people to solicit money for political campaigns from government employes, or do you think this should be prevented by law?"

All Right to Solicit	23%
Soliciting Should be Prevented	77

Approximately one voter in nine (12 per cent) expressed no opinion.

The public vote is significant in view of what might happen in case the bill, which is now in Senate Committee, is passed. If a party worker were to be arrested for soliciting funds from government employes — a practice of long-standing up to now — would public opinion consider the infraction? While much would, of course, depend on the circumstances of the case, the vote in today's survey indicates that sentiment would likely be in favor of carrying out the law.

"Owe Party Obligation"

The body of voters opposed to the Hatch "reform" marshal two main arguments.

They declare, first that since "government workers depend on their party for jobs, it is perfectly legitimate for the party to demand support from them"; and second, that government workers owe it to themselves to contribute funds because "if they don't and if the party loses an election, they will be left out in the cold."

Arguments in favor of the Hatch proposal, as gleaned from the comments of voters upholding the bill, are that the present practice puts "unfair pressure" on the government employe, tends to encourage party graft and bribery, and "puts a price on jobs." A comment typical of many in the survey was: "A man shouldn't have to buy his job"

Sentiment on the Hatch proposal cuts across party lines, the poll results show. Of the Republican voters reached in the survey, 82 per cent declared soliciting should be prevented, and the same sentiment was expressed by an overwhelming majority of Democrats—73 per cent

City Has $10,000 But Can't Spend It

White Bear Lake, Minn. — (AP) — What to do with $10,000 of idle money is almost burning a hole in this town's pockets.

First the city considered using it for water softening, only to find out that a natural chemical-free water supply was nearby for the tapping. Better lighting was suggested but this will be taken care of by a previous arrangement, effective soon

Road and curb improvements are provided for by gasoline taxes and there is no point in applying the funds to the $12,000 debt because that will be retired next year anyway.

Maybe we ought to build an airport, someone suggested. Well, maybe, thought the city and started to investigate that.

Try to Get as Many Tricks As Possible

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The desire to get every possible trick out of a hand, after the primary object of fulfilling or defeating a contract has been achieved, is not an evidence of greed. It is simply a case of a workman taking pride in his work: of a runner who, having assured himself of victory, keeps on sprinting in the hope of setting a new record.

In today's hand the defenders were well pleased with themselves for having defeated a vulnerable no trump game contract two tricks. They had no reason to be satisfied. They had defended badly, rather than well.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 diam.	1 heart
1 spade	1 no trump	Pass	2 clubs
Pass	2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump
Pass	Pass	Pass

South decided to keep his double tenace in diamonds intact and chose to lead the five of spades. Dummy's king lost to North's ace and the six of diamonds was returned. South put up his ace gleefully, to smother dummy's king, and returned another spade to put his partner back on lead. A second diamond return through the declarer gave South two more diamond tricks and then, since declarer now had a high diamond, South laid down the heart ace for the sixth defensive trick. Naturally declarer took the rest.

Neither defender was aware of the fact that the contract could have been defeated one more by two different methods. Had South opened his fourth best diamond, the lone king would have won, but declarer would have taken only his club tricks in addition. South's remaining diamond position would have assured him of four tricks on a subsequent lead from North.

But the nice point was that the same result could have been achieved, after the spade opening, had South deliberately conceded the singleton king of diamonds on the first diamond lead by North. The defenders still would have controled spades and hearts. Again the declarer could have run only his clubs before he lost the lead, and again South would have collected four instead of three diamond tricks.

FAMILY PICTURES

Your house should express your needs and your tastes or it is not your house! That is my invariable answer to those who tell me that they like certain things and that their friends—or perhaps their decorators — insist that they have what they don't like. To a reader whose friends, disapproving of many framed pictures of her family either hung or stood about in her living-room, insist that she must put them away if she cares anything about good taste in furnishing, let me answer: Fashion or no fashion, if the pictures fit in with the other furnishings, moreover if they are hung with a definite plan, they could look extremely well.

In one of the most inviting rooms in the brand-new house of one of New York's ultra-fashionables, photographs in almost touching frames solidly cover two walls. True, the pictures have all been reprinted to make them the same size and color of print, and the frames are plain black and very narrow.

Of course, I agree that pictures in odd frames stuck in all available places, with no relation whatever to each other or to the atmosphere of the room, would have no more pleasing effect than a misfit assortment of clothing worn on a formal occasion. Off in the real country, such clothes could have far more charm than the latest designs from Paris. And the same can be true of oddly assorted pictures! In a homelike, no-attempt-at-decoration but ocmfortably furnished room, they could be just right!

A Bridesmaid Too Often

Dear Mrs. Post: I am not a superstitious person but I am a little squeamish about the saying that often a bridesmaid, never a bride. I've been asked for the third time to be a bridesmaid and I wonder whether, just for good luck, perhaps this time I should refuse?

Answer: I can't imagine anything more silly than to refuse for this reason alone. In fact, there is no such superstition! — other than that it is a catch phrase used in advertising. Every popular girl who, for any one of a hundred reasons, marries later than her friends is certain to be bridesmaid any number of times!

The Receptionist

Dear Mrs. Post: Who, in your opinion, should speak first, the receptionist at the desk out by the elevators, or the visitors?

Answer: The young woman at the reception desk should look up at the person who approaches her, attentively, ready to be told whom he has come to see or what he wants. However, if he stands there saying nothing, she of course asks him, "Can I help you?" or "Do you want to see some one?"

Emily Post's booklet, "The Etiquette of Weddings," will answer all the questions about the ceremony and reception that you have been asking yourself. Send for it, enclosing ten-cents. Address Emily Post, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

Medical Care for Children Is as Necessary as Food

BY ANGELO PATRI

Trying to bring up a child of today without the help of a good doctor is likely to end in unrewarded effort. Most mothers need the help of the doctor who knows the child intimately, that is the doctor who has known him since birth, and before. Very few people cannot find the money to pay for the supervision such a doctor gives a growing family. No money is so well spent as the few dollars paid him for the friendly, fatherly, professional care he gives the children.

Just why people think that money paid the doctor is money regrettably spent is beyond my understanding. "I'd rather give the money to the butcher than to the doctor," says a mother who thinks it wise to give her nine year old boy steak twice a day. "He won't eat vegetables for me and he likes his meat."

The boy was not well. His color was bad, he did not want to play, he was irritable and his school work was falling steadily. When we suggested the doctor she said what with meat so high and all she just couldn't afford the doctor. My notion was that if she had held on to her doctor she would not be buying so much meat, her little boy would be eating his vegetables and drinking his milk, getting his ration of meat and getting along nicely like his classmates. By and by the doctor had to be called. He regulated the child's routine, gave him a diet list, watched him for a while and sent him on his way fit and hearty. His bill was twenty-five dollars and it came out of the household budget without hurting anybody. The new diet reduced the meat bill, the new routine cut down the movies and the candy-hot-dog-pop expenses. And the boy was happy and well.

I've seen the same thing too many times not to know that the supervision and advice that a good doctor gives to the family of his patron are worth far more than any money measures. Provision for his yearly fee ought to be made with the same finality as provision for food and clothes, and paid quite as cheerfully. Any family that can dress well, run a car, attend movies and shows, can afford medical attention for the family. That item should head the list of essential, fixed charges. Insurance, of several kinds, is essential, but the doctor's care should precede them all.

When you find a good doctor for the family stick to him. Do what he says faithfully. Train the children to trust him as their good friends always. Never use him as a threat or his service as a punishment. His service is farther from that idea than anything you can imagine. His work insures health which is the basis of growth, and success, in any field of life.

And pay him promptly. Doctors are servants to the needs of humanity. They answer the cry of distress at any hour of the day or night. They ease pain, they heal the sick, comfort the suffering and make the way of death peaceful. Their service is beyond price, spiritually, but doesn't that make us doubly indebted to them? Who would shrink his own soul by withholding a debt for generous skilled service to his loved ones—Or to himself? Your doctor is your ministering friend. Acknowledge him.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Bad parents are almost as common as bad children. Here is a mother who is a dog in the manger. In order to flatter her own maternal vanity, she will gladly permit her sons to ruin the lives of many young women. Beware also of domineering parents who try to browbeat their children into obedience by reciting all the sacrifices they have made to rear those children.

CASE P-193: Molly M., aged 47, has two grown sons, the younger named Jack.

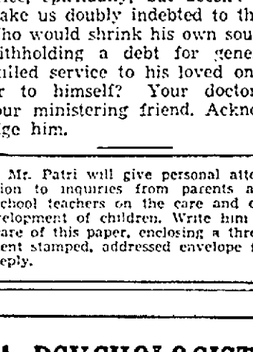

"Isn't Jack ever going to get married?" some of her friends chided her at a bridge party recently. "He's 25 now and should be thinking of settling down."

"Oh, he claims I'm his best sweetheart," his mother proudly exulted. "He says a young girl could never cook as well as I can, so he isn't interested in them seriously."

DIAGNOSIS:

Jack's statement is sweet music to his possessive mother's ears. It is naturally quite flattering to a woman to have her children adore her.

But this deference to parents can be carried to extremes. Jack's older brother married, much to his mother's chagrin. She wouldn't even speak to the new bride for months after the ceremony. It was an elopement or it never would have happened.

Finally she relented and became somewhat sociable, at least to the extent that she persuaded the young couple to rent a house next door to her.

That was the beginning of the end. Within a year she had subtly insinuated herself into their domestic affairs, skilfully promoting quarrels and friction between husband and wife. A divorce followed, though they really loved each other.

Domineering Mothers

Maybe Jack is afraid to marry lest his mother break up his home, too, though I am inclined to guess that he really prefers the present situation. Now he can have dates with many women of his own age, and use mamma as an alibi for not marrying.

In fact, he has already had several affairs in the town where he lives. Two girls in the past few years have born him children out of wedlock. His mother knows of these episodes. In fact, she was responsible for preventing his marrying the first girl.

This mother looks upon every young woman as a rival. She is determined to hold her sons at any cost. It seems to make little difference how many girls get into trouble as a result of their association with Jack, just as long as she can keep Jack protesting that his mother is his best sweetheart.

Dangerous Parents

A woman like Molly is intensely selfish. She is a dog in the manger. I have met her kind frequently, both among illiterate mothers as well as among college graduates.

Her intense passion in life is to dominate her sons. As long as they live at home and pay her a few compliments, she cannot do too much for them.

Sacrifices of her time and money mean nothing, for she is amply repaid as long as she can sit on the queen's throne. She will even tolerate their affairs with other, younger girls, and charge them off to "youth's fling."

In fact, she likes to have Jack go with many girls, for she feels there is safety in numbers. If he can shop around from one woman to another for his social life, then mamma doesn't worry greatly about the attractiveness of any one girl.

What would terrify her, would be Jack's centering his affection upon one, alone. Mamma feels that her older son fooled her by his sudden marriage, so she is doubly on guard lest Jack do likewise.

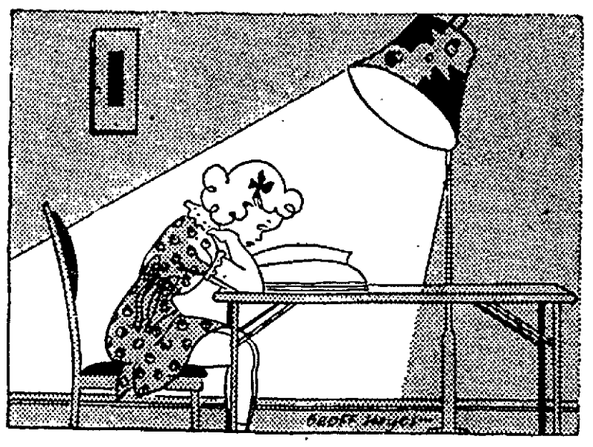

When parents try to prevent their children's marriages, it doesn't always indicate unselfish parental concern for the best interests of their children. Sometimes it is traceable to childish jealousy and a refusal to move down from the queen's throne so a younger woman can occupy that lofty position in the young man's affection. Don't let such parents get by with their bullying.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Watch your child when he reads. If he bends far over his book until his nose almost touches, you may be sure his vision is imperfect.

If your young daughter or son needs eyeglasses, make every sacrifice necessary to get them, and then make every effort to improve his sight through intelligent supervision of his diet, eye exercises and body exercise, his reading habits and his general health. Eyestrain can handicap a child to such an extent that he will suffer all his life if the physical weakness is not adjusted.

Eye specialists will tell you that a child whose eyesight is not normal may be backward in school, he may stutter, he may be incurably shy, he may develop very poor posture with rounded shoulders, and be effected in countless psychological ways. It has been discovered that young children who lie frequently are quite likely to have faulty vision. They form the habit of lying as a defense mechanism, because they are unconsciously aware of not being able to see as clearly as playmates, or to do things as quickly. Thus they begin to "invent" in their imaginations.

Have Eyes Examined

Many schools examine the eyes of pupils once a year, but some schools are not conscientious about these examinations. The wise mother will take her child to a good eye physician and abide by his report. No good physician will prescribe glasses for a child unless the child needs them.

Watch your child when he reads. If he bends far over his book until his nose almost touches, you may be sure his vision is imperfect. If he stumbles often, that is another sign. Pick out objects at distances which are not too great and ask him if he sees them, if he does, ask him to describe them to you. Or put three books on a table, books printed in different type sizes and make the child stand twelve inches away from them. Ask him to read from each book and notice whether or not he strains forward when he reads. If you suspect his vision is poor, by all means have his eyes professionally examined.

Good Vision—Good Poise

We all desire our children to grow up in good posture and to be capable of mastering poise. You know how unlovely a near-sighted woman appears if she refuses to wear eyeglasses. She furrows her brow, half closes her eyes as she squints, bends forward frightfully and looks like a weasel, as she concentrates on trying to see what is before her eyes. How differently the woman appears whose vision is normal, or who wears glasses to correct faulty vision. She walks with poise. Her face is relaxed. Her eyes are wide open to show their full beauty. Her step is sure and light. Her posture is good.

Free Bookmark

We have a pretty book mark for children which may be had free upon request, which has seven simple rules for reading correctly. Every child should have one of these to remind him to preserve his eyesight. If you write for one or more, be sure to enclose an envelope which is eight inches long so the book mark will not have to be folded. Have the envelope addressed to yourself and bearing a three-cent stamp.

Change in Women Considered Basis of Much Marital Trouble

BY DOROTHY DIX

Much of the conflict between husband and wives is due to the fact that women have changed, matrimonially speaking, while men have stayed put. Nor need this surprise us, for the feminine has always been the restless, dissatisfied sex, always looking out for some new thing, and it is not to be forgotten that it was our first mother, not our first father, who so craved knowledge and change as to risk Paradise to get them.

Dorothy Dix

So we have a new Eve, but the same old Adam in the home, and when, Adam tries to use the same tactics in managing Eve that were popular in the Stone Age and when Eve attempts to bring Adam's ideas of the rights and privileges of wives up to date, the two schools of thought clash, with only too often fatal consequences to all concerned.

This difference between the sexes shows itself in men still clinging to their original ideal of a woman that they formulated centuries ago, while the modern woman's ideal man is no more like the hero of Grandma's girlish dreams than Robert Taylor is like a caveman. Men still want the same qualities in a wife that they have always wanted, while women desire an entirely different line of virtues in their husbands. And it is when each fails to find in the other what he or she wanted that trouble begins.

A man, of course, is not insensible to outward charm and glitter. He would like his wife to be a good-looker, witty and bright, well educated and to have social grace and poise. But underneath these he wants her to be domestic, thrifty, industrious, a stay-at-homer, to look up to him as an oracle and to begin every sentence with: John says so-and-so." Very few men want their wives to be their equals, mentally, socially or financially, and when one makes the mistake of marrying a woman who is superior in any way, he had just as well take out his divorce papers with his marriage license.

Among the long list of career women there is hardly a baker's dozen who are no divorcees. Not because the lady scientists and doctors and lawyers and singers and writers and actors do anything untoward, but just because their husbands couldn't take it. They couldn't stand to be called Mr. Mary Smith and so they transferred their affections to some Dumb Dora who would look up to them and tell them how marvelous they were.

The modern woman also wants in marriage what her grandmother wanted, affection, loyalty, economic security, a husband who will be kind to her and bring in the bacon for herself and her children. But she wants something more than this. She wants her husband to treat her as his partner in the business of life, not as a domestic slave. She wants companionship and justice and freedom.

The highly educated college graduate resents having to talk like a moron to keep from hurting her husband's vanity. The wife who draws a bigger salary than her husband is infuriated at having him take possession of it and dole out her lunch money. The woman who has been independent and self-supporting for years rebels at having to ask her husband's permission to go to see her mother.

Of course, the old husbands and the new wives neither get just what they want in marriage, but the struggle for it makes a pretty fight as it stands. Perhaps some day they will iron out their differences, but at present they are in the predicament of an ox-driver who, without experience, undertakes to run a high-powered car. There are bound to be wrecks along the road.

Can a man Be Changed?

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am engaged to a lawyer, I admire him a great deal except for the fact that he is slouchy in his appearance. His clothes are always dirty, messy and look as if they had been thrown at him. They are not even buttoned up properly. Although I love him, I am getting so I do not like to be seen out with him, especially in a restaurant, where he makes so much noise with his food as to embarrass me. What can I say or do to show him that I am dissatisfied with him? How will it be if he doesn't change? Won't it hurt his business. WORRIED.

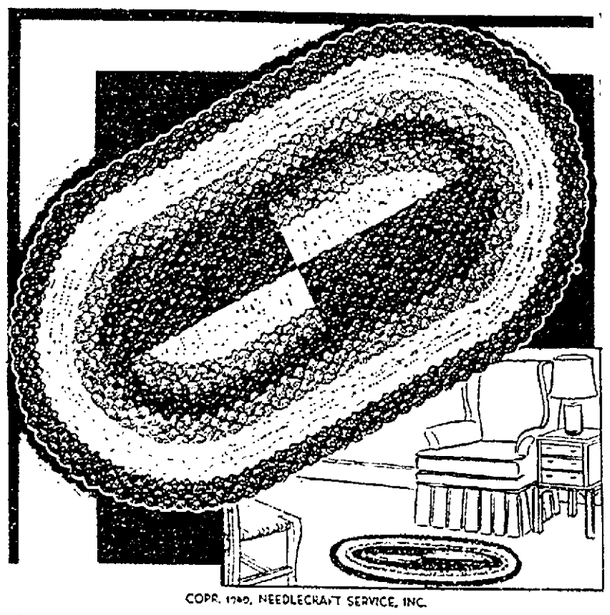

Answer:

The one thing that is absolutely necessary to a woman's happiness in marriage is for her to be proud of her husband. If for any reason whatsoever she is ashamed of him her marriage will be dust and ashes in her teeth.

And there is no possible thing that a husband could do that would so get on his wife's nerves as for him to be unkempt and untidy about his person. She could forgive his committing a crime easier than she could his wearing a dirty shirt.

And so I think you will make a very great mistake if you marry a man who looks so much like something that was fished out of the gutter that you dread being seen out with him. Also, another reason for not marrying him is because a man who is too lazy to keep himself clean will never succeed in business.

If a recipe calls for sour cream and you have none, use sour milk and 2 level teaspoons of butter instead of the sour cream.

A perennial garden should include chrysanthemums. Plant some of the Korean hybrids this year.

Suits lead the fashion parade this spring, and marching straight to the front is Rita Johnson in her coat of brown and beige striped wool, cut with a slim waistline and perky pockets that jut from the sides. The coat tops a jumper dress with smart suspender skirt over a tailored wool blouse and fashioned in matching brown and beige. The actress completes her ensemble with a sport hat in brown suede that boasts a feather thrust jauntily through the crown.

BLOOD RUNS COLD

By Ann Demarest

YESTERDAY: Christine Howarth feels there is something definitely wrong with the house. She sees a hand on her window-pane, overhears Mr. Kimball's niece in a restaurant saying, "I'm afraid," and when she knocks on the girl's door later, there is no answer.

Chapter Three Murder

There was nothing I could do but go back to my own room, without an electric light bulb. As I turned back I had the uncomfortable feeling that someone was watching me from the stairway leading to the third floor. I made myself look up. "After all," I thought, "this is a New York apartment, not a haunted house."

The light was so dim I couldn't make out whether it was a man or a woman crouched near the top of the stairs. But there was someone there. As I leaned forward to see better the person moved quickly up to the third floor hall. And somewhere upstairs a dog barked shrilly. I knew one thing. It wasn't a dog I'd seen.

Feeling more bewilered than frightened, I stumbled back to my cold, dark apartment. After a few minutes distracted search, I found my cigarette lighter and, holding it in one hand, I tried to lock the door with the other, but whether it was nervousness or in the excitement I chose the wrong key, I don't know. Anyway the door wouldn't lock. Then I was scared. I could hear footsteps on the stairway and finally Mr. Kimball calling to me from the hall. I jerked open the door so quickly that Mr. Kimball, with a lighted candle in his hand, nearly fell over.

"I seem to be giving you a lot of trouble this evening," he said apologetically. "The fuse burned out and it wasn't until a moment ago that I remembered your apartment was on the same circuit as the hall. I've been in the cellar trying to fix it, but I'm about as handy at that as with the furnace."

I took the candle, forgetting to mention that the door wouldn't lock. Mr. Kimball said good night and went downstairs.

The room was so drafty that the flame flickered and before I got into my pajamas it blew out.

Intruder

After I crawled into bed I lay there with my eyes wide open, too tired to sleep. The studio windows loomed large and bare without curtains and beyond the window at the head of my couch I could see the shadowy outline of the fire escape. That fire escape! My eyes were glued to it. I expected at any moment to see someone or something climb in, and I was afraid to get up and lock the window.

But my fears about someone entering by way of the fire escape were unfounded; the person who burst into the room came from the hall.

It wasn't the sound of the opening door that caught my attention. It was the faint streak of light across the room that made me sit bolt upright, my scalp tingling and a good old-fashioned chill running up and down my spine.

"Who's there?" I managed to gasp.

The door slammed shut and I heard hasty steps down the hall and then the sound of knocking. Well, I lay there frozen to the bed. To save my life I couldn't have moved a muscle. After a minute or two of silence loud voices came in from the hall, a man's and a woman's, and they seemed to be quarreling. I didn't move. I just huddled under the bedclothes afraid even to see if the lights were on; and never taking my eyes from the door, I waited for morning.

All night long it seemed to me that people were going up and down the stairs, passing the door. Finally I must have dozed, because it was broad daylight when I wakened, still feeling cold, and conscious of someone screaming outside my door.

I jumped out of bed and ran to the dresser for my watch. It was half-past eight. I could hear someone in the hall now, so I slipped into my mules, pulled my robe over me and went to the door, opening it cautiously. A girl in a dark dress and blue gingham apron, apparently the maid, was lying in the hall flat on her back. A woman was bending over her. A short, stout woman in a green and yellow bathrobe, with her hair down her back in a gray wispy braid. As I came into the hall the woman jerking upright, her eyes bulging.

Scared to Death

Hastily I tried to explain and the woman, though seemingly slightly mollified, still regarded me with a dubious eye.

"Bring water," she said. "There's been murder."

I started at her. "Is she dead?" I asked, and motioned towards the girl.

"Not her," she said in a matter-of-fact voice. "The other one, in there."

She pointed towards the open doorway of the apartment next to mine.

Last night I'd knocked at the door of that apartment. I'd tried to get into a room where someone had been murdered.

Then I thought of the man who had rushed into my room and I got cold all over.

The woman, still kneeling on the floor beside the girl, looked up at me. "Bring water," she said. "She's fainted."

Stumbling back to the apartment, I filled a glass with water, but my hands were shaking so badly that by the time I got back to the hall the glass was almost empty. I just stood there, staring, as the woman moistened a handkerchief and put it on the girl's forehead. My mind was in such a turmoil I couldn't speak.

"Pull yourself together," the woman said heavily without looking up. "We can't have everyone fainting."

With tremendous effort I straightened, but when I tried to tell her I was all right the words were lost in my throat. Perhaps this woman had exaggeratcd, I thought wildly. Anyway, how did she know it was murder? There must be something I could do.

I was scared to death, but I walked over to the open door of the apartment. When I first glanced around there was nothing out of the ordinary. The room was terribly cold—one of the windows was open—and the curtain was blowing about, wet and bedraggled. A little drift of snow lay on the rug under the window and I realized vaguely that the blizzard must have kept up all night.

Holding my breath, I walked in a few steps and forced myself to turn to the far end of the room. There in a mirror was a reflection, a ghastly reflection of a girl in a coral dressing grown. It was Mr. Kimball's niece, sitting rigidly in a small chair in front of the dressing table.

Ferdinand the Bull Wins in This Story

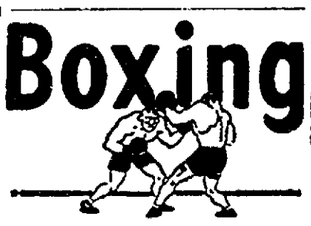

Menominee, Mich.—(AP)—Ferdinand the Bull, ice boat owned by Rex Jacobs of Detroit, won the world ice yacht championship for boats of unlimited size yesterday when it outsailed Debutante III in the fifth and deciding heat of the Stuart international cup races.

George Hendrie and Clare Jacobs piloted Ferdinand to victory over the 20-mile course in one hour, four minutes and 23 seconds. The Deuce III of Detroit, owned by James Ford and sailed by Walter Hock, finished second.

Douglas Van Dyke's Debutante III, which had split the first four races with Ferdinand the Bull, suffered a mishap on the windward buoy of the second lap—overturning when a sail winch jammed. Jacobs offered to sail the race over but the Debutante's pilot, John Buckstaff of Oshkosh, Wis., declined the offer.

In the morning race, Debutante beat Ferdinand across the finish line in 55 minutes and 52 seconds to even the heats of two apiece.

Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

BUD FOSTER'S University of Wisconsin basketball team hasn't been doing so well this season but Bud seems to be weathering the storm. There's no one to dispute the fact the Badgers have been the victims of considerable bad luck, illness and ineligibility. But what has swung the folks to Foster's side has been the showing in recent games where the Badgers have lost by very, very close margins.

One of the Madison sheets points out that Wisconsin has won two and lost seven (previous to Monday night) in the Big Ten. Five were at the hands of the first four teams in the race and the margins were two to six points with an exception here or there.

By the time this column hits the streets Wednesday afternoon, the Green Bay Golden Gloves team to Chicago will be back in the valley. The boys, with one or two exceptions didn't make a formidable team as Chicago champions go, but they made a fine group just the same.

Those of us who haven't watched the Chicago tournament probably don't appreciate the class of fighters who compete so we'll let John Walter of the Green Bay Press-Gazette tell you what he thought of them before the group left for Chicago.

Did you know that: When Dick Piette, Appleton, won the novice 112-pound title at Green Bay he was repeating almost what his dad did in the 1934 tournament. His dad, Billy Piette, won the 118-pound title.

That Northeastern Wisconsin conference Western division basketball race which ended last week certainly was a thriller and for a change it saw a couple of teams tying that we picked early in the season as possible winners. Meaning of course, Shawano, New London and Kaukauna with Neenah a dark horse.

Post-season play at the Menasha tournament should make for one of the most successful cage meets in years with Kaukauna, Neenah and New London entered. When the three start knocking off each other it will mean more than a tournament title. Supporters will envision the conference standings every minute of the game and if any one of the three is tournament titlist that school will lay a very logical claim to the conference bunting even if it isn't forthcoming.

Speaking of the Western division of the league, it's no secret that Clintonville followers of sports would just as soon see Clintonville withdraw and enter the Central Wisconsin circuit. School officials say they haven't discussed the matter but they certainly must have thought about it. It seems to us the idea is a good one. There's no fun being on a high school sports team when you know you'll probably get kicked around all season.

Some of those Clintonville youngsters should get awards for staying on the squad all year in the face of the competition.

Also, the Valley Catholic conference is beset with a couple squabbles between school authorities. It's too bad the league has that trouble every few years. We suggested to one school official a few days ago that someone get the representatives together and spank them and send them home to be their age. They take the game more seriously than the kids who play it.

A Correction: It seems the Church league all-star basketball team we carried on this page Monday wasn't the official all-star team. But perhaps it will be and in that case we claim a scoop.

It seems the Y gave ten persons connected with the league all-star sheets to fill out. When we called at the Y for league box scores on Sunday evening, one of the forms was in the mail box usually allotted for the Post-Crescent's information. We assumed it had been left for us and used it. That wasn't so; it was the team picked by one of the critics. The official team will be the boys who get the greatest number of votes by the ten "experts."

So excuse us for being a little pre-mature.

Ease Off in Training for Friday Night's Postponed Bout

Los Angeles —(AP)— Los Angeles' two stars of the fistic world, Henry Armstrong and Ceferino Garcia, ease off training routines today but blasts of confidence over their battle Friday night grow louder from each fighter's camp.

The encounter, a 10-round match for Garcia's share of the middleweight championship of the world, promises to be one of the bitterest in local ring history, with Hammerin' Henry seeking to annex his fourth title and Garcia out to avenge a 15-round decision lost to the Negro lad in November, 1938.

Garcia remains a slight favorite, chiefly because of a hefty weight advantage and the fact that a week's postponement of the bout may have worked more to his cause than Armstrong's.

Eddie Mead, who piloted Armstrong to the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight championships, scoffed at hints that his fighter may have gone stale with the delay.

Unsigned Athletics Can't Work Out With the Yanks

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (AP)— Bob Pastor is 1 to 2 to lick Lee Savold Friday night. . . . When is something going to break on the Joe diMaggio situation? . . . Promoters of Minneapolis' big summer festival expect to have some cash news for the golf pros soon and also may hand out a little gravy for the fighters. . . . The Old Try

You won't find the name of Bud Blalock, right-hand pitcher from Blacksburg, S. C., on the Giant roster, but the kid is working night and day to get it there. . . . He thumbed rides to Winter Haven and is paying for his keep by washing dishes at night in the Giants' hotel.

Joe McCarthy is refusing to let the unsigned Athletics work out at St. Pete. . . . Paavo Nurmi is so much in earnest about raising dough for the Finns, he refuses to ride in taxis and gets about the big town via subway and bus.

The other day the N.B.A. warned Al Hostak to sign for a title match by March 15. It so happens Al already is signed to fight Ceferino Garcia in Seattle and his friends will be glad if the N.B.A. can do something about shooing Garcia in there. . . . For more than 20 years the athletic teams of the Rapid City (S. D.) High school have been known as the Cobblers—after their coach, Euclid Cobb. . . . Sends His Regrets

Hank Greenberg, who hasn't missed one in years, says he's afraid he won't be among those present at the Tampa all-star game since he is only a rookie outfielder now.

Oh My Goodness!

The Hard Way

One of the unusual features of the eight-year, 154-game winning streak of the Monetta (S. C.) girls' basketball team is that they had no gym to practice in, and did their rehearsing in the school yard.

Clash at 8 O'clock Tonight Here; Invaders Have Strong Team

The Y. M. C. A. junior swimming team will meet the strong Two Rivers High school team in the Y pool at 8 o'clock tonight. The Two Rivers team comes to Appleton, with an enviable record, having won six out of their seven meets losing only to the Green Bay Y junior team. The Bays bested the Appleton team at Green Bay by a score of 52 to 24.

Since its meet at Green Bay, the local team has been working out regularly twice a week under Coach Kenneth Westberg. At a meeting of the team last week, Bud Sager was elected captain. Besides Captain Sager the swimmers are Bud Thomas, Billy Morris, Jack Courtney, Russell Piette, Jim Miller, Doug Fox, Gerald Smrcinia and Leonard Colvin.

The events will be 40-yard dash, 100-yard breast stroke, 200-yard free style, 100-yard back stroke, 100-yard dash, 60-yard individual medley, 180 yard medley relay, 160-yard relay and diving.

There will be no admission.

Milwaukee — Loss in manpower on the Marquette university basketball squad became so acute this week, through ineligibility and disciplinary action, that Student Manager Peter Pumpiansky, Milwaukee, and his first assistant, Gene Murphy, Bloomington, Ill., have joined Coach Bill Chandler's squad. They're not bad, either!

Sorensen Bakers Face Little Chute

Church Cage Managers Will Meet at Y.M.C.A.

An important meeting of Church Basketball league managers will be held in the office of Ray H. Risch at the YMCA tonight at 7 o'clock to review the past season, select the official Church league all-star team, and set dates for the playoff for the second round championship and the seson's championship. The second round closed Saturday night and ended in a tie between St. Therese and St. Joseph.

St. John Comes Back in Second Half to Win Game

BY DAVE YUENGER

WEST DE PERE — St. John High school basketball team of Little Chute made a smart comeback in the second half of a game here last night against St. Norbert High to win going away, 24 to 19. The victory was the eighth in ten starts for the Dutchmen in the Fox River valley Catholic conference and the Squires' fourth defeat in nine starts in conference play.

The Squires had things pretty much their own way in the first two quarters. In the third period the Dutchmen gradually cut down the St. Norbert 12 to 5 halftime lead and near the end of the period tied and then overtook the Squires, who didn't get a marker in the stanza. The fourth quarter was a hectic affair as the St. Norbert five tied it up at 17 to 17, only to watch St. John drive ahead to a 21 to 17 margin, which was good enough for victory.

The winning margin came in the free throw department. Each team sank eight baskets, but the Dutchmen were much better from the charity mark, sinking eight of 11 chances. The Squires could get only three of 13 tries. Harold Vanden Heuvel, St. John guard, was the leading scorer with eight points. Jim Collins and Ralph Hartman split scoring honors for St. Norbert with seven each.

St. Norbert Leads

St. Norbert took an early lead and managed to maintain it as the Dutchmen missed frequent short shots at the hoop. The score at the first quarter mark was 8 to 3 for St. Norbert. St. John was held to two points in the second stanza as the Squires gathered four markers to hold the 12 to 5 edge at the intermission.

While St. John got its defenses together in the third quarter to hold St. Norbert without a point, the three Vanden Heuvels and McCabe got 12 points for the Dutchmen. With a minute and a half to go Clarence Vanden Heuvel sank a side shot to put St. John ahead, 14 to 12. A free throw, and basket gave the little Chute five their 17 to 12 lead at the end of the quarter.

At the start of the fourth quarter the Squires tried hard to pass the Dutchmen but could do no better than tie the count at 17 to 17. Two quick baskets by Harold Vanden Heuvel and McCabe gave the Dutchmen the ball game. During all of the fourth quarter the two teams spent more time on the floor than they did on their feet as the game took on all the aspects of gridiron warfare.

LAWRENCE CAGERS BATTLE CARROLL HERE THURSDAY

Lawrence college basketball squad will close the 1939-40 season Thursday night when it meets Carroll college five at Alexander gymnasium. It is the only game scheduled between the two teams this season and may be the last with Carroll for several years in view of the fact Lawrence isn't doing business with the Pioneers any more. The Viking squad has been losing a lot of contests by only a few points this season but hopes the luck changes tomorrow for a win over Carroll would be a nice ending to an otherwise poor season. The picture shows, seated, left to right, Bob Smith, Wallie Cape, Bill Masterson, Art Schade. Ken Buesing, Manager George Burrows, and Coach A. C. Denney; standing, left to right, Frank Nencki, Jarvis Lingle, Herb Kirchoff, Don Fredrickson and Frank Hammer. Smith, Cape, Masterson and Buesing will be playing their final game for Lawrence. They are seniors. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Otto Bluege Named Manager Of Green Bay Class D Team

Green Bay — Otto Bluege, a baseball player packing 11 years of experience, will manage the Green Bay entry in the new Wisconsin State Class D baseball league.

Otto, a brother of the Washington Senators' Ozzie Bluege, was in Green Bay over the past weekend to confer with officials of the Community Baseball association, Inc., and he plans to return around March 15 to stay for the summer.

A native of Chicago, Bluege got his start in organized ball with Dubuque, Iowa, of the Mississippi Valley league in 1928. He started the 1929 season in the same spot, playing shortstop, and in July he was sold to the Cincinnati Reds of the National league.

Goes South With Reds

He went south with the Reds in 1930, and for the 1930-31 seasons was farmed out to Peoria, a Cincinnati farm. He took the southward trip with the Reds again in 1932, later being sent to Columbus of the American association on option.

He returned to Cincinnati for the entire 1933 season, and the following year was with St. Paul of the association. Indianapolis was his playing base in 1935 and 1936, and in '37 he started with Milwaukee, later shifting to Jersey City of the International league.

His last playing season was 1938, when he was with Birmingham of the Southern league.

New Playing Manager

Bluege plans to serve as playing manager with Green Bay. He is a brilliant infielder, but lacked the power at the plate necessary for big league service. Now he aims to pick up managerial experience in Class D ball.

The Bay manager, first for the newly organized nine, weighs 154 pounds, stands five feet nine inches —an ideal build for a ball player. He is married, and has a son two and a half years old. He is 30 years old.

Depending upon the regulations of the league, Bluege plans upon a three-weeks' spring training period before Green Bay launches its schedule May 9 at Appleton.

With several young baseball players expected to be under contract in the near future, the Community association is redoubling its efforts in a joint sale of season tickets and stock certificates aimed at raising $10,000 to assure the success of the initial season. Appleton, Fond du Lac, Sheboygan, Wisconsin Rapids and La Crosse are the other clubs in the league, which plans eventually to expand to the status of an eight-club circuit.

Long Shot Brings Win For St. Norbert Five

Winona, Minn.—(AP)—A long shot in the last 45 seconds of play gave St. Norbert college of De Pere, Wis., a 48 to 47 victory over St. Mary's college in a nip and tuck basketball game last night.

The winning basket was tallied by Monard, St. Norbert forward, who paced the Wisconsin cagers with 14 points. Wagner, St. Mary's Center, missed two free throws just before the final gun.

St. Norbert trailed 29 to 22 at the half.

Milwaukee — Bob Shurilla, Marquette university's handsome senior hurdler and broad-jump star from Gary, Ind., is currently leading the Hilltop trackmen in scoring with 22 points which he ran up in the team's dual victories over Notre Dame and Michigan State.

Ninth Grade Series At St. Joe Is Even

The upper ninth grade basketball team evened the series with the lower ninth team yesterday in St. Joseph intramural play and a third game will be necessary to decide the championship. The score was 29 to 10. The upper team led 7 to 4 at the quarter, 12 to 5 at the half and 20 to 8 at the third quarter. The winners got 13 field goals with Bleier getting five.

In the preliminary, the frosh team defeated the eighth grade team, 42 to 14. The frosh led 7 to 1, 22 to 6, and 30 to 8.

Chi Sox Ownership In Probate Court

Schedule Hearing on Petition of Bank to Dispose of Club

Chicago —(AP)— The next phase in a legal battle, the outcome of which will determine future ownership of the Chicago White Sox baseball club, was set for tomorrow in probate court before Judge John F. O'Connell.

A hearing will be held at that time on a petition filed by the First National bank, executors of the estate of J. Louis Comiskey, asking that the baseball property be sold.

The Comiskey heirs, the widow, Mrs Grace Reidy Comiskey, and her three children, in an answer to the bank's petition yesterday alleged that the executor had "violated the trust and confidence resposed in it by the decedent." They have indicated that they will resort to every legal move to block the proposed sale.

Their answer, filed in probate court, denied the bank's assertion that the business was "hazardous" and that its income was uncertain.

Green Bay Boxers Are Eliminated At Gloves Tourney

Several Milwaukeeans, Canadeo Among 2nd Round Survivors

CHICAGO—(AP)—Only 32 amateur boxers will be left tonight when the firing stops in the quarter-finals of the Golden Gloves tournament.

Two nights of fighting in eight divisions has reduced a field of 352 entrants to quarter-finalists, including a wide variety of punchers ranging from top-notch amateur to rough and tumble wrestler-fighters.

Last night's battling was confined to the four heavier classes, producing several sturdy sluggers of much better than average ability. Among the standouts were Ragon Kinney, runner-up in the 175-pound class in 1939 from Fort Smith, Ark.; Henry Duda, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., and Ray Stanifer, Kansas City, both 175-pounders and Jimmy Manley, Memphis, Tenn., heavyweight.

LAMERS RULED OUT

Hoxey Lamers, Little Chute, Green Bay entry in the 147-pound class in the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament, was ruled out of competition by the examining physicians. Lamers had a slight cold when he left for Chicago and when the doctors examined him they decided he'd better not go on. John Dux, Fond du Lac, was ruled out because of a boil in his ear which was lanced after his first round win.

Kinney disposed of two opponents. He stopped Ed Purcell of Peoria, Ill., in the second round and knocked out Payne Heimboldt of LaFayette, Ind., in the first round.

Duda likewise laid away his opponent in one round. He first knocked down Clem Walus of Green Bay, Wis., later knocked him through the ropes and then down again for the count.

Manley, the Memphis thunderbolt, looking like any thing but an effective hitter, punished Don McKenzie of Minneapolis to such an extent that the fight was halted in the second round. He used a right cross almost exclusively, always boring in for frequent shots around the face and neck.

The winners of tonight's bouts will come back to Chicago March 6 for semi-final and title bouts.

Duda and three Milwaukee boys, Arnold Meder, heavyweight, Larry Chatman, 175-pounds, and Forrest Gee, 160 pounds, were the only members of Wisconsin teams to survive in last night's eliminations. They will fight in quarter-finals tonight, as will Dorsey Kemp, Milwaukee, 118 pounds, the only Wisconsin survivor from the first night's program Monday.

Canadeo Wins

Savior Canadeo, who gained considerable fame fighting as an amateur in Wisconsin while a student at St. Norbert college, De Pere, Wis., also survived. He drew a first round bye and defeated Patsy Ancona, Kansas City, in a second round fight.

Wisconsin fighters who failed to report last night included Hugo Scherzberg, Kenosha heavyweight; James Matt, Kenosha light heavyweight; Donald Ellis, Wisconsin Rapids and C. J. Glazier, Green Bay, 160 pounders.

147 Pounds—Second Round

160 Pounds—Second Round

175 Pounds—First Round

Second Round

Chatman stopped Bob Wallace, Burlington, Ia., technical knockout (3).

Heavyweight—First Round

Second Round

Pepper Martin of Cardinals Will Have 9th Birthday Party

St. Louis —(AP)— Pepper Martin has been making baseball news for a long time.

He's always just a little different—even to being one of the few people who have birthdays only once every four years.

A "Leap Year" lad, the wild horse of the Osage was born Feb. 29, 1904, at Temple, Okla., and thus will be 36 years old the last day of this month. But as far as actual birthdays are concerned, the oldest of his three daughters is two up on him.

Pepper — dean of the St. Louis Cardinals both in point of service and age — will celebrate his "ninth" birthday somewhere along the way to begin spring training. He will captain the team again this year.

Kimberly A.A. Gets Its Hardest Test This Week; Meets Bakers, Ironwood

KIMBERLY — Kimberly A. A. cagers have two important games coming up this week in the Wisconsin-Michigan league. Thursday evening they play the Elm Tree Bakers at Appleton while Sunday afternoon they play Ironwood, Michigan, at the clubhouse.

The Bakers are close behind the Papermakers in league standings. Kimberly is leading the loop while the Elm Trees trail by one game. Thursday's outcome can either strengthen the Papermaker lead or put the team in a tie with the Bakers. A capacity crowd of villagers plans on following the team to Appleton.

RESERVED SEATS

Reserved seat tickets for Thursday's game at Armory D between the Elm Tree Bakers and Kimberly AA, leaders in the Wisconsin-Michigan league, are on sale at Ponds, the Elm Tree Bakery and at Hopfensperger grocery, the latter place in Kimberly. The game will start at 8:30 with Pickett and Bauers the officials.

The Ironwood game will start at 2:30 Sunday afternoon. At 1:30 there will be a preliminary showing Kaukauna C. Y. O. girls and a Fond du Lac girls team.

Ironwood was hot in the first game with the Papermakers when it copped from the home club. The Papermakers now are playing nice ball and each man on the roster is a scoring threat. It is a hard group to stop when the scoring starts.

Friday night Coach Hamann's high school champs will meet an alumni squad at the high school gym. The game should prove a thriller with the crowd pulling for the high school team. Hamann's squad will have to be working all the time to take the game away from last year's greats.

They include Van Dyke, Vanden Boogaard, Rooyakkers, Fieweger, La Berge, Weyenberg, Parent and others. With Van Dyke and Vanden Boogaard as members of the Kimberly A. A.'s and Fieweger and Rooyakkers, members of the A. A. Reserves, fans should see a lot of action.

Gordon Kotkosky again will have his high school band out playing snappy selections.

SCORING ACE

When the Appleton Elm Tree Bakers, second place team, battle the Kimberly A. A., first place team in the Wisconsin-Michigan league here at 8:30 Thursday evening at Armory D. Karl Lillge, above, will be a closely watched young man. Lillge, one of the Baker scoring aces, figured heavily in win over Kimberly at the village. He scored only two points in the first half but ran wild with twenty in the second half for twenty-two points for the game.

Training Camp Notes

By the Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla.—Buddy Lewis, Washington's regular third baseman the past few seasons, is taking regular turns in the outfield in preparation for a permanent assignment there. Coach Clyde Milan, handling the conversion of the hard-hitting infielder into a fly chaser, says Buddy's hardest task will be changing his style of throwing from sidearm to overhand.

Bradenton, Fla.—Casey Stengel's broad grin apparently means he can pick pitchers who can hit, whether or not they can pitch. Wilbur McElroy, youngster from the University of Southern California and picked up by Casey for the Boston Bees, belted a 400-foot home run over the fence yesterday with two on board.

Winter Haven, Fla.—Ray Blacmire, young catcher from Nashville, may get a regular job with the New York Giants, if he can grab his opportunity. Boss Bill Terry has shown considerable interest in the rookie and so has Coach Frank Snyder.

Boston—The Red Sox leave officially for the south today with about the usual number of players for an official party—three. They are Ted Williams, sensational right fielder; Ted Olson, former Dartmouth hurler, and Ulysses Lupien, former Harvard captain and first basemen. Olson and Lupien probably will wind up with farm teams.

Tampa, Fla. — Joe Beggs, pitcher who came to the Cincinnati Reds from the Yankees in the deal for Lee Grissom, thinks he'll "do all right" with the Reds, if given a chance to pitch regularly.

"I've burned up every minor league I've been in," he explained, "and I am sure I would have done the same in the American league, if the Yankees had given me a chance to strut my stuff."

Clearwater, Fla. — Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn Dodger president, is peeved at holdouts Dolf Camilli and Cookie Lavagetto and doesn't care who knows it.

"I'm through with Camilli," he announced yesterday. "My office has instructions not to keep the contract he returns more than five minutes. Just fire it right back." Larry also said he had made his final offer to Lavagetto, in camp here.

Fort Myers, Fla.—Cleveland's Indians open training today with 15 pitchers, three catchers and a few early-bird infielders and outfielders on hand.

Pasadena, Calif. — The Chicago White Sox lined up for their opening drill today with three holdouts —pitcher Clint Brown, second baseman Jack Hayes and outfielder Mike Kreevich—still a front-office problem. Kreevich is reported to have turned down a $6,000 raise.

Avalon, Calif. — Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Chicago Cubs, following his "reform" program, continues to be a jolly fellow in camp despite the absence of holdouts Diz Dean, Augie Galan and Hank Leiber, and the fact that catcher Al Todd reported overweight. The second squad is due tomorrow, and Leiber and Galan may be with it.

St. Petersburg, Fla. — Lefty Gomez, who already has offered Lee Grissom his title as "pop-off" champion of the New York Yankees, is impressed with the newcomer's ability to pitch, as well as to talk. After watching Grissom burn them past the batters in midseason style yesterday, Gomez commented: "If you're on the level with that no-previous-practice stuff, you'd better take it easier or you'll spoil a good arm."

Anaheim, Calif.—The Philadelphia Athletics were worried yesterday about Benny McCoy's sore arm. Benny however, says that is something that happens every spring and soon disappears.

Philadelphia—Syl Johnson, coach of the Phillies batterymen who takes a regular turn on the mound himself, was optimistic as the Phils left today for their Miami Beach training camp. "I think we should have a much better team this season than last," he said. "I'm in great shape and expect to win ten games or more."

Lakeland, Fla. — Manager Del Baker of Detroit praised Tom Seats, former St. Louis Cardinals farmhand, after sizing him up yesterday. "I don't know whether he will eventually become one of the stars of the league, but he has plenty of stuff," said Del.

Outside Chance That Hapac Will Set Scoring Mark

Must Score 21 Points in Each of His Two Remaining Contests

BY TOM SILER

CHICAGO — (AP) — Keen-eyed Bill Hapac, Illinois scoring ace and captain, still is firing away at the all-time Big Ten individual scoring record and there's just an outside chance he might set a new mark.

Hapac retained the conference scoring lead in the last two games, piling up 35 points for a nine-game total of 143. This is 41 points shy of the record of 184 set by Jewell Young of Purdue two years ago.

The Illini star has two games to play. Thus he needs an average of 21 points in these contests to score 185 points. He faces Iowa Saturday night and Purdue next Monday night in the season's finale.

Dick Klein, Northwestern guard, held onto second place but lost four points in his effort to catch Hapac. Klein scored 19 and 14 points his last two times out, running his total to 125. Only eight points behind him is Gene Englund, Wisconsin center, who connected for 17 and 19 points over the weekend.

Minnesota's Don Carlson was the "hottest" scorer in Saturday's and Monday's game, getting 20 and 18 points, putting him in fourth place with 115 points. Don Blanken, Purdue sophomore, moved into fifth with 100 points.

Paul Armstrong of Indiana had the poorest week of all, collecting only 11 points in two games, sliding to sixth place from third with 95 points.

The only newcomer to the first ten list was Gil Mickelson, Ohio State, who scored 21 points for tenth place, ousting Bill Menke of Indiana.

Klein of Northwestern was held to seven field goals in the last two games but was fouled so often he scored 19 free throws, 13 of them in one game. . . . Purdue showed one reason why it is topping the cage parade in the game with Iowa. . . . The LaFayette team held Vic Siegel, Iowa star who had averaged 11 points a game, to a scant two points. . . . And Ohio State, in upsetting Indiana, limited Armstrong and Bill Menke, the team's top scorers, to a total of six points.

The DOG OWNER and HIS DOG

THERE is a little book called "Dogcraft" resting on the shelf. It's a third edition bearing the date 1924, although the copyright goes back to 1907. For years, each time the battered paper covers have been opened and the thumbworn pages turned, the thought has come to us, "How nice it would be to meet the author of such a well written, useful little volume."

A. F. Hochwalt died July 24, 1938. But only now have we become acquainted with him. Strangely, we feel that we know him better than many of those who have felt the warmth of his friendly hand-shake. For we have just read "Albert Frederick Hochwalt, A Biography," by William F. Brown, manager of the American Field, oldest sportsman's publication in the United States.

We seem to have almost lived with A. F. H. through childhood pranks, great days afield, and later years as "the dean of field trial reporters." Bill Brown knew Hochwalt intimately. Their work brought them together often, and the great bird dogs authority wrote thousands of words for Brown's publication.

The author misses nothing of Hochwalt's interesting career. This means that a complete and authentic history of bird dog trials is presented, for the life of the subject of this colorful biography is practically the life of the field trial sport in America. He saw his first bird dog event in 1888, his last in 1938.

Few Omitted

It is doubtful that any of the "greats" in the bird dogs game, whether they be dogs, owners, or handlers, have been omitted from this 346 page volume. Some, who will read the book purely for diversion, may think it is too cluttered up with names. But the thousands who have followed the trials, either in person or by reports, will revel in the accounts of these same personages.

For instance, we personally enjoyed learning more about the famous dog and outdoor authority, Dr. W. A. Bruette, who not long ago refused very modestly to tell us how many books he had written. The biography relates the friendly rivalry between these two top dog reporters. After meeting Dr. Bruette you could understand what wonderful sessions he and Hochwalt must have had.

In fact the various well told episodes and anecdotes provide the high points in this beautifully compiled work. There are humorous bits of byplay, both in the field and at the hotels before and after the trials. And there is some pathos interwoven through the running of the many events.

It would be impossible to carefully read this book without absorbing much that is valuable, both of history and of dog lore. The methods used by professional trainers are described in a manner that leaves you with an ernest desire to get out and get your own dogs in shape.

Published by the company bearing his name, in Dayton, Ohio, "Albert Fredrick Hochwalt, A Biography," is the story of a great dog man among dog men. And it will likely be read as long as there are dog men to read it.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

FRENCH NOBLES

Louis the Fourteenth was called "the Grand Monarch." His power was great, and his life was carried on in a "grand style."

When a ruler spends vast sums of money for his palaces, feasts and wars, one thing is certain — someone is paying for it. Louis, and later French kings, spent money which the people of their country earned.

Danton.

Seventy-four years after the Grand Monarch died, a revolt broke out in France. Thousands of the so-called "plain people" had come to believe they were being badly treated. Mobs were formed, and bulidings were destroyed. In Paris the much-hated prison called the Bastille was broken into, and the prisoners were set free. The prison was burned, and was left a wreck.

The "Fall of the Bastille" took place in 1789, on the Fourteenth of July. This date later became a national holiday, and it is celebrated in present-day France.

When the Bastille was taken, another Louis—the Sixteenth—was on the throne. He and the nobles did what they could to end the troubles. In August a large number of nobles gathered, and gave up some of their old rights.

For a time it seemed that things might quiet down. The king moved his home from Versailles into the city of Paris, and gave way before the demands of the people's Assembly.

In 1791—not quite two years after the Fall of the Bastille—the king and his wife, Marie Antoinette, tried to leave the country. They were captured before reaching the frontier, and were brought back to Paris. A few months later he signed a paper which declared war against Austria.

Austria lost no time in sending an army into France. Her soldiers were helped by an army from Prussia.

Talk arose against the king. Some said he was plotting to use the Austrian army to get back his power in France. A trial of a sort was held, and he was condemned to death. The queen also suffered the death penalty.

A fearful period, known as the Reign of Terror, followed. Hundreds of nobles lost their lives, many of them good men who never had meant to do any wrong.

Among the leaders of the French Revolution was one named George Danton. He joined in ending the power of royalty and the nobles, but then did all he could to stop the Reign of Terror. This brought about his own arrest, and he was put to death.

Movieland Its People and Products

John Shelton, graduate of stage, radio and vaudeville, is pictured here just after he signed a long term contract. His first assignment was as an interne in "I Take This Woman," co-starring Spencer Tracy and Hedy Lamarr. He is now working with Frank Morgan and Ann Rutherford in "The Ghost Comes Home."

By Jimmie Fidler

Pittsburgh—It looks very much as if Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in trying to salvage a million dollar investment, has seriously damaged a 10 million dollar asset.

Fidler

The investment is "I Take This Woman," a picture produced more than a year ago, shelved as a lemon for 12 months, and then inflicted on theatergoers after a superficial face-lifting.

The 10 million dollar asset is Hedy Lamarr, who shares with Spencer Tracy the misfortune of being co-starred. Given the right vehicles Hedy could be one of the greatest box-office stars in picture history. Given a few more duds like "I Take This Woman," and she will be box-office poison in spite of all the glamour-girl publicity Hollywood genius can concoct. Her career is in the crisis stage right now; it may well be that this one picture will be enough to swing the scales against her.

The sad part of it all is, of course, that Hedy, no more than Spencer, is responsible for the film's lack of entertainment values. But since theirs are the names on the marquees, they must take the rap. Spencer, with a long list of triumphs to his credit, is too well established to be hurt by one flop. Hedy's the only one on the spot.

I can't understand the mistakes that are being made in her case. Surely the studio appreciates her value and realizes the danger of giving her a bad picture at this stage of the game. It is possible, then, that the best picture brains in Hollywood could find nothing better for her than this?

IDOL CHATTER: Imagine! If Sam Goldwyn hadn't changed his name, it would be Metro-Goldfish-Mayer. Hollywood smile: As dowdy as a glamour gal with short fingernails. Mrs. Edith Lake, sitting in a sound booth while son Arthur broadcasts, wears the worried expression of a hen with ducklings. Peas-in-a-pod: Bruce Cabot and Tim Durant. I like Dave Green's in-a-word description to Elaine Barrie's acting: "Dramateurish." Sandra Poloway, Darryl Zanuck's efficient secretary, could spot most stellar beauties a lip stick and three powder puffs and still top them in a beauty contest. George Sanders is one eligible bachelor you'll never see around the nite spots.

QUOTES AND COMMENT: Headline in a Brentwood, California, weekly; "ACTRESSES CHOSEN FOR HORSE SHOW." Silly fillies? . . . Betty Field: "I'm no glamour girl and I don't intend to be one." Okay, let's hear no more about it . . . Marlene Dietrich: "In Hollywood, I am what you might say 'protected from life.'" Well, I wouldn't mind being one of your army of "protectors." . . . Rosalind Russell: Making yourself wear an utterly ridiculous hat is great self-discipline." So's making yourself look at 'em.

Groucho Marx tells about meeting an old-time vaudevillian on the Boulevard, who, after how-dee-doos had been exchanged, sadly reported that he had just acted as pall-bearer at the funeral of another veteran variety player. "Was it a big funeral?" Groucho inquired sympathetically. The old-timer brightened and brushed away his teares. "Groucho," said he, "it was colossal—we turned 'em away!"

Walton League to Hold Annual Parley In Chicago in March

The 1940 national convention of the Izaak Walton league will be held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, March 28, 29 and 30. Representing Appleton will be E. W. Shannon, who is a director in the state organization and a local officer.

Every phase of conservation will receive individual attention and a vast store of new data, received through extensive reasearch work by game and fish authorities will be presented by delegates. While the keynote of the meeting will center around pollution of streams, there will be many other items of importance discussed.

Appleton Streets

How They Were Named

This is one of a number of brief articles telling how certain Appleton streets received their names. The Post-Crescent would appreciate information about streets not already run in this series. Letters may be addressed to the City Editor, Appleton Post-Crescent.

Washington street— From N. Green Bay street to N. Bennett street then from N. Badger avenue to N. Douglas street, a block north of College avenue.

Named for George Washington, first president of the United States, head of the colonial armies and presiding officer over the convention which framed the constitution of the United States.

Water street— From S. Drew street to S. Jackman street, four blocks south of Oneida street.

Weimar street—From the Fox river south to E. John street, two blocks east of Telulah avenue.

Named for Edward Weimar, who formerly owned the land on which the Telulah springs are located.

Organization of Bakers To be Meeting Subject

The executive committees of the Appleton Kaukauna and Neenah-Menasha Trades and Labor councils will meet Sunday at the Labor Temple to discuss organization of bakers in the four cities. The bakers now have no union organization. The proposed organization would embrace both bakers and truckdrivers.

Sol Levitan Carved Career in Politics Unmatched in State

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—A man whose name was a household word to thousands of Wisconsin citizens, a man who rose from rude beginnings and carved a career in politics unmatched in the history of the state and won a generous private fortune in the best melting pot tradition, a man who became probably the most artful politician of his period but who scorned the title, a man to whom politics was life and who enjoyed living to the fullest—that was Sol Levitan.

His death here yesterday marked the end of an era in Wisconsin politics.

Secretaries of high state capitol officials yesterday typed out statements of commiseration to be handed to the press. Most of them were strained and stilted. They failed to indicate the measure of their author's esteem for the quaint old man who was planning until his last days still another campaign, still another speaking tour to the people of Wisconsin. For Old Sol's character defied conveyance to paper.

Great Personality

Sol was not a great man. He would have been the last to claim statesmanlike stature. But he had a great personality, a personality which endeared him to hundreds of non-Progressive voters who supported him as one of the family. He was vain, but he was honest. A Jew who fled persecution abroad to make his fortune in a new, free country, he had a fervent love for democracy. But he filled his political speeches with homely jokes and anecdotes.

One of the first men this correspondent met in the capitol several years ago was "Your Uncle Sol". Since that time many hours of the reporter's time have been spent listening to his life history, his stories and his own human, Christian philosophy.

In the capitol Sol was famous for his love of speechmaking, his frank but overwhelming craving for publicity, and the bottle of wine which was always in the top drawer of his desk for the entertainment of visitors he particularly welcomed to his office.

His was not a commanding position in the Progressive party, nor was it at any time. He was not the law-giver, but rather the political comedian. Yet few ever questioned his importance in, or his loyalty to the rebel LaFollette political organization which he espoused over four decades, from the time he sold the senior LaFollette a pair of suspenders from his itinerant peddler's pack long years ago.

Could Get, Keep Crowd

He was the man who could always get a crowd, and keep the crowd amused and interested. One of the most publicized Jews in America, Sol was the man who could meet a Miss Goldberg and get off this one: "Sounds like home cooking to me."

His charm and wit were infecious. Nor was it any disadvantage to the LaFollette ticket during repeated campaigns to have a man who could convince the people of Wisconsin, in competition with two rival and well-organized party organizations, to come into the Progressive column to vote for the shuffling, white-haired old gentlemen because elderly gentlemen aren't "looking for the Golden Calf, but the Golden Gate."

"Uncle Sol" was a lonely man in the last year of his life.

Defeated in 1938 in the Republican landslide, Sol found himself a poor man—he who had amassed $500,000 in his heyday but who had lost it in the financial troubles of the early 1930's. He dreamed of getting back into office—the only office he ever wanted, the state treasurer's office. There he once put up a sign, to show his hospitality toward the people, a big sign which proclaimed: "Sol welcomes you." But they said it looked like an advertisement for a Jewish fire sale, and the building superintendent ordered it taken down.

The merry old fellow was not always as happy as he seemed on the stump. While he reveled in publicity to the last—and carried about with him tattered clippings, put to constant use, comprising the press stories of which he was most proud—his own generation in politics was passing. In later years he also commented occasionally that "the people are not as kind as you think they are. A fellow told me that Hitler was a great man."

The official obituaries say Sol was 77 at his death. His friends believe he was 80. His age was a delicate matter in the last few years to the man who has been called "Wisconsin's Will Rogers". Although he would have said it was too short—he wanted another term or two as state treasurer—it was full. And he will be remembered longer than many other men who held higher offices, achieved more important things, in his day.

HEADS MILK FIRM

E. G. Hoile, above, formerly of Libertyville, Ill., is the new general manager of the Appleton Pure Milk company. He succeeds Ben Cherkasky who has sold his interests in the company to the other stockholders. Hoile also will serve as treasurer and director of the Appleton firm which was organized about 12 years ago by Cherkasky.

Pure Milk Firm Has New Manager

Ben Cherkasky's Interests Are Purchased by Other Stockholders

E. G. Hoile, formerly of Libertyville, Ill., is the new general manager of the Appleton Pure Milk company, it was announced today. He succeeds Ben Cherkasky, who organized the company about 12 years ago.

Cherkasky has sold his interests in the company to the other stockholders. Hoile, in addition to being general manager, will serve as treasurer and director.

Hoile, in the milk business more than 20 years, was manager of the Hawthorne dairy at Highland Park, Ill., since 1937. Prior to that time he was in the employ of the Kennedy dairy and Kennedy-Mansfield company, Madison, for 18 years, having served those companies as checker, shipping clerk in charge of farm inspection, and in charge of laboratory.

The new manager's wife and two children, a son and daughter, will move to Appleton in the near future. Hoile is a native of Mauston.

Name Committee For Analysis of State Milk Co-Op

Group to Make Non-Partisan Study of Organization

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — A special committee of agricultural leaders, instructed to examine the organization critically and suggest improvements in methods and activities if possible, has been appointed by the Wisconsin Pure Milk Products co-operative, it was learned here today.

Members of the committee are Milo Swanton of the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture, chairman, and Prof. R. F. Froker of the department of agricultural economics of the University of Wisconsin, and W. L. Witte, chief of the marketing division of the state department of agriculture.

Spokesmen for the organization said that they wanted a "revaluation," and a non-partisan study of every phase of the co-operative's work in order to define financial status and values and the efficiency of its program.

Shows Growth

Organization officers, meanwhile, reported continual progress in organization work. Actually, it is explained, the cooperative consists of 25 member organizations with 41,000 members gained in 11 years.

Curt F. Rogers, of New London, an officer and director in charge of organization work, this month reported the addition of four new locals, including one at Wittenberg whose officers include Fred Pietz, Birnamwood, Frank Stadler, Birnamwood, Frank Buhlman, Eland, Art Doede, Iola, president, and W. J. Mertensen, Birnamwood.

The executive board, headed by Melvin Mason of Whitewater, has also announced that the group's official organ will hereafter be published monthly. Editor is W. T. Comstock of New London.

Among officers of the organization are these from the northeastern Wisconsin section of the state: Carl J. Peik, Chilton, Thomas A. O'Connor, Clintonville, Curt F. Rogers, New London, Raymond Mason, Valders, and C. J. Luebke, Weyauwega, directors. O'Connor is also treasurer.

Won't Extradite ASCAP President

Montana Governor Refuses Writ for Man Who Never Fled State

Helena, Mont. —(P)— Gov. Roy E. Ayers has refused to ask the extradition from Arizona of Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, who was charged in Missoula county with "obtaining money under false pretenses."

"Since Buck was never in Montana, he could not have fled from Montana," the governor said after declining to issue the requisition yesterday.

At Phoenix, Ariz., where he was arrested last Thursday on a telegraphic warrant from Missoula, Buck said the requisition was refused "because they couldn't back up their fantastic position up there." Buck was required to post $10,000 surety bond after his arrest. The bond was later reduced to $750.

Edward T. Dussault, Missoula county attorney, filed the charge against Buck as an A.S.C.A.P. officer after the musicians' group had notified Montana radio stations that their licenses to play A.S.C.A.P.-owned music would be revoked unless they met demands for royalty payments.

The stations have filed several civil suits at Missoula against Buck and other A.S.C.A.P. officers. Also pending are several federal court suits filed against the stations by A.S.C.A.P., charging copyright infringement.

New York Stocks Register Narrow Gains on Market

Hold Ground Despite Scattered Selling Waves During Session

New York —(P)— Stocks advanced along a narrow front today and held their ground tenaciously despite scattered selling forays.

Prices were below their best toward the close, but the day's average appeared to have erased most of the previous session's losses. Transfers were about 550,000 shares.

Chief gainers were the aircrafts, whose early morning rise was supported through the rest of the day by steels, motors and chemicals.

Reports of enlarged manufacturing plans in the aviation industry to handle the present backlog of airplane and engine orders as well as constantly increasing new orders were the inspiration for the aircraft's leadership.

Steels were benefitted by the steel industry's reports of new orders and advancing automobile business. Still, however, the exchange remained a typically "trader's market."

Bonds moved in an upward course paralleling stocks. Paris and London markets did better. Amsterdam was uneven. Commodities made fairly good gains. Wheat at Chicago climbed 1⅞ to 1⅞ cents a bushel and corn was ⅛ to ⅞ cent higher. Cotton was 10 cents a bale higher to 5 cents lower.

Prices of Wheat In Sharp Gains On Chicago Mart

Buyers Respond to Reports of Crop Damage in Europe

Chicago—(P)—Gains of almost 2 cents a bushel were chalked up in the wheat pit at times today as the market responded to heavy sales of Canadian grain abroad and reports of crop damage in Europe.

Although United States wheat prices are above a world export basis, grain men said the domestic market naturally was susceptible to developments regarding disposal of the large surplus in Canada.

Liquidation of loan wheat and profit-taking caused frequent reactions here.

Wheat closed 1⅛-1⅞ cents higher than yesterday, May 1.03½-¼, July $1.01⅜-6; corn ⅛-⅜ up, May 56⅜-57, July 57⅛-¾; oats ⅛-⅜ higher.

Cash wheat, corn and oats prices were ⅛-½ higher. Wheat receipts 13 cars; shipping sales 50,000 bushels; corn 96 cars; shipping sales 9,000 bushels; booked to arrive 25,000 bushels.
